Living Costs Leap

WASHINGTON AP -- Living costs rose three-tenths of one per cent in April, the biggest monthly jump since last July, the Labor Department reported today.

Increases in the cost of food, clothing, transportation and medical care boosted the consumer price index to 109.3, a new high.

This figure means that in April it cost $10.93 to purchase typical goods that cost $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

The increase was the largest for April since 1960.

Hearing In Final Stage

CHICAGO (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities moved its hearing on communism in Illinois into its final stage today. Witnesses refused to answer questions and 12 persons were ejected in Wednesday's stormy session.

The committee heard a second witness testify to being a Communist party member while spying for the FBI.

Federal marshals charged the persons ejected from the hearing room with impeding a committee of Congress in exercise of its proper process of investigation. Eight were released on $100 bond and the others were held in jail.

One witness Milton Cohen, walked out. A committee member said he will urge the full committee to charge Cohen with contempt.

Cohen was one of six persons named by a witness as being active in the Communist party.

Traffic Jam On Autobahn

HELMSTEDT, Germany (AP) —Construction work on the East German side of the Iron Curtain autobahn crossing to Berlin here caused a traffic jam today, West German customs police reported.

Cars were backed up as much as a mile, police said, causing about an hour's wait in front of the border.

At noon, customs officials reported traffic was flowing normally.

Collision On Main

A two car accident was reported to Police yesterday at 8:05 p.m. that took place in front of Lamberts Cafe on North Main Street:

John Lamb, St. Louis, was attempting to pass William McArthur, Route four, pulled in too quickly and he hit McArthur's car in a front fender.

There were no injuries and minor damage.

THREE EMERGENCIES

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital yesterday.

Kenneth Dement, sunburn on back; Dore Poe, caught right index finger in wringer of washing machine; and Pearl Tanner, Kewanee, fell at home.

Bert W. Casselman

Masons Of District Will Meet June 4

Bert W. Casselman of Kansas City, Missouri, grand high priest of the Royal Arch Masons, will be in Sikeston June 4 at 7:30 p.m. for a special convocation with Royal Arch Masons of the 15th district. He will talk about a planned charity program and other lodge business at the meeting in the Masonic Temple.

District 15 is composed of Cape Girardeau, Charleston, Poplar Bluff, Kennett, Portageville and Sikeston. Representatives from these six chapters will be present and other grand officers.

Senate Votes To Save

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate Wednesday passed a bill designed to save money instead of spend it.

A "Little Hoover" commission recommendation, it would consolidate date-processing, duplicating, mailing, forms control and records management under one office.

State agencies now must maintain their own equipment and personnel to perform these services. Putting them under an administrative services section in the office of the state comptroller would save the state about $1 million a year, proponents said.

Also passed by the Senate and sent to the House was a bill to create the job of administrative hearing commissioner. An attorney would be named to conduct hearings for the state's licensing boards.

Another would create the job of assistant director of corrections.

Humphrey, 54, May Not Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey turns 54 today and in honor of the occasion he may not make a speech.

This in itself, for a man who has been making two or three a day, would set the date apart. But, of course, he may change his mind.

The Humphrey calendar calls for a staff party and attendance by the vice president and Mrs. Humphrey at a White House reception for congressional assistants.

He was born 54 years ago — on May 27, 1911, in Wallace, S.D.

Graduation Ceremonies To Be Held Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night there will be 254 high school seniors together as students for the last time. One hundred and thirty-one boys will graduate and 123 girls. Junior girls will be the ushers, but the seniors otherwise will play a prominent role in the ceremonies.

The program will begin with the band playing "Pomp and Circumstance" as the processional. Douglas Marsh, Class President, wil preside.

Dale Stauffer will give the invocation and will be followed by the senior choir singing "Be With Us, Lord," the music for which was written by Bob Williamson, class of 1962 and the words by Patty Lewis, a senior in 1966.

Following will be the four senior class speakers introduced by Diane Nunnelee. The speeches will come under the title of "Let Us Continue" to which there will be four parts: "To Laugh" by Becky Turner; "To Love" by Katie Blanton; "To Lead" by Clayton Vandivort; and "To Learn" by John Struwe.

After the speakers, the concert choir will sing "The March of Freedom," accompanied by Judy Matthews.

Honors and awards will be presented by Harold Kiehne, school principal, who will be introduced by Charles Ancell.

It is at this point that the valedictorian and salutatorian will be announced.

To File Motion For Examination Of Thompson

BENTON -- The arraignment of Tommie Lee Thompson, charged with the murder of Mrs. Thelma R. Lewis, Feb. 1, was held in circuit court in Benton today at 11:30 a.m., before Judge Marshall Craig.

The defense attorneys, Thomas Arnold, Benton, and Dwight Crader, Sikeston, asked for an additional few days in which to file a motion for an examination of the defendant, which was granted in open court.

Church Plans Draw Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Whisps of friction trailed today in the wake of the United Presbyterian General Assembly. But it emanated mostly from the sidelines.

Generally, the representative delegates displayed a strong concensus in mapping new church plans and policies, despite eddies of debate.

"Unity in Jesus Christ does not mean uniformity," commented the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, chief administrator of the church. "We can differ within the fellowship without it being a prelude to schism."

As the denomination's weeklong legislative meeting closed Wednesday, however, fireworks came from outside it in a volley of criticism by the Rev. Dr. Edward T. Stimson, of Omaha, Neb., at current denominational trends.

He protested a new confession of faith, given preliminary backing by the assembly, and said it could lead to "loss of our liberties and the introduction of monarchical governmental forms" because it sanctions variety in them.

The new confession, the first restatement of beliefs for English - speaking Presbyterians since the Westminster Confession three centuries ago, remains subject to a two-year, churchwide process of discussion and possible changes before final action on it.

It was expected to unleash a ferment of theological self-examination in the 3½-million-member church.

Bloomfield Asks $110,000

BLOOMFIELD -- A request for $110,000 to build a golf course, tennis court and swimming pool will be sent to the Farmers Home Administration by the Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center, Inc. J. C. Newcomer, secretary of the corporation, said the application for the loan also contains specifications for the installations, a financial report of the organization and other information required by the FHA.

The estimated costs of the nine-hole golf course is $35,000, for the swimming pool and bath house $35,000, for the tennis courts $2,500, and for the club house $30,000. The request also includes the estimated annual cost of operating the center, including amortization of the federal loan for the first year. The total of these two estimates is $7,500.

The application also includes a statement that the corporation attempted to obtain loans for the construction of the recreation center from area banks but was unsuccessful.

A list of towns under 2500 that will be served by the center were submitted along with the population of each. They are Advance, Dudley, Essex, Gray Ridge, Bell City, Puxico, and Bernie. However membership will include Dexter residents although it has a population over 2500.

D. L. Bess, president of the organization, reported yesterday that the membership has increased to 99.

Rebels Rake U.S. Tactics

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Leaders of the Dominican rebel congress sent a message to non-Communist nations around the world Wednesday night accusing the United States of coercion in Dominican internal affairs.

The attack on the U.S. intervention in the Dominican crisis was signed by Arevalo Cedeno Valdez and Anibal Campagna as presidents of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate dissolved by the overthrow of President Juan Bosch in 1963.

Sent to parliamentary leaders in the Western Hemisphere, Europe, the Middle East and Asia, the message asked for support of the "free and democratic parliaments" of the world. It did not go to Cuba, Haiti, the Soviet Union or Red China.

Two Killed, Damage In Midlands

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes and thunderstorms hammered eight states in the nation's midsection Wednesday, killing at least two persons, injuring several others and causing extensive property damage.

The twisters whipped across sections of Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Ohio and Oklahoma.

A lineman was killed in Elkhart, Ind., when strong winds blew a dangling power line against him. He was repairing damage from the Palm Sunday tornadoes. One person was killed by lightning in Sylvania, Ohio, a Toledo suburb.

The Chicago metropolitan area was lashed by violent weather including five tornadoes. At least 11 persons suffered injuries. Twisters hit some populous areas. No deaths were reported.

In suburban Skokie, high winds ripped parts of a roof from a junior high school while 850 pupils and 50 teachers huddled in the hallways. None was injured.

At O'Hare International Airport on Chicago's northwest side, four persons were injured when a twister blew out a glass window.

Two planes were damaged and total damage to the terminal was placed at $500,000.

A tornado swept across Oklahoma City at tree-top level and damaged several buildings and airplanes. It destroyed the Church of God and Christ.

Strong winds raked several areas between West Plains and Potosi in south-central and southeast Missouri.

There was widespread damage, but no casualties were reported.

The roof was ripped from the high school gymnasium at Bakersfield, about 25 miles southwest of West Plains. The pupils were eating in the cafeteria, a separate building.

Power was knocked out in West Plains, car ports were torn from houses, a small grocery store was damaged by a falling tree and part of the roof was blown off at the Farmers Exchange Cooperative, a grocery and feed store.

Wind and heavy rain blew down the screen at a drive-in movie in the Ironton-Arcadia area. Trees were uprooted and power lines were torn down.

Similar damage was reported at Salem, Piedmont and Fredericktown. Fallen trees blocked U.S. 67 at Mine La Motte for a time.

Police Arrest Two Persons

Police reports show two arrests during the past 24 hours: Marvin Arnold, Sikeston, charged with being under the influence of liquor; and Gladys Renner, 204 Tanner, was charged with careless and imprudent driving and failure to yield the right of way.

Eighteen Will Go To Girls State

Eighteen High School Junior girls from Sikeston will attend the 24th session of Girls State at Stephens College in Columbia June 13-19.

Girls State offers a training program to teach girls that government is no more than what they make of it.

There will be chartered buses leaving Cape Girardeau June 13 at 6 a.m. Mrs. Carl Elam will make the reservations.

The 18 girls:

Plot Charged In Queen's Trip

BERLIN (AP) —Queen Elizabeth II flew 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain today to West Berlin. East Germany claimed that West German agents were planning "terrorist attacks" on the Berlin wall during her 5½-hour visit.

The queen's 22-mile route through the city took her past the barbed wire-topped wall, but there were no plans for her to stop at it. British officials said this was done to spare her any anti-Western posters such as the East Germans put up for President Kennedy's visit to the wall in June 1963.

Heavy Burden In War Scars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese are so badly disfigured by gunshot and burn wounds they'll never be able to lead useful lives, says an American plastic surgeon who recently returned from the stricken land.

Only four Vietnamese plastic surgeons are available in that country of 14 million people, a severe shortage that represents a national tragedy, said Dr. Richard B. Stark, chief of plastic surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

Stark returned recently from Saigon after spending a month training and assisting the four Vietnamese plastic surgeons who face, he said, a staggering task of treating casualty cases that includes civilians and soldiers. Stark was an emissary of MEDICO, a nongovernmental medical group that provides aid in underprivileged areas of the world.

"Many of them (the victims) need 40 to 50 operations in order to be salvaged," said the doctor in a report to MEDICO.

Sikeston residents who do not receive their Daily Standard by 5 p.m. call GR 1-1137 between 5 and 5:45 p.m. and the paper will be delivered by 6 p.m.

LENNIE O. WHITWORTH of Buchmueller Whitworth Associates was installed as secretary of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers at the group's annual meeting in Rolla.

Housewives Lose Weight Operating Garbage Truck

Iva Bennett, 30, and her sister, Dorothy Chase, 42, have been operating a garbage and rubbish pickup service in this southwest Michigan town of 1,100 since last fall.

When they started Mrs. Chase weighed 176 pounds.

"Now I'm down to 159 and Iva went from 185 in September to 175 now," said Mrs. Chase.

Three years ago Mrs. Chase and her husband, Harold, took over Charles Miller's refuse route while he was hospitalized.

"We told him that if the time ever came when he wanted to get rid of it, we'd take it," says Mrs. Chase. The time came.

The project includes yardwork, hauling sand and gravel, moving, housecleaning — or what have you.

The garbage route is the sisters' project, but Chase has volunteered for heavy lifting.

Piedmont Woman Killed By Car

The highway patrol reported the death of Mrs. Ida Bell O'Bannon, 87, of Piedmont, who was fatally injured while walking along Highway 49, one mile north of Piedmont, at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday. The accident occurred when she turned to cross the highway and walked into the path of a car driven by Albert B. Ruble, 17, Piedmont.

THESE 10 led the East Prairie senior class of 92 scholastically. From left to right seated are Nickie Ashlock, salutatorian, and Pam Schneider, valedictorian. Standing are Bob Munson, Raylene Melton, Charles Hanor, Jeanne Howard, Gary Jones, Sharon Ferrell, Deloma Tripp, and Donald Wilson.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, May 27 Chief of the Sioux sues Sioux City Sewer Commission.

* * *

A nationwide television safe driving test was good in one respect. The pedestrian was remembered, however, slightly.

Those, who saw the program, will recall a car approaching a bus stopped at an intersection presumably to discharge passengers and to receive others.

The commentator mentioned the hazard of passengers alighting from the bus and crossing the intersection in the path of approaching cars. He urged motorists to slow their speeds in approaching the bus in anticipation of this development.

In the safety field the pedestrian has become the forgotten man. There are so many mechanical and other problems connected with driving an automobile that the pedestrian is isolated rather than remembered.

Even the otherwise excellent Missouri Driver's Guide misses an excellent opportunity to warn motorists about infringing on the safety of pedestrians.

This booklet is an exceptionally well illustrated document about safe driving practices and the importance of obeying traffic regulations. Every driver, both beginner and experienced, could profit by reading it. The booklet is available at Missouri car license bureaus.

Most turning motorists charge into pedestrians crossing the street on a green light as if the cars had the right-of-way. They don't until the street is clear of pedestrians. Unfortunately almost all official highway safety publications, such as the Missouri Driver's Guide, deal almost exclusively with one automobile driver's rights as compared with another's.

Every automobile driver has experienced the arrogance of truck drivers, who flaunt their superior armor. A truck driver will make an abrupt, perhaps even an unsignaled turn in front of other motorists. He dares those in lighter vehicles to strike his heavier machine. He usually is safe in such a challenge.

Many motorists do the same thing. They charge into pedestrians and dare them to cross the street ahead of them. No walking human being is any match for a moving automobile.

Other drivers are unaware of pedestrian rights because they have never read what they are and nobody has ever bothered to tell them.

Only in western states are pedestrian rights respected and their safety is by no means fully guaranteed by uniformly safe driving practices even there.

The pedestrian deserves a better break than a broken bone.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, was originally observed to honor soldiers killed in the American Civil War. Today it honors all those who fell in defense of the republic.

The American practice of burying its military dead in a proper and honorable manner is without precedent in history except, perhaps, the ancient Greek city-states which paid signal honors to their citizen soldiers slain in battle.

American military burial practices may be partially attributed to the extraordinary conditions once encountered by the regular military establishment on the Indian border. The post commanders in those days were compelled to bury all the dead of their garrison communities.

On April 16, 1862, Congress authorized the president to purchase cemetery grounds to be used as a national cemetery. Thus led to the establishment in 1864 of Arlington National Cemetery. Between 1862 and 1870 almost 300,000 Union dead were laid to rest in 73 national cemeteries. The graves of soldiers who served in the Confederate states army were subsequently marked at public cost by a distinctive marble slab.

This precedent was applied without question to the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the North China Expedition. The government further assumed another obligation in bringing back the dead from distant theatres of war.

The return of World War I remains culminated with the entombment of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery on November 11, 1921.

Of approximately 79,000 World War I fatalities, 46,520 were shipped to the United States. Of 360,812 World War II fatalities, 281,857 were recovered. Of those recovered, slightly more than 96% were identified. The unknown dead in World War II number about 8,000. About 171,000 bodies were shipped to the U. S. and about 3,500 were shipped to next of kin in foreign countries for private burial.

Of the 36,922 American fatalities in the Korean Conflict, 28,730 were returned to the U. S. Today the U. S. government affords perpetual care for approximately 850,000 graves of its military dead.

A YEAR AFTER NEHRU'S PASSING

When Jawaharlal Nehru died on May 27, 1964, the London Daily Mail observed: "He has gone at a crucial time, when the future of Asia could be decided by a struggle between the two rival systems represented by Communist China and democratic India; but that India today is powerful and modern enough to be the leader of one of these mighty factions is due almost entirely to Nehru."

Today, a year after his death, India needs a Nehru almost as desperately as it needed him at any time during his life. The cease-fire with Pakistan over the Rann of Kutch is only a matter of expediency. Fighting could break out again whenever weather permits. China still menaces the Indian border to the north. A potential Pakistani - Chinese front against India, though improbable, still causes concern.

Meanwhile, grinding poverty continues to be a commonplace -- so much so that Nehru's successor, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, is shifting the emphasis on development from industrialization to full agricultural growth. While Nehru was an international figure, Shastri seems almost a pedestrian sort. India's voice in international forums no longer rings with impassioned idealism.

The United States had extended more than $3.8 billion in loans and credit to India in the postwar years through June 1964, plus heavy direct aid. We are shipping in 600,000 tons of wheat a month, but even this has not been enough to feed the people or forestall food riots. Meantime, aid from the Soviet Union, not so massive, has been highly publicized.

Shastri, who was asked to put off his visit to Washington by President Johnson last month, arrived in Moscow on May 12 and promptly used the Kremlin as a forum to level some implicit criticism against the United States. He praised the economic assistance the Soviet Union has given India and added that his country is steadily progressing toward a socialist society. And just to twist the knife, he asserted that both the Soviet Union and India are "totally opposed" to the use of force for the settlement of international disputes.

"How do you manage to keep so cool," I asked, "when the rest of us are all wilting from the heat?"

"It's easy," he replied. "First you take a bucket of shaved ice, peel two lemons, slice three oranges, crush three grapes, mash two bananas, pour in some ginger ale and a quart of bourbon and two bottles of vodka -- and mix it all together."

"But how does it taste?" I said incredulously.

"Taste!" he roared. "I don't drink the damn stuff -- I sit in it!"

A 13-year-old Ohio girl has conducted experiments she believes prove beyond doubt that a little love and a few kind words mean a lot to a lima bean.

This may not seem like much at first, but read on.

She experimented with four groups of bean plants.

Group No. 1 she plied with affection, urging the beans to grow up big and strong.

Group No. 2 was serenaded with soft and schmaltzy violin music. Group No. 3 was bombarded with blasts by the Beatles. And Group No. 4 was scolded.

The beans that were loved and encouraged did indeed grow up big and strong -- better than any of the others.

The fiddle-fondled beans did second best. The Beatle beans were a poor third (relax, kids, it may mean nothing), and the unloved beans turned out to be stunted no-goodniks.

A prominent horticulturist says the girl may have something. He mentioned such things as sound and tone values, high frequency impulses, cells and growth regulators.

But the important thing is that a 13-year-old girl and a lima bean have remined a troubletorn nation of a simple truth -- that a little love and a few kind words bring out the best in people, too.

Now all we have to do is to put it into practice.

It is true that you're only as old as you feel, the Catholic Digest has found. Research on aging conducted at the University of North Carolina has shown that the person who thinks of himself as young or middle-aged rather than "old" tends to have better reflexes, is better able to cope with stress, and is better adjusted emotionally. He tends very markedly to be, mentally and physically, more like a youthful person.

FRIENDLY AND UNFRIENDLY

Americans should pause to reflect on the fate which has befallen leaders of nations friendly to the United States. One after another, strong pro-American national leaders have fallen from power, and in virtually every case our own foreign policy has contributed to their downfall.

Another common denominator is the active fight against communism waged by each of these deposed leaders.

The pattern was molded at Yalta and Teheran, where a deal was made to forsake the Chiang Kai-shek government in China for one favorable to the Reds. Marshall and Mao-worshippers in the State Department dealt the final blows to Nationalist China's hold on the mainland.

Meanwhile, the U. S. stood by while Tito lynched Mikhailovich, wartime leader of our Chetnik underground allies, and set up a communist state in Yugoslavia.

After our Asian policy resulted in another war and a dishonorable stalemate, President Syngman Rhee brought stability to Korea and was our loyal ally. For this, we acquiesced in his removal in May, 1960.

Our State Department, with knowledge of Castro's true color, brought pressure for the removal of Batista from Cuba, paving the way for the communist regime of Fidel Castro, giving the Communists their first foothold in this hemisphere.

After the downfall of Batista, the State Department concentrated its abuse on General Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, disrupting the most stabie regime to the south of us, the most anti-communist in the hemisphere, and pro-American beyond question.

Trujillo has been replaced by turmoil and war, Batista by unending terror. These men were dictators, but they have been replaced by utter chaos and total tyranny. By contributing to their downfall, our positions there have become precarious. HLH

HILL 327, South Viet Nam AP--They keep a lonely vigil on a hot and dusty hill for a meeting with the enemy that may never come.

They are the four officers and 87 enlisted men of a U. S. Marines Hawk missile battery.

They are learning the hard way that war more often is boring and monotonous than dangerous or exciting, and that the thing you do most in any war is simply to wait.

The job they have to do is to knock out of the sky with their ground-to-air missiles any enemy planes that threaten the huge Da Nang air base.

The men have great confidence in their weapon. In training for their present mission they found the Hawks effective in bringing down drone aircraft used as targets at their base on Okinawa.

"They'll knock the hell out of anything that can be sent against us over here," said the battery commander, Capt. Everett Cowley, 33, Quincy, Mass.

The batter, whose theme song is "On Top of Old Dusty," is emplaced on the flat peak of one of the highest hills in the Da Nang area. The road up it is one long river of hubcap-deep dust.

It isn't that way all year round, however. When the rainy season starts the road will become a river of mud.

The view from the top of Hill 327, where the long slender Hawk missiles nest in their launchers like poised hornets, is hauntingly beautiful. In one direction stretches the watery waste of the South China Sea over which white cloud towers float in slow and timeless majesty. Between the sea and the base of the hill lie the city of Da Nang and its vital air base.

In the other direction lie a valley and rugged hills from whose green hell Marine patrols are tortuously and painstakingly flushing the tenacious Viet Cong. The loveliness of the hills hides the menace of the ambushing enemy.

The battery's position conceivably is vulnerable to mortar attack. It is guarded by sandbags and barbed wire and a company of Marine infantrymen. But the missilemen themselves also pull sentry duty, man outpost holes, and pile up more sandbag barricades.

The heart of the battery is its small, well - hidden command central. The darkened room is air-conditioned not so much for the comfort of the men as to protect the radar and electronic equipment with which the missilemen keep a day and night watch of the sky.

I asked Capt. Cowley if his men had had many interesting experiences. He smiled wryly and said.

"Well, once we saw a king cobra snake, and in six weeks we have plied up 50,000 sandbags. This job isn't romantic--just scenic and necessary. We do feel that if the enemy does try to fly against us here we'll bring him down here."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Sen. McClellan Will Lead Right-To-Work Forces In Final Showdown Early in July.

Washington, D. C.:--The final showdown over legalizing the union shop throughout the U. S. will come on the floor of Congress early in July when the forces of two men of the Southwest clash with each other long and bitterly.

This final conflict will come between Sen. John McClellan, who'll marshall the "right to work" forces--and President Johnson himself.

The Senator from Arkansas will lose, but it won't be for lack of trying or for lack of ammunition.

The Senator's agrument against repeal of "14 (b)" will be that the unions need tighter not looser laws. He'll bolster this argument with public senatorial hearings of his own committee into labor pension and welfare funds worth scores of hundreds of millions of dollars.

For months now he has had teams of investigators probing small unions in New York, Chicago and other Midwest cities. He believes he has found abuses in these funds, which hold anywhere from $3 to $15 million. In all there are 164,000 funds with a total of $75 billion growing at the rate of over $5 billion a year.

A vast section of these fantastic pools of cash are operated by management through banks and insurance companies. But thousands of the pension groups are in the hands of unions. Last year the Labor Dept. reported 38 criminal violations of the handling of such monies and sent the cases over to the Justice Dept.

Just what Sen. McClellan's teams have discovered few know because the Senator and his general counsel, Jerry Adlerman, have been tight-lipped during any discussion of the inflowing reports.

In a memorandum submitted at the beginning of this congressional session, McClellan said that "It is vital for the protection of the individual worker, as well as for the economy of this nation, that increased attention be paid to these welfare and pensions funds and that they be sufficiently regulated to assure their availability for the intended beneficiaries. . ."

While McClellan is battling in the Senate, a coalition of Democrats and Republicans will hit the same theme--local union abuses--in the House. They'll be guided by none other than the 62-year-old Fred A. Hartley, who wrote the original Taft-Hartley Act with the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

The robust Mr. Hartley, who served in Congress from 1929 to 1949, lives a country squire life now in Milford, N. J. His strategy will be to charge that repeal of the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley law will force workers to join unions which will use their dues for political and philosophical causes and concepts which the employes oppose.

The Hartley open shop forces will agrue that despite the honesty of many national union leaders the latter can't control their local unions. In the counterattack against the nation's labor leaders, the right-to-work bloc will heap statistics on the House floor showing growing local defiance of the top leadership--and a big increase in strikes.

Perhaps the most damaging attacks on the labor movement will spring from a recital of convictions and indictments of local labor leaders. Again the point will be made that the honesty of a national labor president is no guarantee of his control of local unions on the Taft-Hartley front.

The anti-repeal leaders specifically will point to Chicago. There, for example, Clarence Jalas, powerful business manager of the Moving Picture Operators Union, local 110, has been indicted on 25 counts of Taft-Hartley violations.

He has been accused by a federal grand jury of 20 counts of receiving illegal gifts of money, notes, stock certificates, and services from a film company that had employed members of his union. There are scores of such indictments --and convictions--on record.

Whatever does come out of this final showdown in the Congress over repeal of the states' rights to ban the union shop, the disclosure of local union abuses will be salutary.

It will be obvious that local unions no longer can be tolerated as local, impregnable baronies. They owe a responsibility to their members, their national movement, and the public.

And that sense of responsibility must not remain a matter of personal whim.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Wayne Morse, the indomitable Democrat from Oregon, is famous for having once established the Senate's longest speaking record, for copping blue ribbons for his English Red Devon cattle, and for his unrelenting battle against military take-overs in Latin America.

The other day Morse received a call from a handsome young diplomat who introduced himself: "I am the new Bolivian ambassador, and I represent the new military junta. I know that you don't like military juntas. However, I came to see you anyway."

The acid - tongued Senator from Oregon chuckled, settled down for a good talk with the new ambassador. And though Morse didn't relent in his opposition to military revolts, he came to the conclusion that since this government was already in power he might as well give it a sympathetic hearing.

The young man who came to see him, Ambassador Julio Sanjines, is a unique Bolivian. To help the long-depressed Indian population of his country, he gave away one million acres of his land for Indian resettlement. Furthermore, Sanjines did this while in exile and at odds with the now deposed President Paz Estensorro.

—U.S. EDUCATED—

Ambassador Sanjines was educated at Iowa State and West Point. In Bolivia he put the Army to work at such nonmilitary projects as irrigation, well-drilling and health, instead of politics. Though exiled for a time by the "national revolutionary movement," he believes in their policies — namely, higher taxes for the wealthy and dividing up the land to put the Indian population on the land.

The new President of Bolivia, Gen. Rene Barrientos Ortuno, got his training at Randolph and Kelly Fields with the U.S. Air Force, is also a believer in the fundamentals of "national revolution."

He has also carried the quarrel of ex-President Paz with Vice President Juan Lechin one step further. Lechin, sometimes called the "John L. Lewis" of the Bolivian tin miners, had incurred the ire of pro-labor President Paz by leading frequent strikes in the tin mines, thereby pricing Bolivian tin almost out of the world market.

President Barrientos has now sent Lechin into exile which has brought a sitdown in government-owned mines and the call of a general strike against the government.

As Ambassador Sanjines explained it to Morse: "We are for the principles of the revolution and we want to continue the division of the land among the Indian population. But we are not going to let one union dominate the country. Government operation has not worked with this union in control, so now we are going to try private enterprise."

The Ambassador points to the fact that the Gulf Oil Company has invested $100,000,000 in boring several productive wells, and its property has been protected.

"In these days when the production of tin in Indonesia and Viet Nam is highly uncertain," says the Ambassador, "Bolivian tin may be the most important source for the United States, and we have to keep it moving."

—McCLELLAN'S BANKING BUDDIES—

Arkansas' dour Sen. John McClellan, who has made a Senate career of investigating the shenanigans and conflicts of federal officials, has now turned up with a conflict of his own.

He didn't mention it when he launched his latest investigation into bank failures, but he happens to be an active director of the First National Bank of Little Rock, Ark.

This is one of the old-line banks, a financial Goliath, whose dominance over the banking business was never challenged until James J. Saxon became Comptroller of the Currency four years ago.

Boldly, Saxon granted bank charters to outsiders, including Negroes and Jews, hitherto shut out of most banking circles. These new banks have compelled the encrusted old financial houses to become more competitive.

Only two national banks have failed since Saxon started his banking revolution. During the same period, seven state banks have failed. McClellan, however, has concentrated all his fire on Saxon and the Federal failures.

The Senator has promised to investigate state banks, too, but so far hasn't got around to it. Meanwhile, he has been muttering darkly about the need for a reorganization of Federal banking agencies.

Significantly, the proposed reorganization would abolish Saxon's job, thus remove a thorn from the side of McClellan's banking buddies.

—MERRY-GO-ROUND—

The divine right of kings was vetoed by the thirteen colonies back in 1776. But the Justice Department today features the divine right of succession. If you are the son of somebody important, you can get a job in the Justice Department, to wit, Ramsey Clark, Deputy Attorney General, the son of Justice Tom Clark; Fred Vinson, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, the son of the late Chief Justice Vinson; Edwin L. Weisl, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, son of the New York lawyer who is a private White House adviser. All three, incidentally, are good men, but the fact that they are the sons of eminent fathers didn't hurt a bit. . . Space scientists have warned that the Russians are concentrating on interplanetary travel. More than 25 per cent of their rockets have been aimed at the moon and various planets as against only 6 per cent of similar space shots by the United States.

Reason why the White House was so anxious to retrieve the Jackie Kennedy letter to Lady Bird Johnson from a New York auction was because Jackie has been rather aloof with the Johnsons, and the White House didn't want to increase the appearance of aloofness.

Some people got the impression that Mrs. Johnson failed to answer Jackie's letter and attached no importance to her invitation to view the Nixon-Kennedy debate in October, 1960.

What actually happened was that Lucianne Cummings, one of the Democratic paid workers, brought Mrs. Johnson a sheaf of mail to the airport, including the invitation from Jackie. En route to the Capitol, Lady Bird instructed Miss Cummings to reply by telephone that she would have to be in Baltimore with LBJ that evening, therefore could not attend the view-in.

The viewing of the Nixon-Kennedy debate was to be held at Democratic headquarters on Connecticut Avenue that evening, not in the Kennedy home.

Miss Cummings made the phone call but kept the letter, and later sold it without permission to Charles Hamilton, the New York collector.

Real fact is that the Johnsons have gone out of their way to invite Jackie to the White House and do everything possible for her. She continues to be aloof. Her first cold shoulder came on Dec. 22, 1963, when she declined to attend the final memorial services for her husband at which President Johnson paid him tribute.

Latest and unkindest cut was when she declined to come to Washington for the dedication of the "Mrs. John F. Kennedy Rose Garden." Jackie was in New York, one hour's flight away, was accepting various social engagements, but would not come to Washington to participate in the dedication of the White House garden named in her honor.

Despite the snub, the President placed a special White House jet at her disposal when she flew to England this month.

—ANOTHER ROOSEVELT RUNS—

Most vigorous election race in the country will be decided next week in Florida where FDR's second son, Elliott, is running for mayor of that glittering stretch of sand and famous hotels called Miami Beach.

It's a race reminiscent of those hell-bent political days of his late father, and the family is very much an issue, even to the stamp commemorating Elliott's late mother and the assassination attempt on his father in Miami in 1933 when Zangara fired at FDR's car and killed Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

Afterward an editor of the University of Florida "Alligator" wrote an editorial urging lenient treatment for Zangara. That editor, Melvin Richard, is now mayor of Miami Beach and the man Elliott Roosevelt is running against. Elliott's cohorts claim Richard is now trying to reverse 1933, and politically assassinate the son of the late FDR.

Whether the charge is justified or not, it certainly is true that Richard is using plenty of invective against Elliott, his many marriages, his present wife and even the Roosevlt family.

"Some people think they were great," says the annoyed mayor of Miami Beach, "Let 'em think so."

"The Richard forces can bellyache all they want," commented columnist Rolfe Neill in the Miami Beach Sun, "but if I had a mother with a postage stamp issued in her honor I'd use it on all my mail too.

Mayor Richard has tried to dig into Elliott's war record, only to end up in a blaze of battle ribbons. He made much of the fact that Elliott was five times married, but only ignited the ire of the most devoted wife Elliott ever married.

Patricia Roosevelt now has her dander up and is determined to win. She has set up a mimeograph machine in her basement where she and the children roll off campaign literature every night. She rings doorbells, brews coffee, works 30 hours a day.

"Not having enough money to hire our own photographer, I am going around to all the meetings with my little Minox," says Pat. "We have no paid workers and it is incredible to see the number of people who come into our offices every day to volunteer their services and cars."

It looks as if a lot of people remembered Franklin Roosevelt down in Miami Beach and were attracted to Elliott's slogan "A man with a name Miami can be proud of." In any event it's certain that Mayor Melvin Richard made a bad error when he attacked Elliott's wives. His present wife is determined to have the voters make him eat his words.

—FOLLOWERS OF THE ROPE—

Some years ago a small cult of Yoga devotees on Capitol Hill exercised during the lunch hour by standing on their heads in the basement of the Library of Congress.

Today a new exercise cult has been started by Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., they are followers of the rope, use what they call the "isometric rope exercise."

"Please don't be offended because a freshman wants to show you the ropes," Roncalio wrote to senior Congressmen. "But the most exclusive legislative body in the world—our Congress — is getting out of shape.

"Every two years we run for our lives for reelection. However, I have an exercise that doesn't require any running whatever. It's the isometric rope exercise."

New Chapter JU Of P.E.O. Is Organized In Sikeston

CHAPTER JU, the second PEO chapter in Sikeston, was organized May 25 at the home of Lida Bowman by Mary Louise Ahmann, St. Charles, first vice-president of Missouri State Chapter. She was assisted by members of Chapter HB, sponsors of the new chapter.

Members are Mabel Louise Hunter, received by dimit from Chapter HB, Sikeston, Missouri, and the following initiates: Judy Bowman, Joy Leslie, Kay Hunter, Judy Harper, all daughters-in-law of members of Chapter HB, Evelyn Campbell, Bonnie Conn, Marilyn Dement, JoAnn Fox, Doris LaPlant, Phyllis Malone, Betty Mitchell, Frances Robison, and Rosemary Vandivort.

Following the organization of Chapter JU, members of Chapter HB entertained state officers, members of Chapter JU and the following out-of-town guests: Opal McHenry, who accompanied Mrs. Hammond from Springfield; Ruth Kendig, St. Charles, and Billie Miller, Jackson, who were charter members of Chapter HB at a dinner at the Holiday Inn.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood was founded January 21, 1869, by seven college girls, students at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Although established as a college sorority, campus chapters were discontinued when emphasis was placed on the organization of chapters in towns and cities. This change from a college group to a community group opened the way for the growth of the organization in the United States and Canada.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood is now an international organization with a membership of more than 150,000 women. Almost 4,000 chapters have been organized during the 96 years since P.E.O. was founded by the seven students at Wesleyan College.

The purposes of the P.E.O. Sisterhood are educational and charitable. For many years the major objective of the organization has been to provide increased opportunities for higher education for women. This has been accomplished through a loan fund, a junior college, and scholarships for foreign students.

The first educational project of the P.E.O. Sisterhood was its Educational Fund, established in 1907 for the purpose of assisting qualified women students desiring to become self-supporting, to attain an education beyond the high school level. Chapter HB has sponsored two students and is willing to assist other qualified women in obtaining loans.

In addition to these projects, P.E.O. members are active in all phases of civic and charitable activities.

Officers of Chapter HB who participated in the organization were Rosemary Hayward, president; Minta Hubbard, vice-president; Myra Tanner, recording secretary; Margaret Harris, corresponding secretary; Marcia Sikes, treasurer, Frances White, chaplain; and Barbara Sikes, guard. Special guards for the initiation service were Elizabeth Leslie, Mildred Harper, Lida Bowman, Frances Hunter, Emily Dace, and Lucille Stubblefield; organist was Loleta Scott; special recording secretary was Emma Lee Baker; and reporter was Dora Vogel.

Golf Notes

Mrs. Frank Armstrong and Mrs. Charles Stamp were hostesses for guest day at the Sikeston Country club on Tuesday.

Guests from Charleston, Kennett and Malden added to the local golfers made thirty-seven players of golf and a buffet luncheon.

Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer greeted all players at the 9th green and presented a package of golf tees to each player who drove the green. Jeal Halter from Charleston was closest to the pin and received a special prize for her skill plus a score of two one the hole.

In the championship flight Mrs. Jerry Watson and Mrs. Dewey Urban tied with a score of 42. Mrs. Watson won the draw. There was a tie for second place too, and Mrs. Louis Moose won the draw from Mrs. Polly Smith of Malden.

In flight A, Mrs. Glen Joyner was first, Mrs. Milford Estes second and Mrs. Lotus Emerson third.

Betty Robins of Kennett captured the first place in flight B followed by Mrs. Stan Bush and Mrs. Charles Welch. Mrs. Welch is a new member of the Sikeston club. She is a devoted golfer and her game shows that practice pays.

Mrs. E. R. Putnam of Charleston won flight C. Mrs. Frank Ferrell was second and Flo Stewart of Kennett was third.

Plans are being made for a four ball partnership tournament at the local club next Tuesday. All golfers are urged to select a partner from their own class for this competition.

Directors for score keeping will be given at the tee off time by Mrs. Jerry Watson who is tournament chairman.

All golfers come out between 9 and 9:30 (D.S.T.). This should be a real fun day. Partners will receive duplicate prizes.

Twilight golfers are urged to come out this Friday evening, May 28. Frank Armstrong reports that food will be available after the golf games.

Cardinals Defeat Dodgers 2 To 1, Javier Singles Home Winning Run In The Seventh

Brock, who has turned into Wills' shadow in a possible record-making race for the National League's stolen - base championship, came out on top in their first direct confrontation Wednesday night while the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Brock, the Cardinals' swift left fielder, stole three bases for a season total of 21 in 39 games. Wills, the Dodgers record-holder and five-time champion, settled for one steal and a total of 25 in 40 games.

Wills, who stole 53 bases last year, predicted before the season started that someone would eventually break the record of 104 he set in 1962. And he hinted that it just might be the guy who played shortstop for the Dodgers.

"I think it's possible to break the record," Wills said. "And the way I feel I think I can go at top speed all the way. I feel better than when I was 18. Maybe I'm getting my second wind."

Brock, on the other hand, still is learning how to use his first wind. He's only 25 - and didn't develop into a Wills-type steal-int threat until he was turned loose after being acquired from the Chicago Cubs last June.

The Cardinals' victory pulled the defending world champions to within 1 1/2 games of the first-place Dodgers, who stayed one game ahead of Cincinnati in the tightening NL struggle as the Reds bowed to Houston 8-3.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee belted San Francisco 10-4, Pittsburgh upended Philadelphia 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs edged the New York Mets 8-6 in 10 innings.

In American League action, Minnesota outslugged Boston 9-7, Cleveland defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-1, Kansas City whipped Baltimore 6-3 and the Los Angeles Angels nipped Washington 2-1.

Brock scored the first Cardinal run in the first inning on Ken Boyer's sacrifice fly but the Dodgers tied it in the second on singles by Ron Fairly and Lou Johnson, a walk and a double-play grounder. The Cardinals brought home the winner in the seventh on successive singles by Bob Uecker, Curt Simmons and Julian Javier.

Simmons got the victory with a five-hitter for a 3-5 record, outdueling Sandy Koufax, now 6-3.

Cape Finishes Baseball Season With 16-4 Record

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. -- Outfielder Steve Vaughn and pitcher Kermit Meystedt were the big guns in Southeast Missouri State College's recently-completed 16-4 record, the best in the history of the school.

Vaughn, a freshman from Dexter, led the team in batting with a muscular .428 average for the 20 games, while Meystedt, a Cape Girardeau sophomore, topped the mound staff with a 4-1 record. Meystedt was second in the earned run race with a 2.31 average, behind sophomore Joel Beaudean of Cape, who had a 0.82 average in compiling his 2-0 record.

The only teams on the schedule which the Indians were unable to beat were Southern Illinois University and the University of Tennessee at Martin. SEMO split two games with powerful Murray (Ky.) State.

Outfielder Gary Hearne, Belleville, Ill., junior, emerged as the team's leading home run producer, slamming five during the season, and finishing second in the RBI derby with 16. Vaughn, Wadlington, and catcher Floyd King, Cape junior, all hit three round-trippers.

Ralph Hachman, St. Louis freshman, led pitchers in strikeouts with 51 in 40 1/3 innings, compiling a 3-2 record and a 2.68 ERA. Meystedt, in 35 innings, whiffed 50.

Other pitchers and their records were: Ray Bahr, St. Louis junior, 3-1; Mike Portell, DeSoto freshman, 2-0; Pete Ulmer, Benton freshman, 1-0; and Steve Mosley, Cape junior, 1-0.

Indian pitchers allowed an average of only six hits and four runs per game. Only 2.64 runs were earned per game by opponents.

He further reminded owners of boats, powered by motors over 10 horsepower, that the boats must be properly registered and numbered; that all outboard motors must be licensed; that each boat must have Coast Guard approved life preservers for each passenger aboard; that boats must have lights for night operation; that certificates of registration must be aboard when the boat is in operation.

He also urged boaters to give respect and extend courtesy of the water ways to other boaters.

British Heavyweight Champion Henry Cooper Says Americans Should Be Fed Up With Such Boxers As Clay and Liston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

That was the comment from Henry Cooper, British heavyweight champion, after watching the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston title fight, beamed to London via Early Bird satellite.

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. —London time— and drew wry comments from two other British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to then-champion Joe Louis, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing — and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former middleweight champion, said:

"My wife Barbara can take a bigger punch than Liston."

The cries of "fix," and "fraud," "fake" were sounded in many theaters showing the closed-circuit television of the fight but there were no serious incidents.

A few people asked for their money back but Clay's mouth may have prevented further disturbances.

At Richmond, it was reported that most of the crowd of about 2,000 was engrossed by Clay's commentary when the fight was rerun in slow motion.

At Albany, N.Y., there was a short scuffle between two men when one complained:

"Your head was in my way and I missed the whole thing."

A portion of the crowd was distraught — before the fight started.

Baseball Leagues Honored At A Breakfast Meeting

The Mid-Towner was the scene Wednesday morning, as the First National Bank held a breakfast to honor coaches, officials and supporters of the Little League and Babe Ruth leagues of our city.

Clem Beal made this comment on the breakfast. "We wanted to show our appreciation for the dedication of the managers and officials of the Little League for their unselfish leadership, in helping the youth of our community."

Persons who were recognized for their outstanding service to the Leagues were as follows: Murray Farris, Little League Commissioner; Cline Ables, Babe Ruth League Commissioner. Louis Jones, who was unable to attend, received mention for his contributions to the teams. Mr. Jones is a State Executive of the Connie Mack League.

Special recognition was also given to the two League secretaries, Mrs. Johnnie Dacus of the Little League and Wanda McDaniel of the Babe Ruth League.

Representatives from the First National Bank were: Clem Beal, Vice President; Lee Shell, Cashier; Elmer Anderson, I.B.M. Supervisor.

The Sikeston Little League was formed in 1949 by Kendall Sikes, Joe Leslie, Bud Schrader, the late Jack Lancaster, and the late Bill Puckett. These five men laid the foundation for our present summer baseball system. They deserve much praise for Sikeston's fine caliber of baseball player, both in athletic ability and sportsmanship.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. AP -- Funeral services for Homer Norton, who pu' Texas A&M into the national football spotlight with great teams in the late 30s and early 40s, will be conducted here Friday.

Under Norton, the Aggies played in the Sugar Bowl in 1940, in the Cotton Bowl in 1941 and 1942, and in the Orange Bowl in 1944. His coaching record at A&M was 82-53-9.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

I read an article recently in a national sporting magazine, entitled "A New Comic Act In New York." This article seems, to portray the new spirit of the New York Yankees. A new comic act, indeed. The Yanks seem to be trying to draw the crowds that their cross-town rivals the Mets pull in. To prove this the Yanks and Mets battled a couple of weeks ago. The mighty Mets, with their fearless leader ex-Yankee manage. Casey Stengle, downed the American League champion Yankees, 2 to 1.

We quote from this magazine: "The once austere Yankees are now dedicated to fun. They got off to a bad start, but who's worrying?"

It seems to me someone should be worrying. It's a shame to spoil the great spirit of the Yankees winning, with this pack of clowns.

The goat of the whole deal, seems to be Johnny Keane, ex-manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals. Keane, 53, spent most of his baseball life in the minors. He had been in the St. Louis Cardinals chain for 29 years before being promoted to the parent club as a coach. As you well know, he led the Cards to a National League Pennant and a World Championship, over the New York Yankees.

The whole story concerns the evolution, of the Yanks, from the cold, dead serious, winners of the Ruth to DiMaggio era, to the happy clowns and goof offs of today.

It seems to me, winning would have kicks enough for any team.

Most baseball analyists still pick the Yanks as the team to beat in the American League. To us that makes about as much sense, as picking the Mets to carry off the Nation League honors.

In general the Yanks are still the same old Yanks, that is when they are healthy. The Yanks could win the pennant with a change for the better, to the sound playing attitude of their predecessors. Personally, I pick the Yanks for the second division!

A warning to water recreationists for the Memorial Day weekend of May 30th was issued today by the Missouri Boat Commission.

Thomas C. Gistrap, executive secretary of the commission, urged water recreationists to exercise extreme caution on the waters of the state, since traffic is expected to be extremely heavy.

All lakes and rivers will be carrying capacity loads of fishermen, divers, skiers, swimmers and boaters Friday through Monday, Gistrap said.

In anticipation of extremely heavy water traffic, five additional water patrolmen have been

Mizzou Wins Big 8 Batting

Nebraska was the Big Eight leader in pitching and fielding, but Missouri's league champions offset this by carrying a big stick. In almost every offensive category, the Tigers were kings.

Missouri led in team batting at .310, runs 128, hits 174, doubles 29, triples 12 and home runs 23. In stolen bases, Missouri tied with Iowa State for third at 24, while Kansas State and Colorado shared the lead at 25.

Nebraska had an excellent team earned run average of 2.43. The Husker staff permitted only 46 runs, 36 of them earned. In fielding, Nebraska had a .958 mark, committing only 28 errors in 667 chances.

Missouri scored 128 runs, almost twice Nebraska's total and more than Oklahoma State, the runner-up with 96 runs. Missouri's pitching staff was sixth in ERA at 4.32 and the Tigers have up 79 runs, 66 earned.

The team slugging percentage reflects Missouri's big edge in power over the league. Tigers slugged .528, OSU .367 and Kansas .359 for third.

In team batting, OSU had .255, Iowa State .251, Kansas .246, Oklahoma .221, K-State .218. In team ERA Iowa State's fine staff was a close second with .261. Other marks were OSU 3.60, Colorado 3.78, Kansas 4.31, Oklahoma 4.68 and K-State 5.94.

Oklahoma was second in team fielding at .951, Missouri had .948, Iowa State .945, OSU .939, K-State .937, Kansas .937 and Colorado .936.

Ryun Signs Letter Of Intent At Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. AP--Kansas has signed 13 high school track stars to letters of intent, including a 16-1 pole vaulter and an outstanding distance runner, both from California.

Bob Steinhoff of Warren High School, Downey Calif., is the vaulter and Mike Hearns of Encino, Calif., is the distance runner.

Steinhoff has vaulted this year in the shadow of his teammate, Paul Wilson, the national leader at 16-6 3/4. But Bob Timmons, who will take over as Kansas track coach July 1, said "Bob beat Wilson twice this spring within 10 days."

Kearns has run 4:16.8 in the mile and a more outstanding 9:22.8 in the two-mile.

Another standout signed by KU was Gary Tucker of Kansas City, Kan., Argentine, Kansas shot put record holder at 62-7 1/4, fourth best in the nation.

Two of the signees, milers Jim Ryun and Mike Petterson of Wichita East, announced earlier their decisions to attend Kansas. Ryun's 3:58.3 mile is the only sub-4-minute mile in high school history. He was on the Olympic team last year. Petterson, with a best of 4:10.8, ranks high in the nation. He ran a 14.21.8 three-mile the same night, for the best such distance double on record.

The other signees are David Aikens of Eire, a 58-5 1/2 shot putter; Keith Christensen of Concordia, 57-5 1/4 shot putter; Ron Schrader of Harper, 6-5 high jump best; John Zook, Larned, 165-3 1/2 in discus; and Junior Riggins, Centralia, 9.9 sprinter and 22-6 broad jumper.

Single or double flowered portulacas will provide brilliance in that hot, dry place where nothing else will grow. They furnish a carpet of color that is hard to beat. All it takes is a packet of seeds and the planting — no further care.

Miracle Of West Europe

ERWIN D. CANHAM In
The Christian Science News

THE NETHERLANDS

The "miracle" of Western Europe's economic and sociological progress is nowhere more spectacular than in the Netherlands.

Netherlanders are going around these days looking like the cat that swallowed the canary. And who wouldn't? Suppose you and your parents and your grandparents had been told all your lives that your country had no natural resources to speak of. Therefore you must work hard -- and maybe acquire a colony or two -- and trade with other nations in order to achieve national wealth.

And suppose suddenly you discovered yourselves to be sitting on the world's second-largest pool of natural gas (40 trillion cubic feet). Suppose, in addition, you found rich promise of oil reserves not only offshore in the North Sea but right in your urban backyards?

ECONOMIC GAIN

Suppose, additionally, you realized that the loss of Indonesia had turned out to be an economic gain: The capital which formerly was invested in Southeast Asia turns out to be much more profitable invested in industrial growth at home.

Working diligently and skillfully within the broad range of the six-nation Common Market and with excellent trade relations with many other nations, the Dutch have never been more propserous than today. Moreover, the Indonesians now are making overtures to resume many of their old non-political relations with the Netherlands.

All this couldn't have happened to a finer people. Dutch sobriety, intelligence, cosmopolitanism, discipline, business skill, and cultural depth all blend into a powerful mixture. New factories and office buildings rise between the dikes but have not destroyed the picturesque look of the low fields or the compact charm of the many towns and cities.

EARMARKS OF. . .

There is a sense of humor, too. Last Thursday, a band of students descended upon the American consulate-general in Amsterdam. They bore signs which seemed to say: "Get Out of Vietnam" and "Stop Using Gas." It bore all the earmarks of a riot all too familiar in other capitals.

Somebody sent for the police. They came, complete with paddy wagons, determined to stop such violence on sober Dutch soil. Just as the arm of the law reached out for the students, they reversed their signs, which then read: "April First"! It was the nicest April Fool joke Uncle Sam has had for some time.

I had the pleasure of telling Queen Juliana of this episode, which got no publicity. She was obviously pleased and proud.

The simplicity and strength of her own position is typical. Soestdijk Palace, where I called on the Queen, is almost unguarded. We drove in past the sentry without pause: he expected us. Princess Margriet, who has just become engaged to a commoner, drove off in her little car just as we came.

A STABLE LAND

There can be few courts anywhere in the world which have less ostentation and more stability. So it is with the nation. Hard work, concentration, practicality, skills, ingenuity, education; these attributes produce national growth.

But they gain strength from a willingness to cooperate and combine sovereignty with other nations. The Netherlands is a deeply persuaded pioneer in the Common Market and the gradual unification of Europe. It is not overawed by its great German neighbor. It leaves the Russians to the United States.

The totally unexpected has happened. Twenty years after the end of the most cruel war in history, one of the occupied and devastated nations, the Netherlands, enjoys prosperity and growth the wildest dreamer did not envision. The miracle has come true.

It's Easier To Filter Pool Water

Until that happy day, the single most important aspect of maintenance for pool owners will be keeping the water pure through proper filtration.

Fortunately, today's filters operate with ease and economy. Many modern filters are more compact than their predecessors, won't rust or corrode, and can be cleaned and backwashed more easily. Periods between cleanings have been lengthened.

There are two basic types of water filters — sand and diatomite. Although both types are effective, the more compact diatomite units, the type used in most pools, offer greater efficiency and operational flexibility in less space.

Proper maintenance of filters involves cleaning every three to ten days. The interval between cleanings can be lengthened by proper care of pool with frequent vacuuming and skimming (either by hand or with automatic skimmer.) Careful control of algae will also cut operating costs. Clogging of diatomite filters can be prevented by proper precoating with diatomite filter aid.

Filters should be run so that the pool water is completely filtered every 18 to 24 hours.

Soviet Strives for Variety In Range, Power of ICBMs

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An analysis of the missiles paraded in Moscow on V-E Day indicates several new trends in Soviet military planning.

• Apparently there is a major shift away from the mammoth nuclear warheads the Russians have boastfully predicted they would turn to.

The 110-foot rocket the Russians paraded in Moscow will be able to carry loads larger than the U.S. Titan II, but not a great deal larger. Certainly it will not carry the 30, 50 or 100-megaton weapons the Soviet Union has said it would be prepared to drop on American targets in time of war.

Soviet planning appears to be geared to a vast increase in range rather than on a hefty increase in punch.

• New Soviet emphasis seems to be put on a Moscow version of the Minuteman concept. (One high U.S. officer calls it the Minutemansky.) That is, they apparently are aiming for a smaller, cheap, quick-reacting, intercontinental ballistic missile intended to deliver small loads precisely on target.

The 65-foot missile paraded in Moscow presumably would get the Russians into the "lower yield" accurate ICBM field. The Reds then would not be limited in ICBM capacity wholly to city destruction.

These missiles also would seem to indicate an increased preciseness in Soviet electronic guidance as applied to relatively small packages, an area in which they had been thought to lag well behind the United States.

• The squat "iron maiden" nuclear rocket paraded in Moscow on its own tracked, self-propelled vehicle points to a growing Moscow emphasis on mobile medium-range nuclear weapons integrated into Soviet ground armies.

Indications are that this weapon carries a punch as heavy or heavier than the U.S. Army can tote into the field in the Pershing or Sergeant. Its estimated range of 1,100 miles is several times as great as any U.S. mobile army weapon.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara ordered research on a mobile intermediate range ballistic missile for the United States and North Atlantic Treaty Organization armies. But the project was almost wholly canceled out some time back. Only some peripheral work, usable in other systems, it is understood, is being continued.

McNamara's argument now is that in an overseas war—as in Europe—the Army's heavy nuclear punch can be delivered by the Navy's Polaris submarines.

• The Soviet Union apparently is developing a capability for sending its rockets into the United States from any direction, not just by the direct route over the North Pole.

The 110-foot rocket shown in the Moscow V-E Day parade reportedly has an orbital capability. This means the warhead could be put into orbit and then brought down when and where Moscow decides. It also means that the nuclear warhead could be fired around the world in any direction at an American target, thus making defense more difficult.

Most seeds do not come up overnight, although a few, like beans seem to. The seeds of most annual flowers take between a week and three weeks to germinate, so don't be in a rush to replant a row.

The precise length of time it takes seeds to sprout depends on many conditions such as air temperature of the soil and moisture in the soil. All of these must be just right.

Heavenly Blue is the most popular morning glory but there are many other varieties. Pearly Gates is a beautiful white, Scarlett O'Hara a bright rose-red.

Everybody loves a winner. The way Chevelle sales are booming right now is solid proof of that. And it's easy to see why when you look over the car.

Take that handsome Malibu Super Sport above. Its luxury features include smart curved side windows, foam-cushioned seats front and rear, full carpeting, back-up and glove box lights and more. All standard—no extra cost! A few quality features include electric windshield wipers, smooth Full Coil suspension ride, Delcotron generator and self-adjusting brakes. All standard—no extra cost!

Power? Try our smooth, spirited 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six. Or you can order the optional 140-hp Turbo-Thrift Six. Accessories? A full list to choose from. Trade-ins? Most liberal. So your payments will be comfortable as your new Chevelle will be! In fact when you drive it home there'll be two heroes in your driveway. And two winners.

PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and will all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. (Mark 12:30-31)

PRAYER: Most gracious Father, as we go about our daily tasks, we pray for Thy spirit to be in us, for Thou art love. Teach us to cultivate that love in our own hearts so that others may see Thy love, Thy compassion, expressed through us. In the spirit of Christ. Amen.

Armed Forces

FORT LEAVENWORTH, KAN. (AHTNC) -- Army National Guard Maj. Gen. Russell Boyt of 1323 Jobe St., Jefferson City, Mo., attended an officers refresher course at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., May 17-22.

The general is regularly assigned as assistant adjutant general in Headquarters, 35th Command, an Army National Guard unit in Jefferson City, Mo.

He is a graduate of Essex High School.

General Boyt's mother, Mrs. Marie Boyt, lives at 238 Matthews St., Dexter.

He is employed as assistant adjutant general by The Adjutant General in Jefferson City.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- Airman First Class Frederick L. Miles, a native of Independence, Mo., and a veteran of three years military service has been selected as the Second Air Force Maintenance Man of the Month.

Assigned to the 97th Armament and Electronics Squadron, Airman Miles is delegated duty as a radar navigation aids technician. He is responsible for flight line and shop maintenance of navigation aids equipment installed on B-52G and KC-135 aircraft.

According to Colonel George H. McKee, deputy commander for maintenance at the time, Airman Miles' nomination was "based primarily upon outstanding performance in maintaining tactical air navigation systems installed on assigned aircraft, and in determining and isolating problems in the system operation."

Prior to his enlistment in the Air Force in June 1952, he attended William Christman High School, Independence, Mo. Upon completion of basic military training at Lackland, AFB, Tex., he attended radar navigation school at Keesler AFB, Miss.

LIKES WIND IN FACE

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Norman Kleeman flies the most modern jet aircraft for a living. But for a hobby he pilots his own antique airplane, a Spartan Executive 7W, a single-engine plane built in 1938.

The American Airlines captain, who has more than a million miles to his flying credit, bought the ship two years ago and has spent much of his spare time rebuilding it. Now he wants to buy an open cockpit bi-plane. "There's more of a sensation flying in an open cockpit with the gushes of wind streaking across my face," he declares. "I even like to smell the exhaust."

Parents and friends of the students enjoyed the afternoon.

EXTRA SHOWER NO PROBLEM IN MOST HOMES

Many homeowners today install an extra shower in a bathroom, powder room, recreation room, mud room, attic or garage. To cut down on installation costs, they locate the added shower facility as near as possible to existing piping. Finding space is rarely a problem.

The usual size for a shower compartment is 36" X 36". An extra shower adds to the resale value of your home, and more important, gives your family increased convenience and livability.

Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Jackson Completed Hair Styling Course

Mrs. Violetta Reed and Mrs. Tina Jackson have completed a four week course in advanced hair styling under the direct supervision of Mr. Embry, color technician from New York.

The course consisted of color analysis, color application and corrective work.

Morehouse PTA Has Last Meet Of Year Monday

Officers elected for the new year are President -- Mrs. Jewel Scales; Vice President --Mrs. Beverly Freeman; Secretary -- Mrs. June Leek; Treasurer -- Mrs. James Hewitt.

Miss Janet Flier, Home Economics Teacher, furnished the program by showing slides of her trip abroad last summer. Refreshments of cookies, which the Home Economics Class baked, and coffee were served.

PTA Executive Committee Has Joint Meeting

On Monday, May 3, the final meeting of the Executive Committee for Southwest Elementary School met. These committees were the outgoing people for the school year of 1964-65 and the newly elected and appointed people for the coming year, along with their wives or husbands.

The group met at the school at 6:30 for a pot luck supper.

In attendance were approximately 35 people who enjoyed a delicious meal. The invocation was given by Everett Win. Following the meeting, Dr. John L. Doggett, the outgoing president, gave some closing remarks thanking the old officers and committees for their excellent cooperation. He introduced Lee Shell, the incoming president and together they read aloud the retiring individuals and the new P. T. A. members taking their places.

Parsley and chives are necessities in every kitchen for flavoring, for garnishing. If there's a small clear area outside your kitchen door, plant a few seeds of each of these useful vegetables and have them handy to harvest.

PHONY AS A THREE DOLLAR BILL?—A three dollar bill has been found along with other denominations—5, 10, 20, 50, and 100—at Fort Totten, N. Y. Two soldiers, Sp4 James E. McAtee, and Sp4 Kenneth R. Vitty found the money in a rusted box at the site of a Spanish-American War gun battery at Fort Totten. The money, issued by the Republic of Texas during the period 1838-1841, was signed by the Texas hero, Sam Houston, while president of the Republic. The finders are trying to determine the authenticity of the money.

Reactions Vary To Delaying Age Process

NEW YORK - A variety of reaction ranging from "great," to "contrary to nature," and "highly unlikely" came today from both young and old after a pathologist suggested that science might someday delay the aging process.

Dr. Robert R. Kohn, a pathologist at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, says "there's no theoretical reason why we should not be able to keep people as they are at age 20 to 30 for another 40 years."

"Assuming society would want it," added Kohn. He offered the theory that aging is a normal disease and conceivably susceptible to being inhibited by chemical or other means.

Some indicated they would want it, such as baseball catcher Joe Torre, 24, of the Milwaukee Braves, who said, "It would be great," and Harold Lloyd, a comedian who starred in the silent - picture era, who remarked, "I'm all for it."

Others indicated they would prefer to let nature take its own course.

Marilyn Wahl, 21, a Los Angeles airline stewardess, said: "I don't think I'd like it. There are rewards in growing older and maturing. There's pros and cons -- growing old with your children and enjoying some of the things they do. But there's something wonderful about maturing. Being twice as long, the 20-to-30 age bracket wouldn't be quite so enjoyable."

A Dallas lawyer who is approaching 80 said, "There is no need to speculate about remaining 20 to 30. That is contrary to nature, the Bible and the Lord's decree."

Ann Bittner, 47, a Chicago television assembly - line supervisor, and Dr. Bonnie Strickland, 26, dean of women at Emory University, reacted differently.

"I think people from 20 to 30 are dying faster than older folks or they soon will be," said Mrs. Bittner. "The reason is they live too fast. Bad diets and carelessness with their health in general puts them in bad shape. Why make more people get into bad shape by keeping them at a careless age?"

Dr. Strickland, one of the youngest women deans in the country, said prolonging life between the ages of 20 and 30 "would be wonderful -- if you were able to continually mature."

"Youth without wisdom and knowledge would have no advantage," she added.

Dr. John Knowles, 39, general director and physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital and lecturer at the Harvard Medical School, opined: "The process of aging and death is inexorable and inevitable."

Bill Ingram, 21, a Dallas college student, said he would like to stay 20 forever, but "some people can't cope with life and probably prefer death -- look at the suicides."

Ingram said he agreed with a statement by Dr. Bernice L. Neugarten, of the University of Chicago, who said: "The assumption is unproven that people would like to live longer than they now do -- or that they would be better off if they did."

Drs. Neugarten and Kohn made their comments Wednesday in Washington at a conference on research progress and trends in aging sponsored by the National Institutes of Health.

Kohn defined aging as "a normal biological process with onset sometime around maturity." He suggested it's primarily due to progressive changes in "collagen," a chemical occuring in the connective tissue outside the body's cells.

THOROUGH THIEF

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — A thief smashed the padlock on the Barney Gipson trailer house, went inside, pried open a drawer, took the car keys and used them to steal Gipson's 1964 automobile, which was in the driveway.

HONEST MAN

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — When a young man was testifying for the state after pleading guilty as a co-defendant in a burglary case, an attorney asked: "Do you consider yourself a professional burglar?" to which the witness answered quickly: "No, Sir! That's why I got caught."

Save Those Postcards

by Polly Cramer, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

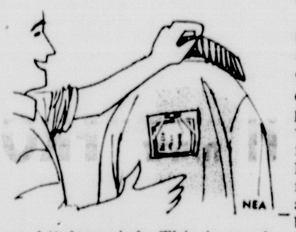
Polly

DEAR POLLY—I used to throw away the pretty postcards sent to me by friends who were in faraway places. Now I tape all these cards on the kitchen wall and keep them throughout the year. At the beginning of each new year I start all over again. Friends and even repairmen notice them and enjoy looking to see where the pictures are from and often will comment that they would like to go to a particular place. It is interesting to see how far they come from and who remembers me throughout a year. Friends will often write on their cards, "I hope mine will be the first card for the new year," or "Perhaps this is the last card for this year." I enjoy looking at them as I relax in the kitchen.—ALICE

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for all those male readers of your column. I misplaced the celluloid case in which I always inserted my hunting license so it could be worn for all to see. I put my license in a small plastic bag, fastened with a diaper pin and had a perfect case which exposed the hunting license in full view but protected from rain and snow. —DAN



DEAR POLLY—I store potatoes in the top drawer by my kitchen sink. This is much handier than standing on my head to dig them out from under the sink, which seems to be the standard storage place for potatoes.—CAROLE, "1955 Homemaker of Tomorrow" in Missouri

DEAR POLLY—Don't throw away that empty cylinder that was the center of a toilet tissue roll. It comes in mighty handy for use as a "writing reservoir." Clip all those easily misplaced ball point pens and mechanical pencils to either edge with the barrels inside or out.—FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY—Recently a member of my club left six children and a big house to be looked after when she went to the hospital for surgery. Instead of sending flowers, books or candy to our friend we club members set up a schedule and kept the house clean, windows washed and so on.—B. C.

'Don't Call Us Kids' Any More

BATTALION, South Viet Nam AP -- "Tell them not to call us kids; we don't feel like kids any more," a rangy 18-year-old Marine said.

The Leatherneck's platoon had just suffered one killed and four wounded at the hands of the Viet Cong in one action.

The Marines here are for the most part young in terms of age. But old timers feel that combat patrols against the Viet Cong have added maturity.

Lance Cpl. Marvin Shirey, 19, leads a three-man fire team. He is the only man of the original unit who has not been hit. One died with a bullet in his heart. The second was shot in the stomach.

The rangy, Jacksonville, Tex., Marine said, "It isn't bad luck, they were just in the wrong place at the wrong time. And we got some of them (the Viet Cong)."

Staff Sgt. Danny Thomas, Chester, Ill., 3rd Platoon's sergeant, commented: "The third oldest man in the platoon is 23. But since we got some action, the men have taken on a new look. They're older somehow.

Echo Company, which includes Shirley's and Thomas' Platoon, has counted one dead and nine wounded in initial U.S. Marine clashes with the Viet Cong.

Although well-indoctrinated on what to expect in Viet Nam, some of the Marines are finding it tough to adapt themselves to guerrilla warfare here. So far there has been no hard contact with a large Viet Cong force and casualties have come from snipers and booby traps. One Marine was shot in the side with an arrow.

"Everyone is teed off that we can't get them into the open and have it out," one private first class said.

Older Marines express pride in the way the newer men handle themselves. Echo Company 1st Sgt. William Baird, Corpus Christi, Tex., said:

"They are as good now as the Marines of 20 years ago. There's no way around it, you can't take it away from the young ones. You've got to admire them."

Baird is a veteran of World War II and Korea.

Birth Control And The Law

REPLY TO CHARGE

Welfare officials reply that they would be violating no law — they would merely be referring welfare recipients to local health departments and public hospitals, on a voluntary basis.

Here, too, the issue will probably be decided through political give and take from which a final policy will emerge.

A similar threat has been raised in Minnesota, where a Comstock-period law is being referred to as a legal bar to clinic referrals for welfare clients. A bill has been introduced in the Minnesota Legislature to repeal the ancient ban and clear the way for uncontested public-clinic programs.

Finally, in other states where no laws exist which might be interpreted as restrictive, permissive legislation is being sought which would specifically authorize officials to use public funds in support of family-planning clinics.

WATCHING THE COURTS

For all these reasons, the situation differs widely from state to state and is highly fluid. In the Connecticut case, a far-reaching decision by the U.S. Supreme Court could doom all restrictive legislation in time. An adverse decision would leave the picture blurred and make clinics dependent on political climates.

Family - planning advocates are therefore attending to their local problems while keeping a watchful eye on the Supreme Court.

FAIR WARNING

BE A BETTER DRIVER EVERY DAY!

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I enjoyed your definition of "class." And now will your please give us another definition? What is charm anyway?--Mg

Dear Mg: Charm walks on art gum soles. It is gentle. But it packs a wallop like a bag of wet cement.

Charm is a magical quality that defrosts, disarms, delights and fascinates. It is not a sudden attack of sweetness that can be turned off and on like a faucet. It is woven into the fabric of the personality like a silver thread. It glistens. It shines and it wears well. For months. For years. Forever.

Dear Ann Landers: I married at 25 and I've had three children in the last five years. I worked through all my pregnancies but I'm not complaining because I felt very good the whole time. (The last baby was almost born in the store.)

I want to quit work but my husband says we can't make it on one check and it's unfair of me to put the whole burden on him.

For the past two months I have kept a penny by penny record of what I have spent because I am working. After I paid the housekeeper, added up the taxis, lunches, buses, income tax on my salary, payroll deductions and the salary for a nurse when my youngest child was sick, I cleared an average of $72 a month. This does not include the cost of clothes I need because I work downtown.

Am I being unfair to my husband? What shall I do?--RASSLING WITH MY CONSCIENCE

Dear Rassling: Quit. Your young family needs you more than you need the $72 a month.

Mothers of pre - school children belong at home unless there is a good reason why they must go out and work. The only valid reasons are

(a) There is no other breadwinner in the family.

(b) A doctor has told the mother her kids are driving her nuts and she must get away from the house for their good as well as hers. These women should not have had children of course, but they did have them and a program of separation must be worked out.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's boss is the most proper, courteous, and soft-spoken person in the world--when he is sober. When he gets drunk (which is about once a week) he is profane, vulgar and rude, and he loves to call people and talk on the telephone regardless of the hour.

Last night at 2:00 a.m. he called from a bar and sang two choruses of "Wait 'til the Sun Shines Nellie." He then put a few buddies on the line--men he would not have been caught dead with if he had been sober. They sang some dirty songs my husband recognized from the army.

We resent having our sleep broken up this way, especially on Saturday night because we like to go to early mass on Sunday. My husband is afraid to talk to the boss about this for obvious reasons. I think he should. Please give us some advice.--BLOODSHOT EYES

Dear Eyes: Mentioning this to the boss won't accomplish a thing. Telephone drunks are incurable--unless they go off the sauce.

The telephone company can install a jack-type phone which can be plugged out, or a bell control which will shut off the bell at the flick of a lever. The cost is nominal, compared to what a night's sleep is worth to a family.

Do you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THEN AND NOW—Out of Mississippi in 1958 came a wholesome, freckle-faced youngster named Mary Ann Mobley. Her talent, personality and dazzling smile carried Mary Ann to the pinnacle of all beauty contest aspirants—Miss America 1959, at left. Now, seven years later, Mary Ann shows great promise as an actress. More beautiful these days, if possible, she appears more mature, right, with an acquired sultry-eyed look which is having the desired impact on film fans. Beneath the Hollywood facade, however, Mary Ann says: "I see the real me—freckles and all."

Now, tight supplies have hiked top prices for steers 13 per cent and for top-quality hogs 34 per cent — highest in years.

—Last fall's harvest of potatoes was poor in the Midwest and West because of a damaging frost. New potatoes aren't due on the market until the end of June and the last of the 1964 crop is running out, brokers report.

—An early winter freeze and rough spring weather— floods, tornados, drought —have cut into the fruit and vegetable crops.

—Many in the produce markets blame the government's decision to end the "bracero program," under which Mexican workers were brought into California to help harvest lettuce, tomatoes, asparagus, strawberries and other crops that have to be picked by hand. Acreage planted is down, as well as harvests, produce dealers say.

Steve D'Arrigo, a New York City produce dealer, says that there still are some vegetables that are lower — corn on the cob, broccoli, fresh peas and squash.

Some sample prices: Chicago —Potatoes 9-12 cents a pound compared with 7-8 cents last spring, lettuce 29 cents a head Boston — Lettuce 39, up 20 cents, cabbage 19, up 10, potatoes — 5 lb. — 65, up 16.

Ready to Soup Up Economy

NEW YORK — Both psychological and monetary weapons are being readied to ward off any letdown in Americans' confidence that prosperity is here to stay.

Government officials and agencies are now starting a chorus of warnings that people mustn't expect too much. They seek to prevent nervousness if the big upsurge in the early months of this year isn't duplicated in the next few months.

At the same time, new monetary stimulants for the economy are on order for this fall. One is the cut in excise taxes which Congress is pushing through speedily. Another is an increase in Social Security benefits this fall, just ahead of the rise in Social Security taxes Jan. 1.

The new money from the tax cut and the more generous payments to the growing number of retired is counted upon to boost consumer spending.

Government spending is going up, too. Some see more defense outlays in the making. Many of the antipoverty programs are ripe for expansion.

Federal debt is due for another rise. It is now $316 billion but the Treasury says it will be $326 billion a year from now. Wall Street regards that as inflationary, however Washington may view it. Stock market observers say prices went up as a result of the Treasury's request that the debt limit be raised.

Business plans for expansion spending are revised upward steadily.

All these should help to insulate public confidence from any shock if there's a downturn this summer in economic statistics, or any slowdown in the rate of growth.

Stress is laid on the signs that 1965 as a whole is going to be a prosperous year, even if the rate of growth varies from quarter to quarter, as it usually does in any year.

Government agencies are also stressing that the big spurt ahead in the first quarter of 1965 was both unexpected and due in part to unusual circumstances. Always cited are the catch-up in auto sales after shortages due to last fall's strikes, and the build-up in steel inventories as a hedge against a possible strike in that key industry.

But even if some letdown develops in both industries, auto makers and steel producers alike are still expecting 1965's production and sales to set new highs for any one year.

A year ago government and private economists were worried lest there be a turndown in the economy in the last half of 1965. Now few indeed expect that. What they're talking about now is further growth, but a less breathless one.

FOLLOWED INSTRUCTIONS

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP) — Three passengers assured David Hagar, cab driver, they would tell him which way to go in the predawn darkness when it was raining so hard that Hagar's windshield wiper was doing little good.

At one corner, a passenger said to Hagar "turn here." Hagar did. Pulled out of the water, he learned he had driven his cab down Cutting Boulevard's boat ramp into the bay. The passengers sloshed ashore without paying.

Escapes Bedroom Scenes

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

Rock Hudson continues his escape from the bedroom farces. His next film will be "Seconds," which he describes as a horror picture. But not the Vincent Price variety, it should be added; this one will stress psycholigical horror. It is being directed by John Frankenheimer, the young suspense master who made "The Manchurian Candidates" and "Seven Days in May."

Carroll Baker wasn't too exhausted after finishing "Harlow" to toss a wing-ding party at her house. Between dances she commented that the film was the toughest she has tackled. And not only because of the virus that kept her out of the peiture for two weeks.

"It was the first time I have done a picture that was glamorous and heavily dramatic," she said. "That meant two or three hours of being made up and then going into emotional scenes all day."

Carroll's reward for her labors: Three month's rest on the Riviera. Harlow never had it so good.

There will be a Fonda reunion on the sands of Malibu this summer. Jane has a house at the beach while she's shooting "The Chase." When papa Henry finishes "Battle of the Bulge" in Spain, he'll take a house a few doors away that Jane rented for him. He'll bring his 10-year-old daughter, whom Jane hasn't seen in two years. Also, son Peter and his family will be nearby.

Gene Kelly hopes to direct a new "Beau Geste" as his next film; he has done spectacular musicals but never a real spectacle. The project is not in the hands of the Universal bigwigs, who are deciding whether to make the $6 million outlay.

"I want to do it right or not at all," said Gene. "That means shooting it in the Sahara with thousands of Arabs."

Do you know the secrets of growing beautiful morning glories? There are two. Nick the seeds with a file before you plant them and select a place with poor soil to do the planting. Good, rich soil makes the plants grow vine and leaf rather than produce flowers.

matter of fact

The process of printing is much older than the 15th century European development of Gutenberg's time. Babylonians used seals to print their signatures on wet clay tablets. Chinese printed with wooden blocks and passed the art on to the Japanese, who in 770 A.D. were supposed to have printed 1,000,000 copies of a prayer charm. The oldest block book was printed by Buddhists in China in 868 A.D.

Food Costs Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — It is costing more to fill the family dinner plate with meat, potatoes and fresh vegetables.

An Associated Press survey indicates that the prices will keep rising a while longer.

Beef and pork have risen sharply this spring, after more than a year of bargain levels for housewives.

Good stores generally report markedly higher prices for vegetables, too — as much as 50 per cent higher in Kansas City.

"Highest all-time prices," says Peter Asta of Asta Produce Co. in Kansas City.

"Never saw prices so high and quality so poor," says Steve Hatton, Kansas City manager for George De Paoli Co., another produce wholesaler.

Most food stores surveyed put their increase at about 15 per cent higher than last spring. It varies by region.

The stores report that the biggest increases are for iceberg or head lettuce, tomatoes, cabbage and potatoes — all big-volume vegetables.

"Highest that I can remember in 25 years in the business," says Larry Eisenhower, president of L. A. Withington & Co., New York potato brokers.

Behind the high cost of eating are a number of factors:

—Meat packers are paying more for livestock. Last year, when prices were low, cattlemen cut back on herds; pig growers sold off breeder stock.

Fog Settles Over Dominican Republic

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON -- Fog has settled over the Dominican Republic where the Johnson administration has tried to end the revolution and so far has failed.

First, this brief background on a courtry which lived 31 years under a dictator and now has two "presidents":

From 1930 until his assassination in 1961 Gen. Rafael Trujillo was absolute dictator while those around him got rich in a land of poverty. There were, of course, no real political parties.

After his death the Dominicans struggled through four governments and then, in a free election, chose Juan Bosch president. He lasted seven months until he was thrown out in 1963 by the military which scrapped the constitution and set up a five-man junta.

Although the United States recognized this junta, it lacked mass support and was heaved out in the revolution which began April 24. The military, defying the rebels, quickly set up another junta.

Skipping over the intervening weeks, this is the picture now:

There are two warring factions, the five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera as "president" and the rebels headed by Col. Francisco Caamano Deno as "president."

On April 28 President Johnson sent in Marines. At first he said they were there to save American lives; later he said they were there to prevent a take-over by Communists who, he explained, controlled the revolution.

Then on the weekend of May 15 he sent in his special adviser, McGeorge Bundy, a former Harvard dean, as his trouble-shooter. Bundy returned to Washington Wednesday after 10 days in the Dominican Republic. He hadn't solved anything.

What he tried to do was get both sides to agree to a coalition government. To do this, the United States wanted the two leaders, Imbert and Caamano, to step down. But Imbert refused. This was a blow to Bundy and Johnson.

The United States had not only supported the Imbert junta--some say it was created at U. S. suggestion--but two weeks ago was considering recognizing it as the government.

But Imbert reportedly lacked mass support and a week ago U. S. policy shifted support away from Imbert, urging that he and Caamano both step aside.

Caamano may have undergone a change, too. In the past he had said he would step down but Wednesday he told newsmen no agreement had been reached on forming a coalition although, he said, his talks with Bundy had helped chances for a solution.

When Bundy came home he left the task of working out an agreement with both sides to Dr. Jose Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States.

Meanwhile, the OAS had voted 14 to 4 to send in a Latin-American peacekeeping force with troops from five countries, about 2,000 in all. As they move in the United States will withdraw about 1,700 of its 21,000 troops.

The U. S. ambassador to the OAS, Ellsworth Bunker, seems to see great things in store for the idea of an OAS peacekeeping force. This was the first time Latin-American countries had ever agreed to anything like this.

He called it a "historic action," hoped it would become a precedent for a permanent hemisphere peacekeeping force. But there's a good chance it won't and for several reasons.

Not all Latin-American countries are happy with the U. S. intervention in this case and all of them, along with the United States, 17 years ago agreed in the OAS charter that no state or group of states has a right to intervene in any American state's internal problems for any reason.

And now the Johnson administration is beginning to soft-pedal the idea that the Communists, as Johnson said May 2, control the revolution and even seems to be making its own doublecheck on its information about the Reds.

The U. S. Central Intelligence Agency has the job of checking on things like Communists in other countries and Johnson presumably relied on CIA information when he talked of Red control in the Dominican Republic.

But now the White House has in effect acknowledged the FBI is in there checking, too.

Movement Of Oversized loads To Be Prohibited

Missouri highways won't be crowded with oversized vehicles during Memorial Day and six other holidays this year, the Missouri State Highway Department announced today.

Chief Engineer M. J. Snider said movement of overdimension and overweight loads under special permits will be prohibited on four weekend holidays and three single holidays this year.

This policy, aimed at making highways safer for the general public on heavy-traffic holidays, is not a new one, Snider pointed out. The dates are announced to permit advance planning for movement of such loads.

The holidays covered this year by the policy are:

Memorial Day--From 12 noon May 28 until the morning of June 1.

Fourth of July--From 12 noon July 2 until the morning of July 6.

Labor Day -- From 12 noon September 3 until the morning of September 7.

Columbus Day--October 12.

Veterans' Day--November 17.

Thanksgiving--November 25.

Christmas -- From 12 noon December 24 until the morning of December 27.

The policy does not prohibit moving loads that are only overheight up to 13 1/2 feet.

The Department issues special permits for oversized loads through its Division of Maintenance.

LONDON, Ky. (AP) —A burglar who broke into Raymond Asher's store and stole some phonograph records must have been surprised when he opened the package. All the recording were of the same selection: "Thou Shalt Not Steal."

By the time the lazy man gets up enough gumption to do a job, it is often too late.

Even if your Aunt Maude leaves you $3,000,000, can you actually do without a Realtor® when you buy your next home?

Perhaps. But just be sure you have an Aunt Maude.

Aunt Maude

If you don't have money to burn, you'll need the help and assurance that a Realtor can give when you buy a home.

Notice the capital R? A Realtor is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local board and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. Only he can display this seal.

Incidentally, we know an Aunt Maude. She got all that money by buying her property wisely. Through a Realtor.

Lightest Mexico

By John Abney

Mexico City--So there we sat exchanging observations and opinions over some free coffee with Mr. Jim Shirley at his Shirley Courts.

Mr. Shirley put his motel in the downtown section where the tourists who came driving into the city almost run through his front gate before they realize it. (He keeps the back gate locked.)

U. S. style food, milk shakes and honest hamburgers in his excellent restaurant which has a combination of modern and African decoration.

And when I walked into the restaurant I almost fainted for there stood a monstrous African lion with a hungry look on his face. Gave me the feeling of being invited to dinner as the main course.

"Don't give him a second thought," Mr. Shirley said. "He is stuffed and has been dead a long time."

Mr. Shirley shot the lion, along with some rhinos and other creatures, in Africa during one of his hunting safaris. There is a rhino head mounted over the door and you can hang your hat on his nose horn if you are around eight feet tall.

So the conversation drifted from Mr. Shirley's stuffed zoo in the restaurant to flying. He being a red-blooded aviation addict who flits about the nation in his own plane.

It has been reported by several reliable bootblacks that Mr. Shirley will leave a board meeting and discuss flying machines with any air-minded gentleman who happens to wander in.

"Do you know Mexico is the greatest country in the world for air travel?" he said. "There are scads of people who fly down to see the country by light plane."

Then he sent for some charts and navigation equipment and said just look at all the landing strips around here. Georgeous, secluded places that can be reached only by air.

And he navigated with a ruler from one chart to another and said here you have beautiful mountain country to fly over and over here are high plateaus. Up here is a lake with marvelous trout fishing and then you have the jungle country and you can fly to all these villages along the coast that you can't get to by car.

And I turned the chair a little so this stuffed lion could not see me very well. Read a book once that said you should never let beasts sense you are nervous about them.

"Tell me about your safaris to Africa," I said.

"Great country," Mr. Shirley answered, "but no comparison to Mexico for flying."

"Were you nervous when the rhino came charging out of the bush and you popped him?"

And Mr. Shirley said, "Well, I potted several rhinos and they come at you like a jet airplane. You know we have a flying club here."

"Gee, imagine shooting a rhino," I said. "Did you see any dragons?"

So Mr. Shirley got a gleam in his eye. "The Executive Aviators Club, right by the Beechcraft Company. You know where that is."

And I said, "I understand some types of antelopes can jump forty feet."

"The club is really good," said Mr. Shirley. "We have a Link Trainer, a good library, maps, bar, hi-fi, dues are only four bucks a month and we have a chess table."

"You mean they play chess there?"

"Certainly," he said, getting out an application form. "And flying is the natural way for a guy like you to get around and cover the whole country. You write about everything."

It ended up that I am now a member of The Executive Aviators Club and Mr. Shirley is talking me into getting a flying machine so I can sail around the skies to exotic, new places.

Turned out to be the most expensive cup of free coffee I ever had.

Designer of the U.S. "Mercury" dime was A. A. Weinman. His design first appeared in 1916 and lasted until 1945.

GAS WARFARE

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) —Lake Country Sheriff Willis McCall has received three complaints of bee hives being gassed.

The sheriff's office suspects a beekeepers' feud. Since the beekeepers' involved have leases or permissions from the owners to use the orange groves, the sheriff's office thinks that other beekeepers may resent bees other than their own using the available pollen.

Those responsible for the bee gassing can be held liable for prosecution for trespass and malicious destruction of private property and possibly even for "entering a grove at night with intent to commit an illegal act," a felony under Florida statutes punishable by imprisonment from two to 10 years.

THAYER'S SWORD—Cadet Thomas D. MacVicar (Euclid, Ohio) and Miss Ann Gerhart (Arlington, Va.) examine a sword belonging to Colonel Sylvanus Thayer when he was Superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, 1817-1833. The sword is part of a collection in the museum at West Point. Primarily through the efforts of Thayer, the Academy became the Nation's first engineering school. Sylvanus Thayer has been nominated to New York University's Hall of Fame for Great Americans as "Father of Technology in the United States."

Title Without Money Isn't Worth Much

WINCHESTER, Va. - A retired paperhanger says he'll pass up one of the oldest titles in British aristocracy because he "hasn't any money and can't swim."

Newlon D'Arcy Wyvill, 69, expressed little surprise when told that Debrett's, Britian's directory of the aristocracy, indicated he is the rightful owner of the country's 10th most senior baronetcy.

"To me it don't mean a thing," the small camera - shy Wyvill said. "We've known the title was over there. If there were a few million dollars attached to it, I'd be very happy. Outside of that, no."

"Naturally I'm very proud," he said. It wouldn't be worth the time and expense to pursue claim to the title because I don't think there's any money over there," he said.

Debrett's, in its latest edition Wednesday, said that Wyvill is a descendant of Sir Richard Wyvill. Sir Richard was slain at the Battle of Towton Field in 1461 during the Wars of the Roses.

Sir Marmaduke Wyvill of Constable Burto, Yorkshire, was the last recognized baronet of the Wyvill Family, Debrett's said. He died in 1774, survived by a cousin whose father emigrated to America during the reign of George II.

Debrett's said its researchers had traced this family to Newlon D'Arcy Wyvill.

Wyvill said his grandfather and his father were interested in the title, but his grandfather died before he could travel to England and his father "was just about like me. He didn't have any money and he couldn't swim.

Wyvill said he hadn't given much thought to how it would feel to be a baronet.

"I don't know," he said. "I never did have anyone wait on me. I've done all my work myself." He could call himself Sir Newlon if he proved his right to the title.

Wyvill said he had conflicting information on whether any property is involved in the baronetcy.

164 Junior High Grads At Anniston

ANNISTON -- Charleston R-1 Junior High School, Anniston Division, will graduate 164 students from eighth grade on May 27th, at 8:00 p.m. in the Anniston gymnasium. Rev. H. W. Chaney of First Baptist Church in Charleston will be the main speaker.

Music will be furnished by eighteen graduating eighth-graders accompanied by the Junior High music teacher, Mrs. Ruthe Blackwell.

Earl L. Williams, principal, will give remarks, present the American Legion's eighth grade award and present the class to Mr. William Hodges, the high school principal. Harry Sutherland, president of the school board, will present the diplomas.

Diplomat Grew Dies

MANCHESTER, Mass. (AP) —Joseph Clark Grew, 84, a veteran career diplomat who was U.S. ambassador to Japan in the period preceding Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941, died Tuesday.

20 Planes Bomb Targets

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Twenty U.S. and Vietnamese war planes rained down 55 tons of bombs on a North Vietnamese army barracks and supply area 220 miles south of Hanoi today, a military spokesman announced.

Pilots reported 65 per cent of their targets destroyed and heavy damage to the remainder of the Ben Quang barracks-supply area.

A U.S. Navy pilot was believed killed when Communist ground fire brought down his F8 Crusader during another strike. Two U.S. Army men were killed the day before in ground clashes. The total of U.S. combat deaths in Viet Nam rose to 389.

Four Navy Skyraiders from the carrier Midway attacked a ferry and destroyed a PT boat on the Song Ca River, 140 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman reported.

Twelve other U.S. planes damaged six wooden bridges 200 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

The spokesman also reported that planes from the carriers Oriskany and Bon Homme Richard dropped 100 tons of bombs and destroyed or damaged more than 100 buildings in strikes Wednesday against Viet Cong targets in South Viet Nam.

Lynn Twitty, superintendent of schools, will formally present the class of 1965 to the board of education. He will be introduced by his daughter, Emily Twitty.

Then comes the presentation of diplomas by L. M. Standley, president of the board of education, who will be assisted by Roger Sherman, assistant principal. They are to be introduced by James Watson.

James Crenshaw will give the benediction. The sophomore band will close the ceremonies with the playing of "Red and Black."

Senate

Two pay raise measures were passed. One would raise salaries of state Tax Commission members from $8,000 a year to $14,000. Another would increase pay of state Highway Department officials.

The latter bill would result in salary boosts for other employes of the department as well, supporters said.

The House gave first round approval to a proposed constitutional change to let voters decide whether household goods should be exempt from personal property tax.

It was advanced on a 73-57 vote — not enough for final house passage.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1½ inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on 7 inch soil cement base, 24 feet wide on South Ingram Street from Malone Avenue to a point approximately 1350 feet south in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $2.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 21st day of May, 1965. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

"SLIGHT DIFFERENCE"

When a reporter on a small southwestern newspaper filed a story with his editor, telling about a disastrous ranch fire in the area, he reported an incredible loss of 2025 cows. The editor, unable to accept the figure, called the rancher.

"You the rancher who had the fire that wiped out 2025 cows?" inquired the editor.

"Yeth" answered the rancher.

Turning back to the story, the editor changed the copy to read: "two sows and twenty-five cows."

EAST PRAIRIE -- Graduation exercises for 92 high school seniors will be held Friday at 7:45 p.m., with the address, "Years of Tomorrow" to be given by Ray Roberts, Jefferson City, director of curriculum, state department of education.

The processional, "Pomp and Circumstance," will be played by Marilyn Royal, followed by the invocation by Pam Schneider, valedictorian. Musical numbers will include, "The Hall of Ivy" by the senior music ensemble, with Raylene Menton as accompanist. A piano duet, "You'll Never Walk Alone" by Raylene Melton and Connie Royal.

Introduction of the speaker will be made by Ray Melton, superintendent.

Principal Robert Grassle will make a presentation of the class, following by the awarding of the diplomas by James E. Blackman, president of the school board.

The benediction will be given by Nickie Ashlock, class salutatorian, followed by the recessional.

Chickens are the most widely distributed of domestic fowl and probably the most popular of all animals kept as food producers. They were known in China as early as 1400 B.C. The Romans found them well established in Gaul and among the Germans. Most likely, they did not reach the western hemisphere until Christopher Columbus brought them to the New World on his second voyage in 1493.

Highway Maintenance Budget Up

$235,000 Due To Heavy Snows

Temperatures may be in the mid-summer range now, but do you remember those howling snowstorms that blew into Missouri during February and March?

Well, they were so costly in terms of keeping state highways open to traffic that the Missouri State Highway Commission has had to add an additional $235,000 to the Division of Maintenance budget to have enough money on hand to take care of any snow and ice storms that may develop early next winter.

The Division of Maintenance started the calendar year with $3,000,000 budgeted for snow and ice control for 1965. However, about $1,983,000 was spent in only the first three months, due mainly to the heavy snows of last winter.

With the additional $235,000 appropriated by the Commission, the Division of Maintenance now has a balance of $1,252,000 in snow and ice control funds for the remainder of 1965. This is the minimum believed needed to prepare for and combat any storms that may hit in November and December.

A sizable shore of the remaining funds will be used to purchase abrasives and chemicals for stockpiling and to buy new equipment long before next winter begins.

Snow and ice control expenditures during January, February and March by state highway districts were:

District 1. St. Jospeh, $324,485; District 2, Macon, $168,876; District 3, Hannibal, $189,903; District 4, Kansas City, $384,790; District 5, Jefferson City, $208,200; District 6, Kirkwood, $308,934; District 7, Joplin, $117,098; District 8, Springfield, $123,738; District 9, Willow Springs, $69,721; and District 10, Sikeston, $87,363.

The cost of snow and ice control operations on Missouri's state highways has mounted steadily in recent years even when considering that some winters are more severe than others. For example, only $1,390,000 was spent in all of 1957.

The increased costs are credited mainly to the opening of Interstate highways with their dual lane divided pavements and numerous ramps, the oil surfacing of former gravel roads which then require more winter maintenance because of the hard surface and the fact that the public wants more extensive snow and ice control due to heavier dependence on motor vehicle travel.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 27, the 147th day of 1965. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1668, three men—William Turner, Thomas Gold and John Farnum—were exiled into the wilderness by the Massachusetts General Assembly because they were Baptists. Religious intolerance was common in Colonial America until the adoption of the Constitution with its Bill of Rights.

On this date

In 1819, Julia Ward Howe, the author of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," poet and reformer, was born in New York City.

In 1929, Charles Lindbergh and Anne Morrow were married in Englewood, N.J.

The 1935, the Supreme Court ruled the National Industrial Recovery Act unconstitutional, ending the effort to regulate industry by codes.

Ten years ago—An Indonesian commission returned a verdict of sabotage in the crash of a Constellation plane in the South China Sea. Of 15 persons aboard, 12 were killed.

Five years ago—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened secret hearings on events causing the collapse of the Paris summit conference.

Squire Election Process Begins

JEFFERSON CITY -- The process of electing five new members of the Missouri Academy of Squires began today with the appointment of the nominating committee for 1965. Governor Warren E. Hearnes, automatically a member of the academy by virtue of his office, and former Governor John M. Dalton are ex-officio members of the committee, with Governor Hearnes as chairman. The other two members appointed by Dalton, are Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and Tilghman R. Cloud, deputy secretary of state.

Any Missourian can suggest a candidate for squiredoom to the committee. A summary of the candidate's qualifications, not to exceed 100 words, must accompany each nomination.

The nominating committee will narrow the field to 15 names and the final five will be elected by vote of the academy, whose membership now totals 50, with the ceiling set at an eventual 100.

The late Gov. James T. Blair, Jr., founded the academy in 1960 to "recognize and honor Missourians for lasting contributions to community, state or nation."

matter of fact

About half of the 2,600,000,000 acres of cultivated land in the world is used in the production of cereals which provide 80 per cent of the food calories produced. Two-fifths of this cereal acreage is used for wheat production. There are more pounds of wheat produced than of rice, but more people use rice as their chief food. Wheat has been grown before or at least since recorded history.

Living Costs Leap

WASHINGTON AP -- Living costs rose three-tenths of one per cent in April, the biggest monthly jump since last July, the Labor Department reported today.

Increases in the cost of food, clothing, transportation and medical care boosted the consumer price index to 109.3, a new high.

This figure means that in April it cost $10.93 to purchase typical goods that cost $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

The increase was the largest for April since 1960.

Hearing In Final Stage

CHICAGO (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities moved its hearing on communism in Illinois into its final stage today. Witnesses refused to answer questions and 12 persons were ejected in Wednesday's stormy session.

The committee heard a second witness testify to being a Communist party member while spying for the FBI.

Federal marshals charged the persons ejected from the hearing room with impeding a committee of Congress in exercise of its proper process of investigation. Eight were released on $100 bond and the others were held in jail.

One witness Milton Cohen, walked out. A committee member said he will urge the full committee to charge Cohen with contempt.

Cohen was one of six persons named by a witness as being active in the Communist party.

Traffic Jam On Autobahn

HELMSTEDT, Germany (AP) —Construction work on the East German side of the Iron Curtain autobahn crossing to Berlin here caused a traffic jam today, West German customs police reported.

Cars were backed up as much as a mile, police said, causing about an hour's wait in front of the border.

At noon, customs officials reported traffic was flowing normally.

Collision On Main

A two car accident was reported to Police yesterday at 8:05 p.m. that took place in front of Lamberts Cafe on North Main Street:

John Lamb, St. Louis, was attempting to pass William McArthur, Route four, pulled in too quickly and he hit McArthur's car in a front fender.

There were no injuries and minor damage.

THREE EMERGENCIES

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital yesterday.

Eight States Hammered by Tornadoes, Thunderstorms

Masons Of District Will Meet June 4

Bert W. Casselman of Kansas City, Missouri, grand high priest of the Royal Arch Masons, will be in Sikeston June 4 at 7:30 p.m. for a special convocation with Royal Arch Masons of the 15th district. He will talk about a planned charity program and other lodge business at the meeting in the Masonic Temple.

District 15 is composed of Cape Girardeau, Charleston, Poplar Bluff, Kennett, Portageville and Sikeston. Representatives from these six chapters will be present and other grand officers.

Senate Votes To Save

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate Wednesday passed a bill designed to save money instead of spend it.

A "Little Hoover" commission recommendation, it would consolidate date-processing, duplicating, mailing, forms control and records management under one office.

State agencies now must maintain their own equipment and personnel to perform these services. Putting them under an administrative services section in the office of the state comptroller would save the state about $1 million a year, proponents said.

Also passed by the Senate and sent to the House was a bill to create the job of administrative hearing commissioner. An attorney would be named to conduct hearings for the state's licensing boards.

Another would create the job of assistant director of corrections.

Humphrey, 54, May Not Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey turns 54 today and in honor of the occasion he may not make a speech.

This in itself, for a man who has been making two or three a day, would set the date apart. But, of course, he may change his mind.

The Humphrey calendar calls for a staff party and attendance by the vice president and Mrs. Humphrey at a White House reception for congressional assistants.

He was born 54 years ago — on May 27, 1911, in Wallace, S.D.

Graduation Ceremonies To Be Held Tomorrow Night

Tomorrow night there will be 254 high school seniors together as students for the last time. One hundred and thirty-one boys will graduate and 123 girls. Junior girls will be the ushers, but the seniors otherwise will play a prominent role in the ceremonies.

The program will begin with the band playing "Pomp and Circumstance" as the processional. Douglas Marsh, Class President, will preside.

Dale Stauffer will give the invocation and will be followed by the senior choir singing "Be With Us, Lord," the music for which was written by Bob Williamson, class of 1962 and the words by Patty Lewis, a senior in 1966.

Following will be the four senior class speakers introduced by Diane Nunnelee. The speeches will come under the title of "Let Us Continue" to which there will be four parts: "To Laugh" by Becky Turner; "To Love" by Katie Blanton; "To Lead" by Clayton Vandivort; and "To Learn" by John Struwe.

After the speakers, the concert choir will sing "The March of Freedom," accompanied by Judy Matthews.

Honors and awards will be presented by Harold Kiehne, school principal, who will be introduced by Charles Ancell.

It is at this point that the valedictorian and salutatorian will be announced.

To File Motion For Examination Of Thompson

BENTON -- The arraignment of Tommie Lee Thompson, charged with the murder of Mrs. Thelma R. Lewis, Feb. 1, was held in circuit court in Benton today at 11:30 a.m., before Judge Marshall Craig.

The defense attorneys, Thomas Arnold, Benton, and Dwight Crader, Sikeston, asked for an additional few days in which to file a motion for an examination of the defendant, which was granted in open court.

Church Plans Draw Fire

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Whisps of friction trailed today in the wake of the United Presbyterian General Assembly. But it emanated mostly from the sidelines.

Generally, the representative delegates displayed a strong concensus in mapping new church plans and policies, despite eddies of debate.

"Unity in Jesus Christ does not mean uniformity," commented the Rev. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, chief administrator of the church. "We can differ within the fellowship without it being a prelude to schism."

As the denomination's week-long legislative meeting closed Wednesday, however, fireworks came from outside it in a volley of criticism by the Rev. Dr. Edward T. Stimson, of Omaha, Neb., at current denominational trends.

He protested a new confession of faith, given preliminary backing by the assembly, and said it could lead to "loss of our liberties and the introduction of monarchical governmental forms" because it sanctions variety in them.

The new confession, the first restatement of beliefs for English - speaking Presbyterians since the Westminster Confession three centuries ago, remains subject to a two-year, churchwide process of discussion and possible changes before final action on it.

It was expected to unleash a ferment of theological self-examination in the 3½-million-member church.

Two Killed, Damage In Midlands

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes and thunderstorms hammered eight states in the nation's midsection Wednesday, killing at least two persons, injuring several others and causing extensive property damage.

A lineman was killed in Elkhart, Ind., when strong winds blew a dangling power line against him. He was repairing damage from the Palm Sunday tornadoes. One person was killed by lightning in Sylvania, Ohio, a Toledo suburb.

The Chicago metropolitan area was lashed by violent weather including five tornadoes. At least 11 persons suffered injuries. Twisters hit some populous areas. No deaths were reported.

In suburban Skokie, high winds ripped parts of a roof from a junior high school while 850 pupils and 50 teachers huddled in the hallways. None was injured.

At O'Hare International Airport on Chicago's northwest side, four persons were injured when a twister blew out a glass window.

Two planes were damaged and total damage to the terminal was placed at $500,000.

A tornado swept across Oklahoma City at tree-top level and damaged several buildings and airplanes. It destroyed the Church of God and Christ.

Strong winds raked several areas between West Plains and Potosi in south-central and southeast Missouri.

There was widespread damage, but no casualties were reported.

The roof was ripped from the high school gymnasium at Bakersfield, about 25 miles southwest of West Plains. The pupils were eating in the cafeteria, a separate building.

Power was knocked out in West Plains, car ports were torn from houses, a small grocery store was damaged by a falling tree and part of the roof was blown off at the Farmers Exchange Cooperative, a grocery and feed store.

Wind and heavy rain blew down the screen at a drive-in movie in the Ironton-Arcadia area. Trees were uprooted and power lines were torn down.

Similar damage was reported at Salem, Piedmont and Fredericktown. Fallen trees blocked U.S. 67 at Mine La Motte for a time.

Bloomfield Asks $110,000

BLOOMFIELD -- A request for $110,000 to build a golf course, tennis court and swimming pool will be sent to the Farmers Home Administration by the Crowley's Ridge Recreational Center, Inc. J. C. Newcomer, secretary of the corporation, said the application for the loan also contains specifications for the installations, a financial report of the organization and other information required by the FHA.

The estimated costs of the nine-hole golf course is $35,000, for the swimming pool and bath house $35,000, for the tennis courts $2,500, and for the club house $30,000. The request also includes the estimated annual cost of operating the center, including amortization of the federal loan for the first year. The total of these two estimates is $7,500.

The application also includes a statement that the corporation attempted to obtain loans for the construction of the recreation center from area banks but was unsuccessful.

A list of towns under 2500 that will be served by the center were submitted along with the population of each. They are Advance, Dudley, Essex, Gray Ridge, Bell City, Puxico, and Bernie. However membership will include Dexter residents although it has a population over 2500.

D. L. Bess, president of the organization, reported yesterday that the membership has increased to 99.

Rebels Rake U.S. Tactics

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — Leaders of the Dominican rebel congress sent a message to non-Communist nations around the world Wednesday night accusing the United States of coercion in Dominican internal affairs.

The attack on the U.S. intervention in the Dominican crisis was signed by Arevalo Cedeno Valdez and Anibal Campagna as presidents of the Chamber of Deputies and Senate dissolved by the overthrow of President Juan Bosch in 1963.

Sent to parliamentary leaders in the Western Hemisphere, Europe, the Middle East and Asia, the message asked for support of the "free and democratic parliaments" of the world. It did not go to Cuba, Haiti, the Soviet Union or Red China.

Police Arrest Two Persons

Police reports show two arrests during the past 24 hours: Marvin Arnold, Sikeston, charged with being under the influence of liquor; and Gladys Renner, 204 Tanner, was charged with careless and imprudent driving and failure to yield the right of way.

LENNIE O. WHITWORTH of Buchmueller Whitworth Associates was installed as secretary of the Missouri Society of Professional Engineers at the group's annual meeting in Rolla.

Plot Charged In Queen's Trip

BERLIN (AP) —Queen Elizabeth II flew 110 miles behind the Iron Curtain today to West Berlin. East Germany claimed that West German agents were planning "terrorist attacks" on the Berlin wall during her 5½-hour visit.

The queen's 22-mile route through the city took her past the barbed wire-topped wall, but there were no plans for her to stop at it. British officials said this was done to spare her any anti-Western posters such as the East Germans put up for President Kennedy's visit to the wall in June 1963.

Heavy Burden In War Scars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of South Vietnamese are so badly disfigured by gunshot and burn wounds they'll never be able to lead useful lives, says an American plastic surgeon who recently returned from the stricken land.

Only four Vietnamese plastic surgeons are available in that country of 14 million people, a severe shortage that represents a national tragedy, said Dr. Richard B. Stark, chief of plastic surgery at St. Luke's Hospital, New York.

Stark returned recently from Saigon after spending a month training and assisting the four Vietnamese plastic surgeons who face, he said, a staggering task of treating casualty cases that includes civilians and soldiers. Stark was an emissary of MEDICO, a nongovernmental medical group that provides aid in underprivileged areas of the world.

"Many of them (the victims) need 40 to 50 operations in order to be salvaged," said the doctor in a report to MEDICO.

Sikeston residents who do not receive their Daily Standard by 5 p.m. call GR 1-1137 between 5 and 5:45 p.m. and the paper will be delivered by 6 p.m.

Housewives Lose Weight Operating Garbage Truck

Iva Bennett, 30, and her sister, Dorothy Chase, 42, have been operating a garbage and rubbish pickup service in this southwest Michigan town of 1,100 since last fall.

When they started Mrs. Chase weighed 176 pounds.

"Now I'm down to 159 and Iva went from 185 in September to 175 now," said Mrs. Chase.

Three years ago Mrs. Chase and her husband, Harold, took over Charles Miller's refuse route while he was hospitalized.

"We told him that if the time ever came when he wanted to get rid of it, we'd take it," says Mrs. Chase. The time came.

The project includes yardwork, hauling sand and gravel, moving, housecleaning — or what have you.

The garbage route is the sisters' project, but Chase has volunteered for heavy lifting.

Piedmont Woman Killed By Car

The highway patrol reported the death of Mrs. Ida Bell O'Bannon, 87, of Piedmont, who was fatally injured while walking along Highway 49, one mile north of Piedmont, at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday. The accident occurred when she turned to cross the highway and walked into the path of a car driven by Albert B. Ruble, 17, Piedmont.

Living Costs Leap

WASHINGTON AP -- Living costs rose three-tenths of one per cent in April, the biggest monthly jump since last July, the Labor Department reported today.

Increases in the cost of food, clothing, transportation and medical care boosted the consumer price index to 109.3, a new high.

This figure means that in April it cost $10.93 to purchase typical goods that cost $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

The increase was the largest for April since 1960.

Hearing In Final Stage

CHICAGO (AP) — The House Committee on Un-American Activities moved its hearing on communism in Illinois into its final stage today. Witnesses refused to answer questions and 12 persons were ejected in Wednesday's stormy session.

Federal marshals charged the persons ejected from the hearing room with impeding a committee of Congress in exercise of its proper process of investigation. Eight were released on $100 bond and the others were held in jail.

One witness Milton Cohen, walked out. A committee member said he will urge the full committee to charge Cohen with contempt.

Cohen was one of six persons named by a witness as being active in the Communist party.

Traffic Jam On Autobahn

HELMSTEDT, Germany (AP) —Construction work on the East German side of the Iron Curtain autobahn crossing to Berlin here caused a traffic jam today, West German customs police reported.

Cars were backed up as much as a mile, police said, causing about an hour's wait in front of the border.

At noon, customs officials reported traffic was flowing normally.

Collision On Main

A two car accident was reported to Police yesterday at 8:05 p.m. that took place in front of Lamberts Cafe on North Main Street:

John Lamb, St. Louis, was attempting to pass William McArthur, Route four, pulled in too quickly and he hit McArthur's car in a front fender.

There were no injuries and minor damage.

THREE EMERGENCIES

Three persons were treated and dismissed from the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital yesterday.

He will talk about a planned charity program and other lodge business at the meeting in the Masonic Temple.

District 15 is composed of Cape Girardeau, Charleston, Poplar Bluff, Kennett, Portageville and Sikeston. Representatives from these six chapters will be present and other grand officers.

Senate Votes To Save

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate Wednesday passed a bill designed to save money instead of spend it.

A "Little Hoover" commission recommendation, it would consolidate date-processing, duplicating, mailing, forms control and records management under one office.

State agencies now must maintain their own equipment and personnel to perform these services. Putting them under an administrative services section in the office of the state comptroller would save the state about $1 million a year, proponents said.

Also passed by the Senate and sent to the House was a bill to create the job of administrative hearing commissioner. An attorney would be named to conduct hearings for the state's licensing boards.

Another would create the job of assistant director of corrections.

Humphrey, 54, May Not Talk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey turns 54 today and in honor of the occasion he may not make a speech.

This in itself, for a man who has been making two or three a day, would set the date apart. But, of course, he may change his mind.

He was born 54 years ago — on May 27, 1911, in Wallace, S.D.

Piedmont Woman Killed By Car

The highway patrol reported the death of Mrs. Ida Bell O'Bannon, 87, of Piedmont, who was fatally injured while walking along Highway 49, one mile north of Piedmont, at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday. The accident occurred when she turned to cross the highway and walked into the path of a car driven by Albert B. Ruble, 17, Piedmont.

A nationwide television safe driving test was good in one respect. The pedestrian was remembered, however, slightly.

Those, who saw the program, will recall a car approaching a bus stopped at an intersection presumably to discharge passengers and to receive others.

The commentator mentioned the hazard of passengers alighting from the bus and crossing the intersection in the path of approaching cars. He urged motorists to slow their speeds in approaching the bus in anticipation of this development.

In the safety field the pedestrian has become the forgotten man. There are so many mechanical and other problems connected with driving an automobile that the pedestrian is isolated rather than remembered.

Even the otherwise excellent Missouri Driver's Guide misses an excellent opportunity to warn motorists about infringing on the safety of pedestrians.

This booklet is an exceptionally well illustrated document about safe driving practices and the importance of obeying traffic regulations. Every driver, both beginner and experienced, could profit by reading it. The booklet is available at Missouri car license bureaus.

Most turning motorists charge into pedestrians crossing the street on a green light as if the cars had the right-of-way. They don't until the street is clear of pedestrians. Unfortunately almost all official highway safety publications, such as the Missouri Driver's Guide, deal almost exclusively with one automobile driver's rights as compared with another's.

Every automobile driver has experienced the arrogance of truck drivers, who flaunt their superior armor. A truck driver will make an abrupt, perhaps even an unsignaled turn in front of other motorists. He dares those in lighter vehicles to strike his heavier machine. He usually is safe in such a challenge.

Many motorists do the same thing. They charge into pedestrians and dare them to cross the street ahead of them. No walking human being is any match for a moving automobile.

Other drivers are unaware of pedestrian rights because they have never read what they are and nobody has ever bothered to tell them.

Only in western states are pedestrian rights respected and their safety is by no means fully guaranteed by uniformly safe driving practices even there.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, was originally observed to honor soldiers killed in the American Civil War. Today it honors all those who fell in defense of the republic.

The American practice of burying its military dead in a proper and honorable manner is without precedent in history except, perhaps, the ancient Greek city-states which paid signal honors to their citizen soldiers slain in battle.

American military burial practices may be partially attributed to the extraordinary conditions once encountered by the regular military establishment on the Indian border. The post commanders in those days were compelled to bury all the dead of their garrison communities.

On April 16, 1862, Congress authorized the president to purchase cemetery grounds to be used as a national cemetery. Thus led to the establishment in 1864 of Arlington National Cemetery. Between 1862 and 1870 almost 300,000 Union dead were laid to rest in 73 national cemeteries. The graves of soldiers who served in the Confederate states army were subsequently marked at public cost by a distinctive marble slab.

This precedent was applied without question to the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the North China Expedition. The government further assumed another obligation in bringing back the dead from distant theatres of war.

The return of World War I remains culminated with the entombment of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery on November 11, 1921.

Of approximately 79,000 World War I fatalities, 46,520 were shipped to the United States. Of 360,812 World War II fatalities, 281,857 were recovered. Of those recovered, slightly more than 96% were identified. The unknown dead in World War II number about 8,000. About 171,000 bodies were shipped to the U. S. and about 3,500 were shipped to next of kin in foreign countries for private burial.

Of the 36,922 American fatalities in the Korean Conflict, 28,730 were returned to the U. S. Today the U. S. government affords perpetual care for approximately 850,000 graves of its military dead.

A YEAR AFTER NEHRU'S PASSING

When Jawaharlal Nehru died on May 27, 1964, the London Daily Mail observed: "He has gone at a crucial time, when the future of Asia could be decided by a struggle between the two rival systems represented by Communist China and democratic India; but that India today is powerful and modern enough to be the leader of one of these mighty factions is due almost entirely to Nehru."

Today, a year after his death, India needs a Nehru almost as desperately as it needed him at any time during his life. The cease-fire with Pakistan over the Rann of Kutch is only a matter of expediency. Fighting could break out again whenever weather permits. China still menaces the Indian border to the north. A potential Pakistani - Chinese front against India, though improbable, still causes concern.

Meanwhile, grinding poverty continues to be a commonplace -- so much so that Nehru's successor, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, is shifting the emphasis on development from industrialization to full agricultural growth. While Nehru was an international figure, Shastri seems almost a pedestrian sort. India's voice in international forums no longer rings with impassioned idealism.

The United States had extended more than $3.8 billion in loans and credit to India in the postwar years through June 1964, plus heavy direct aid. We are shipping in 600,000 tons of wheat a month, but even this has not been enough to feed the people or forestall food riots. Meantime, aid from the Soviet Union, not so massive, has been highly publicized.

Shastri, who was asked to put off his visit to Washington by President Johnson last month, arrived in Moscow on May 12 and promptly used the Kremlin as a forum to level some implicit criticism against the United States. He praised the economic assistance the Soviet Union has given India and added that his country is steadily progressing toward a socialist society. And just to twist the knife, he asserted that both the Soviet Union and India are "totally opposed" to the use of force for the settlement of international disputes.

"How do you manage to keep so cool," I asked, "when the rest of us are all wilting from the heat?"

"It's easy," he replied. "First you take a bucket of shaved ice, peel two lemons, slice three oranges, crush three grapes, mash two bananas, pour in some ginger ale and a quart of bourbon and two bottles of vodka -- and mix it all together."

"But how does it taste?" I said incredulously.

"Taste!" he roared. "I don't drink the damn stuff -- I sit in it!"

A 13-year-old Ohio girl has conducted experiments she believes prove beyond doubt that a little love and a few kind words mean a lot to a lima bean.

This may not seem like much at first, but read on.

She experimented with four groups of bean plants.

Group No. 1 she plied with affection, urging the beans to grow up big and strong.

Group No. 2 was serenaded with soft and schmaltzy violin music. Group No. 3 was bombarded with blasts by the Beatles. And Group No. 4 was scolded.

The beans that were loved and encouraged did indeed grow up big and strong -- better than any of the others.

The fiddle-fondled beans did second best. The Beatle beans were a poor third (relax, kids, it may mean nothing), and the unloved beans turned out to be stunted no-goodniks.

A prominent horticulturist says the girl may have something. He mentioned such things as sound and tone values, high frequency impulses, cells and growth regulators.

But the important thing is that a 13-year-old girl and a lima bean have remined a trouble-torn nation of a simple truth -- that a little love and a few kind words bring out the best in people, too.

Now all we have to do is to put it into practice.

FRIENDLY AND UNFRIENDLY

Americans should pause to reflect on the fate which has befallen leaders of nations friendly to the United States. One after another, strong pro-American national leaders have fallen from power, and in virtually every case our own foreign policy has contributed to their downfall.

Another common denominator is the active fight against communism waged by each of these deposed leaders.

The pattern was molded at Yalta and Teheran, where a deal was made to forsake the Chiang Kai-shek government in China for one favorable to the Reds. Marshall and Mao-worshippers in the State Department dealt the final blows to Nationalist China's hold on the mainland.

Meanwhile, the U. S. stood by while Tito lynched Mikhallovich, wartime leader of our Chetnik underground allies, and set up a communist state in Yugoslavia.

After our Asian policy resulted in another war and a dishonorable stalemate, President Syngman Rhee brought stability to Korea and was our loyal ally. For this, we acquiesced in his removal in May. 1960.

Our State Department, with knowledge of Castro's true color, brought pressure for the removal of Batista from Cuba, paving the way for the communist regime of Fidel Castro, giving the Communists their first foothold in this hemisphere.

After the downfall of Batista, the State Department concentrated its abuse on General Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, disrupting the most stable regime to the south of us, the most anti-communist in the hemisphere, and pro-American beyond question.

Trujillo has been replaced by turmoil and war, Batista by unending terror. These men were dictators, but they have been replaced by utter chaos and total tyranny. By contributing to their downfall, our positions there have become precarious. HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Sen. McClellan Will Lead Right-To-Work Forces In Final Showdown Early in July.

Washington, D. C.:--The final showdown over legalizing the union shop throughout the U. S will come on the floor ot Congress early in July when the forces of two men of the Southwest clash with each other long and bitterly.

This final conflict will come between Sen. John McClellan, who'll marshall the "right to work" forces--and President Johnson himself.

The Senator from Arkansas will lose, but it won't be for lack of trying or for lack of ammunition.

The Senator's agrument against repeal of "14 (b)" will be that the unions need tighter not looser laws. He'll bolster this argument with public senatorial hearings of his own committee into labor pension and welfare funds worth scores of hundreds of millions of dollars.

For months now he has had teams of investigators probing small unions in New York, Chicago and other Midwest cities. He believes he has found abuses in these funds, which hold anywhere from $3 to $15 million. In all there are 164,000 funds with a total of $75 billion growing at the rate of over $5 billion a year.

A vast section of these fantastic pools of cash are operated by management through banks and insurance companies. But thousands of the pension groups are in the hands of unions. Last year the Labor Dept. reported 38 criminal violations of the handling of such monies and sent the cases over to the Justice Dept.

Just what Sen. McClellan's teams have discovered few know because the Senator and his general counsel, Jerry Adlerman, have been tight-lipped during any discussion of the inflowing reports.

In a memorandum submitted at the beginning of this congressional session, McClellan said that "It is vital for the protection of the individual worker, as well as for the economy of this nation, that increased attention be paid to these welfare and pensions funds and that they be sufficiently regulated to assure their availability for the intended beneficiaries. . ."

While McClellan is battling in the Senate, a coalition of Democrats and Republicans will hit the same theme--local union abuses--in the House. They'll be guided by none other than the 62-year-old Fred A. Hartley, who wrote the original Taft-Hartley Act with the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

The robust Mr. Hartley, who served in Congress from 1929 to 1949, lives a country squire life now in Milford, N. J. His strategy will be to charge that repeal of the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley law will force workers to join unions which will use their dues for political and philosophical causes and concepts which the employes oppose.

The Hartley open shop forces will agrue that despite the honesty of many national union leaders the latter can't control their local unions. In the counterattack against the nation's labor leaders, the right-to-work bloc will heap statistics on the House floor showing growing local defiance of the top leadership--and a big increase in strikes.

Perhaps the most damaging attacks on the labor movement will spring from a recital of convictions and indictments of local labor leaders. Again the point will be made that the honesty of a national labor president is no guarantee of his control of local unions on the Taft-Hartley front.

The anti-repeal leaders specifically will point to Chicago. There, for example, Clarence Jalas, powerful business manager of the Moving Picture Operators Union, local 110, has been indicted on 25 counts of Taft-Hartley violations.

He has been accused by a federal grand jury of 20 counts of receiving illegal gifts of money, notes, stock certificates, and services from a film company that had employed members of his union. There are scores of such indictments --and convictions--on record.

Whatever does come out of this final showdown in the Congress over repeal of the states' rights to ban the union shop, the disclosure of local union abuses will be salutary.

It will be obvious that local unions no longer can be tolerated as local, impregnable baronies. They owe a responsibility to their members, their national movement, and the public.

And that sense of responsibility must not remain a matter of personal whim.

HILL 327, South Viet Nam AP--They keep a lonely vigil on a hot and dusty hill for a meeting with the enemy that may never come.

They are the four officers and 87 enlisted men of a U. S. Marines Hawk missile battery.

They are learning the hard way that war more often is boring and monotonous than dangerous or exciting, and that the thing you do most in any war is simply to wait.

The job they have to do is to knock out of the sky with their ground-to-air missiles any enemy planes that threaten the huge Da Nang air base.

The men have great confidence in their weapon. In training for their present mission they found the Hawks effective in bringing down drone aircraft used as targets at their base on Okinawa.

"They'll knock the hell out of anything that can be sent against us over here," said the battery commander, Capt. Everett Cowley, 33, Quincy, Mass.

The batter, whose theme song is "On Top of Old Dusty," is emplaced on the flat peak of one of the highest hills in the Da Nang area. The road up it is one long river of hubcap-deep dust.

It isn't that way all year round, however. When the rainy season starts the road will become a river of mud.

The view from the top of Hill 327, where the long slender Hawk missiles nest in their launchers like poised hornets, is hauntingly beautiful. In one direction stretches the watery waste of the South China Sea over which white cloud towers float in slow and timeless majesty. Between the sea and the base of the hill lie the city of Da Nang and its vital air base.

In the other direction lie a valley and rugged hills from whose green hell Marine patrols are tortuously and painstakingly flushing the tenacious Viet Cong. The loveliness of the hills hides the menace of the ambushing enemy.

The battery's position conceivably is vulnerable to mortar attack. It is guarded by sandbags and barbed wire and a company of Marine infantrymen. But the missilemen themselves also pull sentry duty, man outpost holes, and pile up more sandbag barricades.

The heart of the battery is its small, well - hidden command central. The darkened room is air-conditioned not so much for the comfort of the men as to protect the radar and electronic equipment with which the missilemen keep a day and night watch of the sky.

I asked Capt. Cowley if his men had had many interesting experiences. He smiled wryly and said.

"Well, once we saw a king cobra snake, and in six weeks we have plied up 50,000 sandbags. This job isn't romantic--just scenic and necessary. We do feel that if the enemy does try to fly against us here we'll bring him down here."

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Wayne Morse, the indomitable Democrat from Oregon, is famous for having once established the Senate's longest speaking record, for copping blue ribbons for his English Red Devon cattle, and for his unrelenting battle against military take-overs in Latin America.

The other day Morse received a call from a handsome young diplomat who introduced himself: "I am the new Bolivian ambassador, and I represent the new military junta. I know that you don't like military juntas. However, I came to see you anyway."

The acid - tongued Senator from Oregon chuckled, settled down for a good talk with the new ambassador. And though Morse didn't relent in his opposition to military revolts, he came to the conclusion that since this government was already in power he might as well give it a sympathetic hearing.

The young man who came to see him, Ambassador Julio Sanjines, is a unique Bolivian. To help the long-depressed Indian population of his country, he gave away one million acres of his land for Indian resettlement. Furthermore, Sanjines did this while in exile and at odds with the now deposed President Paz Estensorro.

—U.S. EDUCATED—

Ambassador Sanjines was educated at Iowa State and West Point. In Bolivia he put the Army to work at such nonmilitary projects as irrigation, well-drilling and health, instead of politics. Though exiled for a time by the "national revolutionary movement," he believes in their policies — namely, higher taxes for the wealthy and dividing up the land to put the Indian population on the land.

The new President of Bolivia, Gen. Rene Barrientos Ortuno, got his training at Randolph and Kelly Fields with the U.S. Air Force, is also a believer in the fundamentals of "national revolution."

He has also carried the quarrel of ex-President Paz with Vice President Juan Lechin one step further. Lechin, sometimes called the "John L. Lewis" of the Bolivian tin miners, had incurred the ire of pro-labor President Paz by leading frequent strikes in the tin mines, thereby pricing Bolivian tin almost out of the world market.

President Barrientos has now sent Lechin into exile which has brought a sitdown in government-owned mines and the call of a general strike against the government.

As Ambassador Sanjines explained it to Morse: "We are for the principles of the revolution and we want to continue the division of the land among the Indian population. But we are not going to let one union dominate the country. Government operation has not worked with this union in control, so now we are going to try private enterprise."

The Ambassador points to the fact that the Gulf Oil Company has invested $100,000,000 in boring several productive wells, and its property has been protected.

"In these days when the production of tin in Indonesia and Viet Nam is highly uncertain," says the Ambassador, "Bolivian tin may be the most important source for the United States, and we have to keep it moving."

—McCLELLAN'S BANKING BUDDIES—

Arkansas' dour Sen. John McClellan, who has made a Senate career of investigating the shenanigans and conflicts of federal officials, has now turned up with a conflict of his own.

He didn't mention it when he launched his latest investigation into bank failures, but he happens to be an active director of the First National Bank of Little Rock, Ark.

This is one of the old-line banks, a financial Goliath, whose dominance over the banking business was never challenged until James J. Saxon became Comptroller of the Currency four years ago.

Boldly, Saxon granted bank charters to outsiders, including Negroes and Jews, hitherto shut out of most banking circles. These new banks have compelled the encrusted old financial houses to become more competitive.

Only two national banks have failed since Saxon started his banking revolution. During the same period, seven state banks have failed. McClellan, however, has concentrated all his fire on Saxon and the Federal failures.

The Senator has promised to investigate state banks, too, but so far hasn't got around to it. Meanwhile, he has been muttering darkly about the need for a reorganization of Federal banking agencies.

Significantly, the proposed reorganization would abolish Saxon's job, thus remove a thorn from the side of McClellan's banking buddies.

—MERRY-GO-ROUND—

The divine right of kings was vetoed by the thirteen colonies back in 1776. But the Justice Department today features the divine right of succession. If you are the son of somebody important, you can get a job in the Justice Department, to wit, Ramsey Clark, Deputy Attorney General, the son of Justice Tom Clark; Fred Vinson, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, the son of the late Chief Justice Vinson; Edwin L. Weisl, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, son of the New York lawyer who is a private White House adviser. All three, incidentally, are good men, but the fact that they are the sons of eminent fathers didn't hurt a bit. . . Space scientists have warned that the Russians are concentrating on interplanetary travel. More than 25 per cent of their rockets have been aimed at the moon and various planets as against only 6 per cent of similar space shots by the United States.

Reason why the White House was so anxious to retrieve the Jackie Kennedy letter to Lady Bird Johnson from a New York auction was because Jackie has been rather aloof with the Johnsons, and the White House didn't want to increase the appearance of aloofness.

Some people got the impression that Mrs. Johnson failed to answer Jackie's letter and attached no importance to her invitation to view the Nixon-Kennedy debate in October, 1960.

What actually happened was that Lucianne Cummings, one of the Democratic paid workers, brought Mrs. Johnson a sheaf of mail to the airport, including the invitation from Jackie. En route to the Capitol, Lady Bird instructed Miss Cummings to reply by telephone that she would have to be in Baltimore with LBJ that evening, therefore could not attend the view-in.

The viewing of the Nixon-Kennedy debate was to be held at Democratic headquarters on Connecticut Avenue that evening, not in the Kennedy home.

Miss Cummings made the phone call but kept the letter, and later sold it without permission to Charles Hamilton, the New York collector.

Real fact is that the Johnsons have gone out of their way to invite Jackie to the White House and do everything possible for her. She continues to be aloof. Her first cold shoulder came on Dec. 22, 1963, when she declined to attend the final memorial services for her husband at which President Johnson paid him tribute.

Latest and unkindest cut was when she declined to come to Washington for the dedication of the "Mrs. John F. Kennedy Rose Garden." Jackie was in New York, one hour's flight away, was accepting various social engagements, but would not come to Washington to participate in the dedication of the White House garden named in her honor.

Despite the snub, the President placed a special White House jet at her disposal when she flew to England this month.

—ANOTHER ROOSEVELT RUNS—

Most vigorous election race in the country will be decided next week in Florida where FDR's second son, Elliott, is running for mayor of that glittering stretch of sand and famous hotels called Miami Beach.

It's a race reminiscent of those hell-bent political days of his late father, and the family is very much an issue, even to the stamp commemorating Elliott's late mother and the assassination attempt on his father in Miami in 1933 when Zangara fired at FDR's car and killed Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

Afterward an editor of the University of Florida "Alligator" wrote an editorial urging lenient treatment for Zangara. That editor, Melvin Richard, is now mayor of Miami Beach and the man Elliott Roosevelt is running against. Elliott's cohorts claim Richard is now trying to reverse 1933, and politically assassinate the son of the late FDR.

Whether the charge is justified or not, it certainly is true that Richard is using plenty of invective against Elliott, his many marriages, his present wife and even the Roosevlt family.

"Some people think they were great," says the annoyed mayor of Miami Beach, "Let 'em think so."

What has especially got under Richard's skin is the fact that Elliott uses commemorative stamps of his mother on his campaign mailings, plus a little sticker of his own which reads "In a great tradition, elect Elliott Roosevelt."

"The Richard forces can bellyache all they want," commented columnist Rolfe Neill in the Miami Beach Sun, "but if I had a mother with a postage stamp issued in her honor I'd use it on all my mail too.

Mayor Richard has tried to dig into Elliott's war record, only to end up in a blaze of battle ribbons. He made much of the fact that Elliott was five times married, but only ignited the ire of the most devoted wife Elliott ever married.

Patricia Roosevelt now has her dander up and is determined to win. She has set up a mimeograph machine in her basement where she and the children roll off campaign literature every night. She rings doorbells, brews coffee, works 30 hours a day.

"Not having enough money to hire our own photographer, I am going around to all the meetings with my little Minox," says Pat. "We have no paid workers and it is incredible to see the number of people who come into our offices every day to volunteer their services and cars."

It looks as if a lot of people remembered Franklin Roosevelt down in Miami Beach and were attracted to Elliott's slogan "A man with a name Miami can be proud of." In any event it's certain that Mayor Melvin Richard made a bad error when he attacked Elliott's wives. His present wife is determined to have the voters make him eat his words.

—FOLLOWERS OF THE ROPE—

Some years ago a small cult of Yoga devotees on Capitol Hill exercised during the lunch hour by standing on their heads in the basement of the Library of Congress.

Today a new exercise cult has been started by Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., they are followers of the rope, use what they call the "isometric rope exercise."

"Please don't be offended because a freshman wants to show you the ropes," Roncalio wrote to senior Congressmen. "But the most exclusive legislative body in the world—our Congress — is getting out of shape.

"Every two years we run for our lives for reelection. However, I have an exercise that doesn't require any running whatever. It's the isometric rope exercise."

A nationwide television safe driving test was good in one respect. The pedestrian was remembered, however, slightly.

Those, who saw the program, will recall a car approaching a bus stopped at an intersection presumably to discharge passengers and to receive others.

The commentator mentioned the hazard of passengers alighting from the bus and crossing the intersection in the path of approaching cars. He urged motorists to slow their speeds in approaching the bus in anticipation of this development.

In the safety field the pedestrian has become the forgotten man. There are so many mechanical and other problems connected with driving an automobile that the pedestrian is isolated rather than remembered.

Even the otherwise excellent Missouri Driver's Guide misses an excellent opportunity to warn motorists about infringing on the safety of pedestrians.

This booklet is an exceptionally well illustrated document about safe driving practices and the importance of obeying traffic regulations. Every driver, both beginner and experienced, could profit by reading it. The booklet is available at Missouri car license bureaus.

Most turning motorists charge into pedestrians crossing the street on a green light as if the cars had the right-of-way. They don't until the street is clear of pedestrians. Unfortunately almost all official highway safety publications, such as the Missouri Driver's Guide, deal almost exclusively with one automobile driver's rights as compared with another's.

Every automobile driver has experienced the arrogance of truck drivers, who flaunt their superior armor. A truck driver will make an abrupt, perhaps even an unsignaled turn in front of other motorists. He dares those in lighter vehicles to strike his heavier machine. He usually is safe in such a challenge.

Many motorists do the same thing. They charge into pedestrians and dare them to cross the street ahead of them. No walking human being is any match for a moving automobile.

Other drivers are unaware of pedestrian rights because they have never read what they are and nobody has ever bothered to tell them.

Only in western states are pedestrian rights respected and their safety is by no means fully guaranteed by uniformly safe driving practices even there.

MEMORIAL DAY

Memorial Day, or Decoration Day, was originally observed to honor soldiers killed in the American Civil War. Today it honors all those who fell in defense of the republic.

The American practice of burying its military dead in a proper and honorable manner is without precedent in history except, perhaps, the ancient Greek city-states which paid signal honors to their citizen soldiers slain in battle.

American military burial practices may be partially attributed to the extraordinary conditions once encountered by the regular military establishment on the Indian border. The post commanders in those days were compelled to bury all the dead of their garrison communities.

On April 16, 1862, Congress authorized the president to purchase cemetery grounds to be used as a national cemetery. Thus led to the establishment in 1864 of Arlington National Cemetery. Between 1862 and 1870 almost 300,000 Union dead were laid to rest in 73 national cemeteries. The graves of soldiers who served in the Confederate states army were subsequently marked at public cost by a distinctive marble slab.

This precedent was applied without question to the Spanish-American War, the Philippine Insurrection and the North China Expedition. The government further assumed another obligation in bringing back the dead from distant theatres of war.

The return of World War I remains culminated with the entombment of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery on November 11, 1921.

Of approximately 79,000 World War I fatalities, 46,520 were shipped to the United States. Of 360,812 World War II fatalities, 281,857 were recovered. Of those recovered, slightly more than 96% were identified. The unknown dead in World War II number about 8,000. About 171,000 bodies were shipped to the U. S. and about 3,500 were shipped to next of kin in foreign countries for private burial.

Of the 36,922 American fatalities in the Korean Conflict, 28,730 were returned to the U. S. Today the U. S. government affords perpetual care for approximately 850,000 graves of its military dead.

A YEAR AFTER NEHRU'S PASSING

When Jawaharlal Nehru died on May 27, 1964, the London Daily Mail observed: "He has gone at a crucial time, when the future of Asia could be decided by a struggle between the two rival systems represented by Communist China and democratic India; but that India today is powerful and modern enough to be the leader of one of these mighty factions is due almost entirely to Nehru."

Today, a year after his death, India needs a Nehru almost as desperately as it needed him at any time during his life. The cease-fire with Pakistan over the Rann of Kutch is only a matter of expediency. Fighting could break out again whenever weather permits. China still menaces the Indian border to the north. A potential Pakistani - Chinese front against India, though improbable, still causes concern.

Meanwhile, grinding poverty continues to be a commonplace -- so much so that Nehru's successor, Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri, is shifting the emphasis on development from industrialization to full agricultural growth. While Nehru was an international figure, Shastri seems almost a pedestrian sort. India's voice in international forums no longer rings with impassioned idealism.

The United States had extended more than $3.8 billion in loans and credit to India in the postwar years through June 1964, plus heavy direct aid. We are shipping in 600,000 tons of wheat a month, but even this has not been enough to feed the people or forestall food riots. Meantime, aid from the Soviet Union, not so massive, has been highly publicized.

Shastri, who was asked to put off his visit to Washington by President Johnson last month, arrived in Moscow on May 12 and promptly used the Kremlin as a forum to level some implicit criticism against the United States. He praised the economic assistance the Soviet Union has given India and added that his country is steadily progressing toward a socialist society. And just to twist the knife, he asserted that both the Soviet Union and India are "totally opposed" to the use of force for the settlement of international disputes.

"How do you manage to keep so cool," I asked, "when the rest of us are all wilting from the heat?"

"It's easy," he replied. "First you take a bucket of shaved ice, peel two lemons, slice three oranges, crush three grapes, mash two bananas, pour in some ginger ale and a quart of bourbon and two bottles of vodka -- and mix it all together."

"But how does it taste?" I said incredulously.

"Taste!" he roared. "I don't drink the damn stuff -- I sit in it!"

A 13-year-old Ohio girl has conducted experiments she believes prove beyond doubt that a little love and a few kind words mean a lot to a lima bean.

This may not seem like much at first, but read on.

She experimented with four groups of bean plants.

Group No. 1 she plied with affection, urging the beans to grow up big and strong.

Group No. 2 was serenaded with soft and schmaltzy violin music. Group No. 3 was bombarded with blasts by the Beatles. And Group No. 4 was scolded.

The beans that were loved and encouraged did indeed grow up big and strong -- better than any of the others.

The fiddle-fondled beans did second best. The Beatle beans were a poor third (relax, kids, it may mean nothing), and the unloved beans turned out to be stunted no-goodniks.

A prominent horticulturist says the girl may have something. He mentioned such things as sound and tone values, high frequency impulses, cells and growth regulators.

But the important thing is that a 13-year-old girl and a lima bean have remined a trouble-torn nation of a simple truth -- that a little love and a few kind words bring out the best in people, too.

Now all we have to do is to put it into practice.

FRIENDLY AND UNFRIENDLY

Americans should pause to reflect on the fate which has befallen leaders of nations friendly to the United States. One after another, strong pro-American national leaders have fallen from power, and in virtually every case our own foreign policy has contributed to their downfall.

Another common denominator is the active fight against communism waged by each of these deposed leaders.

The pattern was molded at Yalta and Teheran, where a deal was made to forsake the Chiang Kai-shek government in China for one favorable to the Reds. Marshall and Mao-worshippers in the State Department dealt the final blows to Nationalist China's hold on the mainland.

Meanwhile, the U. S. stood by while Tito lynched Mikhallovich, wartime leader of our Chetnik underground allies, and set up a communist state in Yugoslavia.

After our Asian policy resulted in another war and a dishonorable stalemate, President Syngman Rhee brought stability to Korea and was our loyal ally. For this, we acquiesced in his removal in May, 1960.

Our State Department, with knowledge of Castro's true color, brought pressure for the removal of Batista from Cuba, paving the way for the communist regime of Fidel Castro, giving the Communists their first foothold in this hemisphere.

After the downfall of Batista, the State Department concentrated its abuse on General Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, disrupting the most stable regime to the south of us, the most anti-communist in the hemisphere, and pro-American beyond question.

Trujillo has been replaced by turmoil and war, Batista by unending terror. These men were dictators, but they have been replaced by utter chaos and total tyranny. By contributing to their downfall, our positions there have become precarious. HLH

HILL 327, South Viet Nam AP--They keep a lonely vigil on a hot and dusty hill for a meeting with the enemy that may never come.

They are the four officers and 87 enlisted men of a U. S. Marines Hawk missile battery.

They are learning the hard way that war more often is boring and monotonous than dangerous or exciting, and that the thing you do most in any war is simply to wait.

The job they have to do is to knock out of the sky with their ground-to-air missiles any enemy planes that threaten the huge Da Nang air base.

The men have great confidence in their weapon. In training for their present mission they found the Hawks effective in bringing down drone aircraft used as targets at their base on Okinawa.

"They'll knock the hell out of anything that can be sent against us over here," said the battery commander, Capt. Everett Cowley, 33, Quincy, Mass.

The batter, whose theme song is "On Top of Old Dusty," is emplaced on the flat peak of one of the highest hills in the Da Nang area. The road up it is one long river of hubcap-deep dust.

It isn't that way all year round, however. When the rainy season starts the road will become a river of mud.

The view from the top of Hill 327, where the long slender Hawk missiles nest in their launchers like poised hornets, is hauntingly beautiful. In one direction stretches the watery waste of the South China Sea over which white cloud towers float in slow and timeless majesty. Between the sea and the base of the hill lie the city of Da Nang and its vital air base.

In the other direction lie a valley and rugged hills from whose green hell Marine patrols are tortuously and painstakingly flushing the tenacious Viet Cong. The loveliness of the hills hides the menace of the ambushing enemy.

The battery's position conceivably is vulnerable to mortar attack. It is guarded by sandbags and barbed wire and a company of Marine infantrymen. But the missilemen themselves also pull sentry duty, man outpost holes, and pile up more sandbag barricades.

The heart of the battery is its small, well - hidden command central. The darkened room is air-conditioned not so much for the comfort of the men as to protect the radar and electronic equipment with which the missilemen keep a day and night watch of the sky.

I asked Capt. Cowley if his men had had many interesting experiences. He smiled wryly and said.

"Well, once we saw a king cobra snake, and in six weeks we have piled up 50,000 sandbags. This job isn't romantic--just scenic and necessary. We do feel that if the enemy does try to fly against us here we'll bring him down here."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Sen. McClellan Will Lead Right-To-Work Forces In Final Showdown Early in July.

Washington, D. C.:--The final showdown over legalizing the union shop throughout the U. S. will come on the floor of Congress early in July when the forces of two men of the Southwest clash with each other long and bitterly.

This final conflict will come between Sen. John McClellan, who'll marshall the "right to work" forces--and President Johnson himself.

The Senator from Arkansas will lose, but it won't be for lack of trying or for lack of ammunition.

The Senator's agrument against repeal of "14 (b)" will be that the unions need tighter not looser laws. He'll bolster this argument with public senatorial hearings of his own committee into labor pension and welfare funds worth scores of hundreds of millions of dollars.

For months now he has had teams of investigators probing small unions in New York, Chicago and other Midwest cities. He believes he has found abuses in these funds, which hold anywhere from $3 to $15 million. In all there are 164,000 funds with a total of $75 billion growing at the rate of over $5 billion a year.

A vast section of these fantastic pools of cash are operated by management through banks and insurance companies. But thousands of the pension groups are in the hands of unions. Last year the Labor Dept. reported 38 criminal violations of the handling of such monies and sent the cases over to the Justice Dept.

Just what Sen. McClellan's teams have discovered few know because the Senator and his general counsel, Jerry Adlerman, have been tight-lipped during any discussion of the inflowing reports.

In a memorandum submitted at the beginning of this congressional session, McClellan said that "It is vital for the protection of the individual worker, as well as for the economy of this nation, that increased attention be paid to these welfare and pensions funds and that they be sufficiently regulated to assure their availability for the intended beneficiaries. . ."

While McClellan is battling in the Senate, a coalition of Democrats and Republicans will hit the same theme--local union abuses--in the House. They'll be guided by none other than the 62-year-old Fred A. Hartley, who wrote the original Taft-Hartley Act with the late Sen. Robert A. Taft.

The robust Mr. Hartley, who served in Congress from 1929 to 1949, lives a country squire life now in Milford, N. J. His strategy will be to charge that repeal of the right-to-work section of the Taft-Hartley law will force workers to join unions which will use their dues for political and philosophical causes and concepts which the employes oppose.

The Hartley open shop forces will agrue that despite the honesty of many national union leaders the latter can't control their local unions. In the counterattack against the nation's labor leaders, the right-to-work bloc will heap statistics on the House floor showing growing local defiance of the top leadership--and a big increase in strikes.

Perhaps the most damaging attacks on the labor movement will spring from a recital of convictions and indictments of local labor leaders. Again the point will be made that the honesty of a national labor president is no guarantee of his control of local unions on the Taft-Hartley front.

The anti-repeal leaders specifically will point to Chicago. There, for example, Clarence Jalas, powerful business manager of the Moving Picture Operators Union, local 110, has been indicted on 25 counts of Taft-Hartley violations.

He has been accused by a federal grand jury of 20 counts of receiving illegal gifts of money, notes, stock certificates, and services from a film company that had employed members of his union. There are scores of such indictments --and convictions--on record.

Whatever does come out of this final showdown in the Congress over repeal of the states' rights to ban the union shop, the disclosure of local union abuses will be salutary.

It will be obvious that local unions no longer can be tolerated as local, impregnable baronies. They owe a responsibility to their members, their national movement, and the public.

And that sense of responsibility must not remain a matter of personal whim.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Wayne Morse, the indomitable Democrat from Oregon, is famous for having once established the Senate's longest speaking record, for copping blue ribbons for his English Red Devon cattle, and for his unrelenting battle against military take-overs in Latin America.

The other day Morse received a call from a handsome young diplomat who introduced himself: "I am the new Bolivian ambassador, and I represent the new military junta. I know that you don't like military juntas. However, I came to see you anyway."

The acid - tongued Senator from Oregon chuckled, settled down for a good talk with the new ambassador. And though Morse didn't relent in his opposition to military revolts, he came to the conclusion that since this government was already in power he might as well give it a sympathetic hearing.

The young man who came to see him, Ambassador Julio Sanjines, is a unique Bolivian. To help the long-depressed Indian population of his country, he gave away one million acres of his land for Indian resettlement. Furthermore, Sanjines did this while in exile and at odds with the now deposed President Paz Estensorro.

—U.S. EDUCATED—

Ambassador Sanjines was educated at Iowa State and West Point. In Bolivia he put the Army to work at such nonmilitary projects as irrigation, well-drilling and health, instead of politics. Though exiled for a time by the "national revolutionary movement," he believes in their policies — namely, higher taxes for the wealthy and dividing up the land to put the Indian population on the land.

The new President of Bolivia, Gen. Rene Barrientos Ortuno, got his training at Randolph and Kelly Fields with the U.S. Air Force, is also a believer in the fundamentals of "national revolution."

He has also carried the quarrel of ex-President Paz with Vice President Juan Lechin one step further. Lechin, sometimes called the "John L. Lewis" of the Bolivian tin miners, had incurred the ire of pro-labor President Paz by leading frequent strikes in the tin mines, thereby pricing Bolivian tin almost out of the world market.

President Barrientos has now sent Lechin into exile which has brought a sitdown in government-owned mines and the call of a general strike against the government.

As Ambassador Sanjines explained it to Morse: "We are for the principles of the revolution and we want to continue the division of the land among the Indian population. But we are not going to let one union dominate the country. Government operation has not worked with this union in control, so now we are going to try private enterprise."

The Ambassador points to the fact that the Gulf Oil Company has invested $100,000,000 in boring several productive wells, and its property has been protected.

"In these days when the production of tin in Indonesia and Viet Nam is highly uncertain," says the Ambassador, "Bolivian tin may be the most important source for the United States, and we have to keep it moving."

—McCLELLAN'S BANKING BUDDIES—

Arkansas' dour Sen. John McClellan, who has made a Senate career of investigating the shenanigans and conflicts of federal officials, has now turned up with a conflict of his own.

He didn't mention it when he launched his latest investigation into bank failures, but he happens to be an active director of the First National Bank of Little Rock, Ark.

This is one of the old-line banks, a financial Goliath, whose dominance over the banking business was never challenged until James J. Saxon became Comptroller of the Currency four years ago.

Boldly, Saxon granted bank charters to outsiders, including Negroes and Jews, hitherto shut out of most banking circles. These new banks have compelled the encrusted old financial houses to become more competitive.

Only two national banks have failed since Saxon started his banking revolution. During the same period, seven state banks have failed. McClellan, however, has concentrated all his fire on Saxon and the Federal failures.

The Senator has promised to investigate state banks, too, but so far hasn't got around to it. Meanwhile, he has been muttering darkly about the need for a reorganization of Federal banking agencies.

Significantly, the proposed reorganization would abolish Saxon's job, thus remove a thorn from the side of McClellan's banking buddies.

—MERRY-GO-ROUND—

The divine right of kings was vetoed by the thirteen colonies back in 1776. But the Justice Department today features the divine right of succession. If you are the son of somebody important, you can get a job in the Justice Department, to wit, Ramsey Clark, Deputy Attorney General, the son of Justice Tom Clark; Fred Vinson, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, the son of the late Chief Justice Vinson; Edwin L. Weisl, Jr., Assistant Attorney General, son of the New York lawyer who is a private White House adviser. All three, incidentally, are good men, but the fact that they are the sons of eminent fathers didn't hurt a bit. . . Space scientists have warned that the Russians are concentrating on interplanetary travel. More than 25 per cent of their rockets have been aimed at the moon and various planets as against only 6 per cent of similar space shots by the United States.

Reason why the White House was so anxious to retrieve the Jackie Kennedy letter to Lady Bird Johnson from a New York auction was because Jackie has been rather aloof with the Johnsons, and the White House didn't want to increase the appearance of aloofness.

Some people got the impression that Mrs. Johnson failed to answer Jackie's letter and attached no importance to her invitation to view the Nixon-Kennedy debate in October, 1960.

What actually happened was that Lucianne Cummings, one of the Democratic paid workers, brought Mrs. Johnson a sheaf of mail to the airport, including the invitation from Jackie. En route to the Capitol, Lady Bird instructed Miss Cummings to reply by telephone that she would have to be in Baltimore with LBJ that evening, therefore could not attend the view-in.

The viewing of the Nixon-Kennedy debate was to be held at Democratic headquarters on Connecticut Avenue that evening, not in the Kennedy home.

Miss Cummings made the phone call but kept the letter, and later sold it without permission to Charles Hamilton, the New York collector.

Real fact is that the Johnsons have gone out of their way to invite Jackie to the White House and do everything possible for her. She continues to be aloof. Her first cold shoulder came on Dec. 22, 1963, when she declined to attend the final memorial services for her husband at which President Johnson paid him tribute.

Latest and unkindest cut was when she declined to come to Washington for the dedication of the "Mrs. John F. Kennedy Rose Garden." Jackie was in New York, one hour's flight away, was accepting various social engagements, but would not come to Washington to participate in the dedication of the White House garden named in her honor.

Despite the snub, the President placed a special White House jet at her disposal when she flew to England this month.

—ANOTHER ROOSEVELT RUNS—

Most vigorous election race in the country will be decided next week in Florida where FDR's second son, Elliott, is running for mayor of that glittering stretch of sand and famous hotels called Miami Beach.

It's a race reminiscent of those hell-bent political days of his late father, and the family is very much an issue, even to the stamp commemorating Elliott's late mother and the assassination attempt on his father in Miami in 1933 when Zangara fired at FDR's car and killed Mayor Cermak of Chicago.

Afterward an editor of the University of Florida "Alligator" wrote an editorial urging lenient treatment for Zangara. That editor, Melvin Richard, is now mayor of Miami Beach and the man Elliott Roosevelt is running against. Elliott's cohorts claim Richard is now trying to reverse 1933, and politically assassinate the son of the late FDR.

Whether the charge is justified or not, it certainly is true that Richard is using plenty of invective against Elliott, his many marriages, his present wife and even the Roosevlt family.

"Some people think they were great," says the annoyed mayor of Miami Beach, "Let 'em think so."

What has especially got under Richard's skin is the fact that Elliott uses commemorative stamps of his mother on his campaign mailings, plus a little sticker of his own which reads "In a great tradition, elect Elliott Roosevelt."

"The Richard forces can bellyache all they want," commented columnist Rolfe Neill in the Miami Beach Sun, "but if I had a mother with a postage stamp issued in her honor I'd use it on all my mail too.

Mayor Richard has tried to dig into Elliott's war record, only to end up in a blaze of battle ribbons. He made much of the fact that Elliott was five times married, but only ignited the ire of the most devoted wife Elliott ever married.

Patricia Roosevelt now has her dander up and is determined to win. She has set up a mimeograph machine in her basement where she and the children roll off campaign literature every night. She rings doorbells, brews coffee, works 30 hours a day.

"Not having enough money to hire our own photographer, I am going around to all the meetings with my little Minox," says Pat. "We have no paid workers and it is incredible to see the number of people who come into our offices every day to volunteer their services and cars."

It looks as if a lot of people remembered Franklin Roosevelt down in Miami Beach and were attracted to Elliott's slogan "A man with a name Miami can be proud of." In any event it's certain that Mayor Melvin Richard made a bad error when he attacked Elliott's wives. His present wife is determined to have the voters make him eat his words.

—FOLLOWERS OF THE ROPE—

Some years ago a small cult of Yoga devotees on Capitol Hill exercised during the lunch hour by standing on their heads in the basement of the Library of Congress.

Today a new exercise cult has been started by Rep. Teno Roncalio, D-Wyo., they are followers of the rope, use what they call the "isometric rope exercise."

"Please don't be offended because a freshman wants to show you the ropes," Roncalio wrote to senior Congressmen. "But the most exclusive legislative body in the world—our Congress — is getting out of shape.

"Every two years we run for our lives for reelection. However, I have an exercise that doesn't require any running whatever. It's the isometric rope exercise."

New Chapter JU Of P.E.O. Is Organized In Sikeston

CHAPTER JU, the second PEO chapter in Sikeston, was organized May 25 at the home of Lida Bowman by Mary Louise Ahmann, St. Charles, first vice-president of Missouri State Chapter. She was assisted by members of Chapter HB, sponsors of the new chapter.

Members are Mabel Louise Hunter, received by dimit from Chapter HB, Sikeston, Missouri, and the following initiates: Judy Bowman, Joy Leslie, Kay Hunter, Judy Harper, all daughters-in-law of members of Chapter HB, Evelyn Campbell, Bonnie Conn, Marilyn Dement, JoAnn Fox, Doris LaPlant, Phyllis Malone, Betty Mitchell, Frances Robison, and Rosemary Vandivort.

Following the organization of Chapter JU, members of Chapter HB entertained state officers, members of Chapter JU and the following out-of-town guests: Opal McHenry, who accompanied Mrs. Hammond from Springfield; Ruth Kendig, St. Charles, and Billie Miller, Jackson, who were charter members of Chapter HB at a dinner at the Holiday Inn.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood was founded January 21, 1869, by seven college girls, students at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Although established as a college sorority, campus chapters were discontinued when emphasis was placed on the organization of chapters in towns and cities. This change from a college group to a community group opened the way for the growth of the organization in the United States and Canada.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood is now an international organization with a membership of more than 150,000 women. Almost 4,000 chapters have been organized during the 96 years since P.E.O. was founded by the seven students at Wesleyan College.

The purposes of the P.E.O. Sisterhood are educational and charitable. For many years the major objective of the organization has been to provide increased opportunities for higher education for women. This has been accomplished through a loan fund, a junior college, and scholarships for foreign students.

The first educational project of the P.E.O. Sisterhood was its Educational Fund, established in 1907 for the purpose of assisting qualified women students desiring to become self-supporting, to attain an education beyond the high school level. Chapter HB has sponsored two students and is willing to assist other qualified women in obtaining loans.

In addition to these projects, P.E.O. members are active in all phases of civic and charitable activities.

Officers of Chapter HB who participated in the organization were Rosemary Hayward, president; Minta Hubbard, vice-president; Myra Tanner, recording secretary; Margaret Harris, corresponding secretary; Marcia Sikes, treasurer, Frances White, chaplain; and Barbara Sikes, guard. Special guards for the initiation service were Elizabeth Leslie, Mildred Harper, Lida Bowman, Frances Hunter, Emily Dace, and Lucille Stubblefield; organist was Loleta Scott; special recording secretary was Emma Lee Baker; and reporter was Dora Vogel.

Plans Are Completed For Long-Ledbetter Wedding

Plans have been completed for the marriage of Miss Diane Elizabeth Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Long, to Dennis Ray Ledbetter, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Ledbetter.

The couple will exchange wedding vows at 5 p.m. on June 5 at the Fellowship Baptist Church. The Rev. James Fitch will perform the double ring ceremony.

Miss Long will be attended by Miss Gail Williams, her niece, and Miss Marilyn Carter, a close friend. Mr. Ledbetter has chosen for attendants his brother, Donald Ledbetter, and the bride-elect's brother-in-law, Dean Riley.

Pam Riley, niece of the bride-to-be, will be the flower girl and Don Riley, nephew of Miss Long, will serve as ringbearer.

Golf Notes

Mrs. Frank Armstrong and Mrs. Charles Stamp were hostesses for guest day at the Sikeston Country club on Tuesday.

Guests from Charleston, Kennett and Malden added to the local golfers made thirty-seven players of golf and a buffet luncheon.

Mrs. Paul Heckemeyer greeted all players at the 9th green and presented a package of golf tees to each player who drove the green. Jeal Halter from Charleston was closest to the pin and received a special prize for her skill plus a score of two one the hole.

In the championship flight Mrs. Jerry Watson and Mrs. Dewey Urban tied with a score of 42. Mrs. Watson won the draw. There was a tie for second place too, and Mrs. Louis Moose won the draw from Mrs. Polly Smith of Malden.

In flight A, Mrs. Glen Joyner was first, Mrs. Milford Estes second and Mrs. Lotus Emerson third.

Betty Robins of Kennett captured the first place in flight B followed by Mrs. Stan Bush and Mrs. Charles Welch. Mrs. Welch is a new member of the Sikeston club. She is a devoted golfer and her game shows that practice pays.

Mrs. E. R. Putnam of Charleston won flight C. Mrs. Frank Ferrell was second and Flo Stewart of Kennett was third.

Plans are being made for a four ball partnership tournament at the local club next Tuesday. All golfers are urged to select a partner from their own class for this competition.

Directors for score keeping will be given at the tee off time by Mrs. Jerry Watson who is tournament chairman.

All golfers come out between 9 and 9:30 (D.S.T.). This should be a real fun day. Partners will receive duplicate prizes.

Twilight golfers are urged to come out this Friday evening, May 28. Frank Armstrong reports that food will be available after the golf games.

CHAPTER JU, the second PEO chapter in Sikeston, was organized May 25 at the home of Lida Bowman by Mary Louise Ahmann, St. Charles, first vice-president of Missouri State Chapter. She was assisted by members of Chapter HB, sponsors of the new chapter.

Members are Mabel Louise Hunter, received by dimit from Chapter HB, Sikeston, Missouri, and the following initiates: Judy Bowman, Joy Leslie, Kay Hunter, Judy Harper, all daughters-in-law of members of Chapter HB, Evelyn Campbell, Bonnie Conn, Marilyn Dement, JoAnn Fox, Doris LaPlant, Phyllis Malone, Betty Mitchell, Frances Robison, and Rosemary Vandivort.

Following the organization of Chapter JU, members of Chapter HB entertained state officers, members of Chapter JU and the following out-of-town guests: Opal McHenry, who accompanied Mrs. Hammond from Springfield; Ruth Kendig, St. Charles, and Billie Miller, Jackson, who were charter members of Chapter HB at a dinner at the Holiday Inn.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood was founded January 21, 1869, by seven college girls, students at Iowa Wesleyan College, Mount Pleasant, Iowa. Although established as a college sorority, campus chapters were discontinued when emphasis was placed on the organization of chapters in towns and cities. This change from a college group to a community group opened the way for the growth of the organization in the United States and Canada.

The P.E.O. Sisterhood is now an international organization with a membership of more than 150,000 women. Almost 4,000 chapters have been organized during the 96 years since P.E.O. was founded by the seven students at Wesleyan College.

The purposes of the P.E.O. Sisterhood are educational and charitable. For many years the major objective of the organization has been to provide increased opportunities for higher education for women. This has been accomplished through a loan fund, a junior college, and scholarships for foreign students.

The first educational project of the P.E.O. Sisterhood was its Educational Fund, established in 1907 for the purpose of assisting qualified women students desiring to become self-supporting, to attain an education beyond the high school level. Chapter HB has sponsored two students and is willing to assist other qualified women in obtaining loans.

In addition to these projects, P.E.O. members are active in all phases of civic and charitable activities.

Officers of Chapter HB who participated in the organization were Rosemary Hayward, president; Minta Hubbard, vice-president; Myra Tanner, recording secretary; Margaret Harris, corresponding secretary; Marcia Sikes, treasurer, Frances White, chaplain; and Barbara Sikes, guard. Special guards for the initiation service were Elizabeth Leslie, Mildred Harper, Lida Bowman, Frances Hunter, Emily Dace, and Lucille Stubblefield; organist was Loleta Scott; special recording secretary was Emma Lee Baker; and reporter was Dora Vogel.

Cardinals Defeat Dodgers 2 To 1, Javier Singles Home Winning Run In The Seventh

Brock, who has turned into Wills' shadow in a possible record-making race for the National League's stolen - base championship, came out on top in their first direct confrontation Wednesday night while the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Brock, the Cardinals' swift left fielder, stole three bases for a season total of 21 in 39 games. Wills, the Dodgers record-holder and five-time champion, settled for one steal and a total of 25 in 40 games.

Wills, who stole 53 bases last year, predicted before the season started that someone would eventually break the record of 104 he set in 1962. And he hinted that it just might be the guy who played shortstop for the Dodgers.

"I think it's possible to break the record," Wills said. "And the way I feel I think I can go at top speed all the way. I feel better than when I was 18. Maybe I'm getting my second wind."

Brock, on the other hand, still is learning how to use his first wind. He's only 25 - and didn't develop into a Wills-type steal-int threat until he was turned loose after being acquired from the Chicago Cubs last June.

The Cardinals' victory pulled the defending world champions to within 1 1/2 games of the first-place Dodgers, who stayed one game ahead of Cincinnati in the tightening NL struggle as the Reds bowed to Houston 8-3.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee belted San Francisco 10-4, Pittsburgh upended Philadelphia 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs edged the New York Mets 8-6 in 10 innings.

In American League action, Minnesota outslugged Boston 9-7, Cleveland defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-1, Kansas City whipped Baltimore 6-3 and the Los Angeles Angels nipped Washington 2-1.

Brock scored the first Cardinal run in the first inning on Ken Boyer's sacrifice fly but the Dodgers tied it in the second on singles by Ron Fairly and Lou Johnson, a walk and a double-play grounder. The Cardinals brought home the winner in the seventh on successive singles by Bob Uecker, Curt Simmons and Julian Javier.

Simmons got the victory with a five-hitter for a 3-5 record, outdueling Sandy Koufax, now 6-3.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

I read an article recently in a national sporting magazine, entitled "A New Comic Act In New York." This article seems, to portray the new spirit of the New York Yankees. A new comic act, indeed. The Yanks seem to be trying to draw the crowds that their cross-town rivals the Mets pull in. To prove this the Yanks and Mets battled a couple of weeks ago. The mighty Mets, with their fearless leader ex-Yankee manager Casey Stengle, downed the American League champion Yankees, 2 to 1.

We quote from this magazine: "The once austere Yankees are now dedicated to fun. They got off to a bad start, but who's worrying?"

It seems to me someone should be worrying. It's a shame to spoil the great spirit of the Yankees winning, with this pack of clowns.

The goat of the whole deal, seems to be Johnny Keane, ex-manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals. Keane, 53, spent most of his baseball life in the minors. He had been in the St. Louis Cardinals chain for 29 years before being promoted to the parent club as a coach. As you well know, he led the Cards to a National League Pennant and a World Championship, over the New York Yankees.

The whole story concerns the evolution, of the Yanks, from the cold, dead serious, winners of the Ruth to DiMaggio era, to the happy clowns and goof offs of today.

It seems to me, winning would have kicks enough for any team.

Most baseball analysts still pick the Yanks as the team to beat in the American League. To us that makes about as much sense, as picking the Mets to carry off the Nation League honors.

In general the Yanks are still the same old Yanks, that is when they are healthy. The Yanks could win the pennant with a change for the better, to the sound playing attitude of their predecessors. Personally, I pick the Yanks for the second division!

A warning to water recreationists for the Memorial Day weekend of May 30th was issued today by the Missouri Boat Commission.

Thomas C. Gistrap, executive secretary of the commission, urged water recreationists to exercise extreme caution on the waters of the state, since traffic is expected to be extremely heavy.

All lakes and rivers will be carrying capacity loads of fishermen, divers, skiers, swimmers and boaters Friday through Monday, Gistrap said.

In anticipation of extremely heavy water traffic, five additional water patrolmen have been assigned to the lake of the Ozarks area.

He further reminded owners of boats, powered by motors over 10 horsepower, that the boats must be properly registered and numbered; that all outboard motors must be licensed; that each boat must have Coast Guard approved life preservers for each passenger aboard; that boats must have lights for night operation; that certificates of registration must be aboard when the boat is in operation.

He also urged boaters to give respect and extend courtesy of the water ways to other boaters.

Cape Finishes Baseball Season With 16-4 Record

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. -- Outfielder Steve Vaughn and pitcher Kermit Meystedt were the big guns in Southeast Missouri State College's recently-completed 16-4 record, the best in the history of the school.

Vaughn, a freshman from Dexter, led the team in batting with a muscular .428 average for the 20 games, while Meystedt, a Cape Girardeau sophomore, topped the mound staff with a 4-1 record. Meystedt was second in the earned run race with a 2.31 average, behind sophomore Joel Beaudean of Cape, who had a 0.82 average in compiling his 2-0 record.

The only teams on the schedule which the Indians were unable to beat were Southern Illinois University and the University of Tennessee at Martin. SEMO split two games with powerful Murray (Ky.) State.

Outfielder Gary Hearne, Belleville, Ill., junior, emerged as the team's leading home run producer, slamming five during the season, and finishing second in the RBI derby with 16. Vaughn, Wadlington, and catcher Floyd King, Cape junior, all hit three round-trippers.

Ralph Hachman, St. Louis freshman, led pitchers in strikeouts with 51 in 40 1/3 innings, compiling a 3-2 record and a 2.68 ERA. Meystedt, in 35 innings, whiffed 50.

Other pitchers and their records were: Ray Bahr, St. Louis junior, 3-1; Mike Portell, DeSoto freshman, 2-0; Pete Ulmer, Benton freshman, 1-0; and Steve Mosley, Cape junior, 1-0.

Indian pitchers allowed an average of only six hits and four runs per game. Only 2.64 runs were earned per game by opponents.

Mizzou Wins Big 8 Batting

Nebraska was the Big Eight leader in pitching and fielding, but Missouri's league champions offset this by carrying a big stick. In almost every offensive category, the Tigers were kings.

Missouri led in team batting at .310, runs 128, hits 174, doubles 29, triples 12 and home runs 23. In stolen bases, Missouri tied with Iowa State for third at 24, while Kansas State and Colorado shared the lead at 25.

Nebraska had an excellent team earned run average of 2.43. The Husker staff permitted only 46 runs, 36 of them earned. In fielding, Nebraska had a .958 mark, committing only 28 errors in 667 chances.

Missouri scored 128 runs, almost twice Nebraska's total and more than Oklahoma State, the runner-up with 96 runs. Missouri's pitching staff was sixth in ERA at 4.32 and the Tigers have up 79 runs, 66 earned.

The team slugging percentage reflects Missouri's big edge in power over the league. Tigers slugged .528, OSU .367 and Kansas .359 for third.

In team batting, OSU had .255, Iowa State .251, Kansas .246, Oklahoma .221, K-State .218. In team ERA Iowa State's fine staff was a close second with .261. Other marks were OSU 3.60, Colorado 3.78, Kansas 4.31, Oklahoma 4.68 and K-State 5.94.

Oklahoma was second in team fielding at .951, Missouri had .948, Iowa State .945, OSU .939, K-State .937, Kansas .937 and Colorado .936.

British Heavyweight Champion Henry Cooper Says Americans Should Be Fed Up With Such Boxers As Clay and Liston

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The American public must be getting fed up. Horizontal British heavyweights can do better than that."

That was the comment from Henry Cooper, British heavyweight champion, after watching the Cassius Clay-Sonny Liston title fight, beamed to London via Early Bird satellite.

The first big sporting event ever beamed live to Europe from the United States started at 3:30 a.m. — London time— and drew wry comments from two other British champions.

Tommy Farr, who lost a 15-round decision to then-champion Joe Louis, said:

"This is the blackest night in boxing — and I missed my beauty sleep to see this shocker."

Terry Downes, former middleweight champion, said:

The cries of "fix," and "fraud," "fake" were sounded in many theaters showing the closed-circuit television of the fight but there were no serious incidents.

A few people asked for their money back but Clay's mouth may have prevented further disturbances.

At Richmond, it was reported that most of the crowd of about 2,000 was engrossed by Clay's commentary when the fight was rerun in slow motion.

At Albany, N.Y., there was a short scuffle between two men when one complained:

"Your head was in my way and I missed the whole thing."

A portion of the crowd was distraught — before the fight started.

Baseball Leagues Honored At A Breakfast Meeting

The Mid-Towner was the scene Wednesday morning, as the First National Bank held a breakfast to honor coaches, officials and supporters of the Little League and Babe Ruth leagues of our city.

Clem Beal made this comment on the breakfast. "We wanted to show our appreciation for the dedication of the managers and officials of the Little League for their unselfish leadership, in helping the youth of our community."

Persons who were recognized for their outstanding service to the Leagues were as follows: Murray Farris, Little League Commissioner; Cline Ables, Babe Ruth League Commissioner. Louis Jones, who was unable to attend, received mention for his contributions to the teams. Mr. Jones is a State Executive of the Connie Mack League.

Special recognition was also given to the two League secretaries, Mrs. Johnnie Dacus of the Little League and Wanda McDaniel of the Babe Ruth League.

Representatives from the First National Bank were: Clem Beal, Vice President; Lee Shell, Cashier; Elmer Anderson, I.B.M. Supervisor.

The Sikeston Little League was formed in 1949 by Kendall Sikes, Joe Leslie, Bud Schrader, the late Jack Lancaster, and the late Bill Puckett. These five men laid the foundation for our present summer baseball system. They deserve much praise for Sikeston's fine caliber of baseball player, both in athletic ability and sportsmanship.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. AP -- Funeral services for Homer Norton, who put Texas A&M into the national football spotlight with great teams in the late 30s and early 40s, will be conducted here Friday.

Under Norton, the Aggies played in the Sugar Bowl in 1940, in the Cotton Bowl in 1941 and 1942, and in the Orange Bowl in 1944. His coaching record at A&M was 82-53-9.

Cardinals Defeat Dodgers 2 To 1, Javier Singles Home Winning Run In The Seventh

Brock, who has turned into Wills' shadow in a possible record-making race for the National League's stolen - base championship, came out on top in their first direct confrontation Wednesday night while the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Los Angeles Dodgers 2-1.

Brock, the Cardinals' swift left fielder, stole three bases for a season total of 21 in 39 games. Wills, the Dodgers record-holder and five-time champion, settled for one steal and a total of 25 in 40 games.

Wills, who stole 53 bases last year, predicted before the season started that someone would eventually break the record of 104 he set in 1962. And he hinted that it just might be the guy who played shortstop for the Dodgers.

"I think it's possible to break the record," Wills said. "And the way I feel I think I can go at top speed all the way. I feel better than when I was 18. Maybe I'm getting my second wind."

Brock, on the other hand, still is learning how to use his first wind. He's only 25 - and didn't develop into a Wills-type steal-int threat until he was turned loose after being acquired from the Chicago Cubs last June.

The Cardinals' victory pulled the defending world champions to within 1 1/2 games of the first-place Dodgers, who stayed one game ahead of Cincinnati in the tightening NL struggle as the Reds bowed to Houston 8-3.

Elsewhere, Milwaukee belted San Francisco 10-4, Pittsburgh upended Philadelphia 5-3 and the Chicago Cubs edged the New York Mets 8-6 in 10 innings.

In American League action, Minnesota outslugged Boston 9-7, Cleveland defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-1, Kansas City whipped Baltimore 6-3 and the Los Angeles Angels nipped Washington 2-1.

Brock scored the first Cardinal run in the first inning on Ken Boyer's sacrifice fly but the Dodgers tied it in the second on singles by Ron Fairly and Lou Johnson, a walk and a double-play grounder. The Cardinals brought home the winner in the seventh on successive singles by Bob Uecker, Curt Simmons and Julian Javier.

Simmons got the victory with a five-hitter for a 3-5 record, outdueling Sandy Koufax, now 6-3.

Sports TALK

By DON SAVAGE

I read an article recently in a national sporting magazine, entitled "A New Comic Act In New York." This article seems, to portray the new spirit of the New York Yankees. A new comic act, indeed. The Yanks seem to be trying to draw the crowds that their cross-town rivals the Mets pull in. To prove this the Yanks and Mets battled a couple of weeks ago. The mighty Mets, with their fearless leader ex-Yankee manager Casey Stengle, downed the American League champion Yankees, 2 to 1.

We quote from this magazine: "The once austere Yankees are now dedicated to fun. They got off to a bad start, but who's worrying?"

It seems to me someone should be worrying. It's a shame to spoil the great spirit of the Yankees winning, with this pack of clowns.

The goat of the whole deal, seems to be Johnny Keane, ex-manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals. Keane, 53, spent most of his baseball life in the minors. He had been in the St. Louis Cardinals chain for 29 years before being promoted to the parent club as a coach. As you well know, he led the Cards to a National League Pennant and a World Championship, over the New York Yankees.

The whole story concerns the evolution, of the Yanks, from the cold, dead serious, winners of the Ruth to DiMaggio era, to the happy clowns and goof offs of today.

It seems to me, winning would have kicks enough for any team.

Most baseball analyists still pick the Yanks as the team to beat in the American League. To us that makes about as much sense, as picking the Mets to carry off the Nation League honors.

In general the Yanks are still the same old Yanks, that is when they are healthy. The Yanks could win the pennant with a change for the better, to the sound playing attitude of their predecessors. Personally, I pick the Yanks for the second division!

A warning to water recreationists for the Memorial Day weekend of May 30th was issued today by the Missouri Boat Commission.

Thomas C. Gistrap, executive secretary of the commission, urged water recreationists to exercise extreme caution on the waters of the state, since traffic is expected to be extremely heavy.

All lakes and rivers will be carrying capacity loads of fishermen, divers, skiers, swimmers and boaters Friday through Monday, Gistrap said.

In anticipation of extremely heavy water traffic, five additional water patrolmen have been

Nebraska had an excellent team earned run average of 2.43. The Husker staff permitted only 46 runs, 36 of them earned. In fielding, Nebraska had a .958 mark, committing only 28 errors in 667 chances.

But the Huskers tied for last in runs scored with Oklahoma at 68 and their team batting mark of .216 outranked only Colorado's .212.

Missouri scored 128 runs, almost twice Nebraska's total and more than Oklahoma State, the runner-up with 96 runs. Missouri's pitching staff was sixth in ERA at 4.32 and the Tigers have up 79 runs, 66 earned.

The team slugging percentage reflects Missouri's big edge in power over the league. Tigers slugged .528, OSU .367 and Kansas .359 for third.

In team batting, OSU had .255, Iowa State .251, Kansas .246, Oklahoma .221, K-State .218. In team ERA Iowa State's fine staff was a close second with .261. Other marks were OSU 3.60, Colorado 3.78, Kansas 4.31, Oklahoma 4.68 and K-State 5.94.

Oklahoma was second in team fielding at .951, Missouri had .948, Iowa State .945, OSU .939, K-State .937, Kansas .937 and Colorado .936.

Ryun Signs Letter Of Intent At Kansas

LAWRENCE, Kan. AP--Kansas has signed 13 high school track stars to letters of intent, including a 16-1 pole vaulter and an outstanding distance runner, both from California.

Bob Steinhoff of Warren High School, Downey Calif., is the vaulter and Mike Hearns of Encino, Calif., is the distance runner.

Steinhoff has vaulted this year in the shadow of his teammate, Paul Wilson, the national leader at 16-6 3/4. But Bob Timmons, who will take over as Kansas track coach July 1, said "Bob beat Wilson twice this spring within 10 days."

Kearns has run 4:16.8 in the mile and a more outstanding 9:22.8 in the two-mile.

Another standout signed by KU was Gary Tucker of Kansas City, Kan., Argentine, Kansas shot put record holder at 62-7 1/4, fourth best in the nation.

Two of the signees, milers Jim Ryun and Mike Petterson of Wichita East, announced earlier their decisions to attend Kansas. Ryun's 3:58.3 mile is the only sub-4-minute mile in high school history. He was on the Olympic team last year. Petterson, with a best of 4:10.8, ranks high in the nation. He ran a 14.21.8 three-mile the same night, for the best such distance double on record.

The other signees are David Aikens of Eire, a 58-5 1/2 shot putter; Keith Christensen of Concordia, 57-5 1/4 shot putter; Ron Schrader of Harper, 6-5 high jump best; John Zook, Larned, 165-3 1/2 in discus; and Junior Riggins, Centralia, 9.9 sprinter and 22-6 broad jumper.

Single or double flowered portulacas will provide brilliance in that hot, dry place where nothing else will grow. They furnish a carpet of color that is hard to beat. All it takes is a packet of seeds and the planting — no further care.

Miracle Of West Europe

ERWIN D. CANHAM In
The Christian Science News

THE NETHERLANDS

The "miracle" of Western Europe's economic and sociological progress is nowhere more spectacular than in the Netherlands.

Netherlanders are going around these days looking like the cat that swallowed the canary. And who wouldn't? Suppose you and your parents and your grandparents had been told all your lives that your country had no natural resources to speak of. Therefore you must work hard -- and maybe acquire a colony or two -- and trade with other nations in order to achieve national wealth.

And suppose suddenly you discovered yourselves to be sitting on the world's second-largest pool of natural gas (40 trillion cubic feet). Suppose, in addition, you found rich promise of oil reserves not only offshore in the North Sea but right in your urban backyards?

ECONOMIC GAIN

Suppose, additionally, you realized that the loss of Indonesia had turned out to be an economic gain; The capital which formerly was invested in Southeast Asia turns out to be much more profitable invested in industrial growth at home.

Working diligently and skillfully within the broad range of the six-nation Common Market and with excellent trade relations with many other nations, the Dutch have never been more propserous than today. Moreover, the Indonesians now are making overtures to resume many of their old non-political relations with the Netherlands.

All this couldn't have happened to a finer people. Dutch sobriety, intelligence, cosmopolitanism, discipline, business skill, and cultural depth all blend into a powerful mixture. New factories and office buildings rise between the dikes but have not destroyed the picturesque look of the low fields or the compact charm of the many towns and cities.

EARMARKS OF. . .

There is a sense of humor, too. Last Thursday, a band of students descended upon the American consulate-general in Amsterdam. They bore signs which seemed to say: "Get Out of Vietnam" and "Stop Using Gas." It bore all the earmarks of a riot all too familiar in other capitals.

Somebody sent for the police. They came, complete with paddy wagons, determined to stop such violence on sober Dutch soil. Just as the arm of the law reached out for the students, they reversed their signs, which then read: "April First"! It was the nicest April Fool joke Uncle Sam has had for some time.

I had the pleasure of telling Queen Juliana of this episode, which got no publicity. She was obviously pleased and proud.

The simplicity and strength of her own position is typical. Soestdijk Palace, where I called on the Queen, is almost unguarded. We drove in past the sentry without pause; he expected us. Princess Margriet, who has just become engaged to a commoner, drove off in her little car just as we came.

A STABLE LAND

There can be few courts anywhere in the world which have less ostentation and more stability. So it is with the nation. Hard work, concentration, practicality, skills, ingenuity, education; these attributes produce national growth.

But they gain strength from a willingness to cooperate and combine sovereignty with other nations. The Netherlands is a deeply persuaded pioneer in the Common Market and the gradual unification of Europe. It is not overawed by its great German neighbor. It leaves the Russians to the United States.

The totally unexpected has happened. Twenty years after the end of the most cruel war in history, one of the occupied and devastated nations, the Netherlands, enjoys prosperity and growth the wildest dreamer did not envision. The miracle has come true.

It's Easier To Filter Pool Water

Until that happy day, the single most important aspect of maintenance for pool owners will be keeping the water pure through proper filtration.

Fortunately, today's filters operate with ease and economy. Many modern filters are more compact than their predecessors, won't rust or corrode, and can be cleaned and backwashed more easily. Periods between cleanings have been lengthened.

There are two basic types of water filters — sand and diatomite. Although both types are effective, the more compact diatomite units, the type used in most pools, offer greater efficiency and operational flexibility in less space.

Proper maintenance of filters involves cleaning every three to ten days. The interval between cleanings can be lengthened by proper care of pool with frequent vacuuming and skimming (either by hand or with automatic skimmer.) Careful control of algae will also cut operating costs. Clogging of diatomite filters can be prevented by proper precoating with diatomite filter aid.

Filters should be run so that the pool water is completely filtered every 18 to 24 hours.

BY RAY CROMLEY
Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — An analysis of the missiles paraded in Moscow on V-E Day indicates several new trends in Soviet military planning.

• Apparently there is a major shift away from the mammoth nuclear warheads the Russians have boastfully predicted they would turn to.

The 110-foot rocket the Russians paraded in Moscow will be able to carry loads larger than the U.S. Titan II, but not a great deal larger. Certainly it will not carry the 30, 50 or 100-megaton weapons the Soviet Union has said it would be prepared to drop on American targets in time of war.

Soviet planning appears to be geared to a vast increase in range rather than on a hefty increase in punch.

• New Soviet emphasis seems to be put on a Moscow version of the Minuteman concept. (One high U.S. officer calls it the Minutemansky.) That is, they apparently are aiming for a smaller, cheap, quick-reacting, intercontinental ballistic missile intended to deliver small loads precisely on target.

The 65-foot missile paraded in Moscow presumably would get the Russians into the "lower yield" accurate ICBM field. The Reds then would not be limited in ICBM capacity wholly to city destruction.

These missiles also would seem to indicate an increased preciseness in Soviet electronic guidance as applied to relatively small packages, an area in which they had been thought to lag well behind the United States.

• The squat "iron maiden" nuclear rocket paraded in Moscow on its own tracked, self-propelled vehicle points to a growing Moscow emphasis on mobile medium-range nuclear weapons integrated into Soviet ground armies.

Indications are that this weapon carries a punch as heavy or heavier than the U.S. Army can tote into the field in the Pershing or Sergeant. Its estimated range of 1,100 miles is several times as great as any U.S. mobile army weapon.

Defense Secretary Robert McNamara ordered research on a mobile intermediate range ballistic missile for the United States and North Atlantic Treaty Organization armies. But the project was almost wholly canceled out some time back. Only some peripheral work, usable in other systems, it is understood, is being continued.

McNamara's argument now is that in an overseas war—as in Europe—the Army's heavy nuclear punch can be delivered by the Navy's Polaris submarines.

• The Soviet Union apparently is developing a capability for sending its rockets into the United States from any direction, not just by the direct route over the North Pole.

The 110-foot rocket shown in the Moscow V-E Day parade reportedly has an orbital capability. This means the warhead could be put into orbit and then brought down when and where Moscow decides. It also means that the nuclear warhead could be fired around the world in any direction at an American target, thus making defense more difficult.

Everybody loves a winner. The way Chevelle sales are booming right now is solid proof of that. And it's easy to see why when you look over the car.

Take that handsome Malibu Super Sport above. Its luxury features include smart curved side windows, foam-cushioned seats front and rear, full carpeting, back-up and glove box lights and more. All standard—no extra cost! A few quality features include electric windshield wipers, smooth Full Coil suspension ride, Delcotron generator and self-adjusting brakes. All standard—no extra cost!

Power? Try our smooth, spirited 120-hp Hi-Thrift Six. Or you can order the optional 140-hp Turbo-Thrift Six. Accessories? A full list to choose from. Trade-ins? Most liberal. So your payments will be comfortable as your new Chevelle will be! In fact when you drive it home there'll be two heroes in your driveway. And two winners.

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and will all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. (Mark 12:30-31)

PRAYER: Most gracious Father, as we go about our daily tasks, we pray for Thy spirit to be in us, for Thou art love. Teach us to cultivate that love in our own hearts so that others may see Thy love, Thy compassion, expressed through us. In the spirit of Christ. Amen.

Armed Forces

FORT LEAVENWORTH, KAN. (AHTNC) -- Army National Guard Maj. Gen. Russell Boyt of 1323 Jobe St., Jefferson City, Mo., attended an officers refresher course at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., May 17-22.

The general is regularly assigned as assistant adjutant general in Headquarters, 35th Command, an Army National Guard unit in Jefferson City, Mo.

He is a graduate of Essex High School.

General Boyt's mother, Mrs. Marie Boyt, lives at 238 Matthews St., Dexter.

He is employed as assistant adjutant general by The Adjutant General in Jefferson City.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- Airman First Class Frederick L. Miles, a native of Independence, Mo., and a veteran of three years military service has been selected as the Second Air Force Maintenance Man of the Month.

Assigned to the 97th Armament and Electronics Squadron, Airman Miles is delegated duty as a radar navigation aids technician. He is responsible for flight line and shop maintenance of navigation aids equipment installed on B-52G and KC-135 aircraft.

According to Colonel George H. McKee, deputy commander for maintenance at the time, Airman Miles' nomination was "based primarily upon outstanding performance in maintaining tactical air navigation systems installed on assigned aircraft, and in determining and isolating problems in the system operation."

Prior to his enlistment in the Air Force in June 1952, he attended William Christman High School, Independence, Mo. Upon completion of basic military training at Lackland, AFB, Tex., he attended radar navigation school at Keesler AFB, Miss.

LIKES WIND IN FACE

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Norman Kleeman flies the most modern jet aircraft for a living. But for a hobby he pilots his own antique airplane, a Spartan Executive 7W, a single-engine plane built in 1938.

The American Airlines captain, who has more than a million miles to his flying credit, bought the ship two years ago and has spent much of his spare time rebuilding it. Now he wants to buy an open cockpit bi-plane. "There's more of a sensation flying in an open cockpit with the gushes of wind streaking across my face," he declares. "I even like to smell the exhaust."

PRAYER

For Today From The Upper Room

Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and will all thy strength: this is the first commandment. And the second is like, namely this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. (Mark 12:30-31)

PRAYER: Most gracious Father, as we go about our daily tasks, we pray for Thy spirit to be in us, for Thou art love. Teach us to cultivate that love in our own hearts so that others may see Thy love, Thy compassion, expressed through us. In the spirit of Christ. Amen.

Armed Forces

FORT LEAVENWORTH, KAN. (AHTNC) -- Army National Guard Maj. Gen. Russell Boyt of 1323 Jobe St., Jefferson City, Mo., attended an officers refresher course at the U. S. Army Command and General Staff College, Fort Leavenworth, Kan., May 17-22.

The general is regularly assigned as assistant adjutant general in Headquarters, 35th Command, an Army National Guard unit in Jefferson City, Mo.

He is a graduate of Essex High School.

He is employed as assistant adjutant general by The Adjutant General in Jefferson City.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- Airman First Class Frederick L. Miles, a native of Independence, Mo., and a veteran of three years military service has been selected as the Second Air Force Maintenance Man of the Month.

Assigned to the 97th Armament and Electronics Squadron, Airman Miles is delegated duty as a radar navigation aids technician. He is responsible for flight line and shop maintenance of navigation aids equipment installed on B-52G and KC-135 aircraft.

According to Colonel George H. McKee, deputy commander for maintenance at the time, Airman Miles' nomination was "based primarily upon outstanding performance in maintaining tactical air navigation systems installed on assigned aircraft, and in determining and isolating problems in the system operation."

Prior to his enlistment in the Air Force in June 1952, he attended William Christman High School, Independence, Mo. Upon completion of basic military training at Lackland, AFB, Tex., he attended radar navigation school at Keesler AFB, Miss.

LIKES WIND IN FACE

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Norman Kleeman flies the most modern jet aircraft for a living. But for a hobby he pilots his own antique airplane, a Spartan Executive 7W, a single-engine plane built in 1938.

The American Airlines captain, who has more than a million miles to his flying credit, bought the ship two years ago and has spent much of his spare time rebuilding it. Now he wants to buy an open cockpit bi-plane. "There's more of a sensation flying in an open cockpit with the gushes of wind streaking across my face," he declares. "I even like to smell the exhaust."

Parents and friends of the students enjoyed the afternoon.

EXTRA SHOWER NO PROBLEM IN MOST HOMES

Many homeowners today install an extra shower in a bathroom, powder room, recreation room, mud room, attic or garage. To cut down on installation costs, they locate the added shower facility as near as possible to existing piping. Finding space is rarely a problem.

The usual size for a shower compartment is 36" X 36". An extra shower adds to the resale value of your home, and more important, gives your family increased convenience and livability.

Officers elected for the new year are President -- Mrs. Jewel Scales; Vice President --Mrs. Beverly Freeman; Secretary -- Mrs. June Leek; Treasurer -- Mrs. James Hewitt.

Miss Janet Flier, Home Economics Teacher, furnished the program by showing slides of her trip abroad last summer. Refreshments of cookies, which the Home Economics Class baked, and coffee were served.

PTA Executive Committee Has Joint Meeting

On Monday, May 3, the final meeting of the Executive Committee for Southwest Elementary School met. These committees were the outgoing people for the school year of 1964-65 and the newly elected and appointed people for the coming year, along with their wives or husbands.

The group met at the school at 6:30 for a pot luck supper.

In attendance were approximately 35 people who enjoyed a delicious meal. The invocation was given by Everett Win. Following the meeting, Dr. John L. Doggett, the outgoing president, gave some closing remarks thanking the old officers and committees for their excellent cooperation. He introduced Lee Shell, the incoming president and together they read aloud the retiring individuals and the new P. T. A. members taking their places.

PHONY AS A THREE DOLLAR BILL?—A three dollar bill has been found along with other denominations—5, 10, 20, 50, and 100—at Fort Totten, N. Y. Two soldiers, Sp4 James E. McAtee, and Sp4 Kenneth R. Vitty found the money in a rusted box at the site of a Spanish-American War gun battery at Fort Totten. The money, issued by the Republic of Texas during the period 1838-1841, was signed by the Texas hero, Sam Houston, while president of the Republic. The finders are trying to determine the authenticity of the money.

Reactions Vary To Delaying Age Process

NEW YORK - A variety of reaction ranging from "great," to "contrary to nature," and "highly unlikely" came today from both young and old after a pathologist suggested that science might someday delay the aging process.

Dr. Robert R. Kohn, a pathologist at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, says "there's no theoretical reason why we should not be able to keep people as they are at age 20 to 30 for another 40 years."

"Assuming society would want it," added Kohn. He offered the theory that aging is a normal disease and conceivably susceptible to being inhibited by chemical or other means.

Some indicated they would want it, such as baseball catcher Joe Torre, 24, of the Milwaukee Braves, who said, "It would be great," and Harold Lloyd, a comedian who starred in the silent - picture era, who remarked, "I'm all for it."

Others indicated they would prefer to let nature take its own course.

Marilyn Wahl, 21, a Los Angeles airline stewardess, said: "I don't think I'd like it. There are rewards in growing older and maturing. There's pros and cons -- growing old with your children and enjoying some of the things they do. But there's something wonderful about maturing. Being twice as long, the 20-to-30 age bracket wouldn't be quite so enjoyable."

A Dallas lawyer who is approaching 80 said, "There is no need to speculate about remaining 20 to 30. That is contrary to nature, the Bible and the Lord's decree."

"I think people from 20 to 30 are dying faster than older folks or they soon will be," said Mrs. Bittner. "The reason is they live too fast. Bad diets and carelessness with their health in general puts them in bad shape. Why make more people get into bad shape by keeping them at a careless age?"

Dr. Strickland, one of the youngest women deans in the country, said prolonging life between the ages of 20 and 30 "would be wonderful -- if you were able to continually mature."

"Youth without wisdom and knowledge would have no advantage," she added.

Dr. John Knowles, 39, general director and physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital and lecturer at the Harvard Medical School, opined: "The process of aging and death is inexorable and inevitable."

Bill Ingram, 21, a Dallas college student, said he would like to stay 20 forever, but "some people can't cope with life and probably prefer death -- look at the suicides."

Ingram said he agreed with a statement by Dr. Bernice L. Neugarten, of the University of Chicago, who said: "The assumption is unproven that people would like to live longer than they now do -- or that they would be better off if they did."

Drs. Neugarten and Kohn made their comments Wednesday in Washington at a conference on research progress and trends in aging sponsored by the National Institutes of Health.

Kohn defined aging as "a normal biological process with onset sometime around maturity." He suggested it's primarily due to progressive changes in "collagen," a chemical occuring in the connective tissue outside the body's cells.

Save Those Postcards

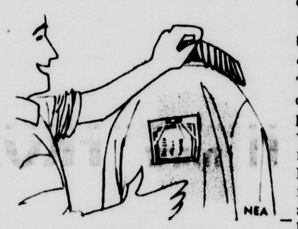
Polly

DEAR POLLY— I used to throw away the pretty postcards sent to me by friends who were in faraway places. Now I tape all these cards on the kitchen wall and keep them throughout the year. At the beginning of each new year I start all over again. Friends and even repairmen notice them and enjoy looking to see where the pictures are from and often will comment that they would like to go to a particular place. It is interesting to see how far they come from and who remembers me throughout a year. Friends will often write on their cards, "I hope mine will be the first card for the new year," or "Perhaps this is the last card for this year." I enjoy looking at them as I relax in the kitchen.—ALICE

DEAR POLLY— My Pointer is for all those male readers of your column. I misplaced the celluloid case in which I always inserted my hunting license so it could be worn for all to see. I put my license in a small plastic bag, fastened with a diaper pin and had a perfect case which exposed the hunting license in full view but protected from rain and snow. —DAN



DEAR POLLY— I store potatoes in the top drawer by my kitchen sink. This is much handier than standing on my head to dig them out from under the sink, which seems to be the standard storage place for potatoes.— CAROLE, "1955 Homemaker of Tomorrow" in Missouri.

DEAR POLLY— Don't throw away that empty cylinder that was the center of a toilet tissue roll. It comes in mighty handy for use as a "writing reservoir." Clip all those easily misplaced ball point pens and mechanical pencils to either edge with the barrels inside or out.— FLORENCE

DEAR POLLY—Recently a member of my club left six children and a big house to be looked after when she went to the hospital for surgery. Instead of sending flowers, books or candy to our friend we club members set up a schedule and kept the house clean, windows washed and so on.—B. C.

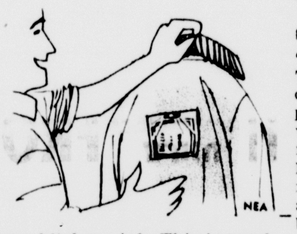
It is interesting to see how far they come from and who remembers me throughout a year. Friends will often write on their cards, "I hope mine will be the first card for the new year," or "Perhaps this is the last card for this year." I enjoy looking at them as I relax in the kitchen.—ALICE

DEAR POLLY—My Pointer is for all those male readers of your column. I misplaced the celluloid case in which I always inserted my hunting license so it could be worn for all to see. I put my license in a small plastic bag, fastened with a diaper pin and had a perfect case which exposed the hunting license in full view but protected from rain and snow. —DAN



DEAR POLLY—I store potatoes in the top drawer by my kitchen sink. This is much handier than standing on my head to dig them out from under the sink, which seems to be the standard storage place for potatoes.—CAROLE, "1955 Homemaker of Tomorrow" in Missouri.

DEAR POLLY—Recently a member of my club left six children and a big house to be looked after when she went to the hospital for surgery. Instead of sending flowers, books or candy to our friend we club members set up a schedule and kept the house clean, windows washed and so on.—B. C.

PHONY AS A THREE DOLLAR BILL?—A three dollar bill has been found along with other denominations—5, 10, 20, 50, and 100—at Fort Totten, N. Y. Two soldiers, Sp4 James E. McAtee, and Sp4 Kenneth R. Vitty found the money in a rusted box at the site of a Spanish-American War gun battery at Fort Totten. The money, issued by the Republic of Texas during the period 1838-1841, was signed by the Texas hero, Sam Houston, while president of the Republic. The finders are trying to determine the authenticity of the money.

Reactions Vary To Delaying Age Process

NEW YORK - A variety of reaction ranging from "great," to "contrary to nature," and "highly unlikely" came today from both young and old after a pathologist suggested that science might someday delay the aging process.

Dr. Robert R. Kohn, a pathologist at Western Reserve University in Cleveland, says "there's no theoretical reason why we should not be able to keep people as they are at age 20 to 30 for another 40 years."

"Assuming society would want it," added Kohn. He offered the theory that aging is a normal disease and conceivably susceptible to being inhibited by chemical or other means.

Some indicated they would want it, such as baseball catcher Joe Torre, 24, of the Milwaukee Braves, who said, "It would be great," and Harold Lloyd, a comedian who starred in the silent - picture era, who remarked, "I'm all for it."

Others indicated they would prefer to let nature take its own course.

Marilyn Wahl, 21, a Los Angeles airline stewardess, said: "I don't think I'd like it. There are rewards in growing older and maturing. There's pros and cons -- growing old with your children and enjoying some of the things they do. But there's something wonderful about maturing. Being twice as long, the 20-to-30 age bracket wouldn't be quite so enjoyable."

A Dallas lawyer who is approaching 80 said, "There is no need to speculate about remaining 20 to 30. That is contrary to nature, the Bible and the Lord's decree."

"I think people from 20 to 30 are dying faster than older folks or they soon will be," said Mrs. Bittner. "The reason is they live too fast. Bad diets and carelessness with their health in general puts them in bad shape. Why make more people get into bad shape by keeping them at a careless age?"

Dr. Strickland, one of the youngest women deans in the country, said prolonging life between the ages of 20 and 30 "would be wonderful -- if you were able to continually mature."

"Youth without wisdom and knowledge would have no advantage," she added.

Dr. John Knowles, 39, general director and physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital and lecturer at the Harvard Medical School, opined: "The process of aging and death is inexorable and inevitable."

Bill Ingram, 21, a Dallas college student, said he would like to stay 20 forever, but "some people can't cope with life and probably prefer death -- look at the suicides."

Ingram said he agreed with a statement by Dr. Bernice L. Neugarten, of the University of Chicago, who said: "The assumption is unproven that people would like to live longer than they now do -- or that they would be better off if they did."

Drs. Neugarten and Kohn made their comments Wednesday in Washington at a conference on research progress and trends in aging sponsored by the National Institutes of Health.

Kohn defined aging as "a normal biological process with onset sometime around maturity." He suggested it's primarily due to progressive changes in "collagen," a chemical occuring in the connective tissue outside the body's cells.

'Don't Call Us Kids' Any More

BATTALION, South Viet Nam AP -- "Tell them not to call us kids; we don't feel like kids any more," a rangy 18-year-old Marine said.

The Marines here are for the most part young in terms of age. But old timers feel that combat patrols against the Viet Cong have added maturity.

Lance Cpl. Marvin Shirey, 19, leads a three-man fire team. He is the only man of the original unit who has not been hit. One died with a bullet in his heart. The second was shot in the stomach.

The rangy, Jacksonville, Tex., Marine said, "It isn't bad luck, they were just in the wrong place at the wrong time. And we got some of them (the Viet Cong)."

Staff Sgt. Danny Thomas, Chester, Ill., 3rd Platoon's sergeant, commented: "The third oldest man in the platoon is 23. But since we got some action, the men have taken on a new look. They're older somehow.

Echo Company, which includes Shirley's and Thomas' Platoon, has counted one dead and nine wounded in initial U.S. Marine clashes with the Viet Cong.

Although well-indoctrinated on what to expect in Viet Nam, some of the Marines are finding it tough to adapt themselves to guerrilla warfare here. So far there has been no hard contact with a large Viet Cong force and casualties have come from snipers and booby traps. One Marine was shot in the side with an arrow.

"Everyone is teed off that we can't get them into the open and have it out," one private first class said.

"They are as good now as the Marines of 20 years ago. There's no way around it, you can't take it away from the young ones. You've got to admire them."

Birth Control And The Law

REPLY TO CHARGE

Welfare officials reply that they would be violating no law — they would merely be referring welfare recipients to local health departments and public hospitals, on a voluntary basis.

Here, too, the issue will probably be decided through political give and take from which a final policy will emerge.

A similar threat has been raised in Minnesota, where a Comstock-period law is being referred to as a legal bar to clinic referrals for welfare clients. A bill has been introduced in the Minnesota Legislature to repeal the ancient ban and clear the way for uncontested public-clinic programs.

Finally, in other states where no laws exist which might be interpreted as restrictive, permissive legislation is being sought which would specifically authorize officials to use public funds in support of family-planning clinics.

WATCHING THE COURTS

For all these reasons, the situation differs widely from state to state and is highly fluid. In the Connecticut case, a far-reaching decision by the U.S. Supreme Court could doom all restrictive legislation in time. An adverse decision would leave the picture blurred and make clinics dependent on political climates.

Family-planning advocates are therefore attending to their local problems while keeping a watchful eye on the Supreme Court.

FAIR WARNING

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I enjoyed your definition of "class." And now will your please give us another definition? What is charm anyway?--Mg

Dear Mg: Charm walks on art gum soles. It is gentle. But it packs a wallop like a bag of wet cement.

Charm is a magical quality that defrosts, disarms, delights and fascinates. It is not a sudden attack of sweetness that can be turned off and on like a faucet. It is woven into the fabric of the personality like a silver thread. It glistens. It shines and it wears well. For months. For years. Forever.

Dear Ann Landers: I married at 25 and I've had three children in the last five years. I worked through all my pregnancies but I'm not complaining because I felt very good the whole time. (The last baby was almost born in the store.)

I want to quit work but my husband says we can't make it on one check and it's unfair of me to put the whole burden on him.

For the past two months I have kept a penny by penny record of what I have spent because I am working. After I paid the housekeeper, added up the taxis, lunches, buses, income tax on my salary, payroll deductions and the salary for a nurse when my youngest child was sick, I cleared an average of $72 a month. This does not include the cost of clothes I need because I work downtown.

Am I being unfair to my husband? What shall I do?--RASSLING WITH MY CONSCIENCE

Dear Rassling: Quit. Your young family needs you more than you need the $72 a month.

Mothers of pre-school children belong at home unless there is a good reason why they must go out and work. The only valid reasons are

(a) There is no other breadwinner in the family.

(b) A doctor has told the mother her kids are driving her nuts and she must get away from the house for their good as well as hers. These women should not have had children of course, but they did have them and a program of separation must be worked out.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's boss is the most proper, courteous, and soft-spoken person in the world--when he is sober. When he gets drunk (which is about once a week) he is profane, vulgar and rude, and he loves to call people and talk on the telephone regardless of the hour.

Last night at 2:00 a.m. he called from a bar and sang two choruses of "Wait 'til the Sun Shines Nellie." He then put a few buddies on the line--men he would not have been caught dead with if he had been sober. They sang some dirty songs my husband recognized from the army.

We resent having our sleep broken up this way, especially on Saturday night because we like to go to early mass on Sunday. My husband is afraid to talk to the boss about this for obvious reasons. I think he should. Please give us some advice.--BLOODSHOT EYES

Dear Eyes: Mentioning this to the boss won't accomplish a thing. Telephone drunks are incurable--unless they go off the sauce.

The telephone company can install a jack-type phone which can be plugged out, or a bell control which will shut off the bell at the flick of a lever. The cost is nominal, compared to what a night's sleep is worth to a family.

Do you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THEN AND NOW—Out of Mississippi in 1958 came a wholesome, freckle-faced youngster named Mary Ann Mobley. Her talent, personality and dazzling smile carried Mary Ann to the pinnacle of all beauty contest aspirants—Miss America 1959, at left. Now, seven years later, Mary Ann shows great promise as an actress. More beautiful these days, if possible, she appears more mature, right, with an acquired sultry-eyed look which is having the desired impact on film fans. Beneath the Hollywood facade, however, Mary Ann says: "I see the real me—freckles and all."

Now, tight supplies have hiked top prices for steers 13 per cent and for top-quality hogs 34 per cent — highest in years.

—Last fall's harvest of potatoes was poor in the Midwest and West because of a damaging frost. New potatoes aren't due on the market until the end of June and the last of the 1964 crop is running out, brokers report.

—An early winter freeze and rough spring weather— floods, tornados, drought —have cut into the fruit and vegetable crops.

—Many in the produce markets blame the government's decision to end the "bracero program," under which Mexican workers were brought into California to help harvest lettuce, tomatoes, asparagus, strawberries and other crops that have to be picked by hand. Acreage planted is down, as well as harvests, produce dealers say.

Steve D'Arrigo, a New York City produce dealer, says that there still are some vegetables that are lower — corn on the cob, broccoli, fresh peas and squash.

Some sample prices: Chicago —Potatoes 9-12 cents a pound compared with 7-8 cents last spring, lettuce 29 cents a head Boston — Lettuce 39, up 20 cents, cabbage 19, up 10, potatoes — 5 lb. — 65, up 16.

Ready to Soup Up Economy

NEW YORK — Both psychological and monetary weapons are being readied to ward off any letdown in Americans' confidence that prosperity is here to stay.

Government officials and agencies are now starting a chorus of warnings that people mustn't expect too much. They seek to prevent nervousness if the big upsurge in the early months of this year isn't duplicated in the next few months.

At the same time, new monetary stimulants for the economy are on order for this fall. One is the cut in excise taxes which Congress is pushing through speedily. Another is an increase in Social Security benefits this fall, just ahead of the rise in Social Security taxes Jan. 1.

The new money from the tax cut and the more generous payments to the growing number of retired is counted upon to boost consumer spending.

Government spending is going up, too. Some see more defense outlays in the making. Many of the antipoverty programs are ripe for expansion.

Federal debt is due for another rise. It is now $316 billion but the Treasury says it will be $326 billion a year from now. Wall Street regards that as inflationary, however Washington may view it. Stock market observers say prices went up as a result of the Treasury's request that the debt limit be raised.

Business plans for expansion spending are revised upward steadily.

All these should help to insulate public confidence from any shock if there's a downturn this summer in economic statistics, or any slowdown in the rate of growth.

Stress is laid on the signs that 1965 as a whole is going to be a prosperous year, even if the rate of growth varies from quarter to quarter, as it usually does in any year.

Government agencies are also stressing that the big spurt ahead in the first quarter of 1965 was both unexpected and due in part to unusual circumstances. Always cited are the catch-up in auto sales after shortages due to last fall's strikes, and the build-up in steel inventories as a hedge against a possible strike in that key industry.

But even if some letdown develops in both industries, auto makers and steel producers alike are still expecting 1965's production and sales to set new highs for any one year.

A year ago government and private economists were worried lest there be a turndown in the economy in the last half of 1965. Now few indeed expect that. What they're talking about now is further growth, but a less breathless one.

RICHMOND, Calif. (AP) — Three passengers assured David Hagar, cab driver, they would tell him which way to go in the predawn darkness when it was raining so hard that Hagar's windshield wiper was doing little good.

At one corner, a passenger said to Hagar "turn here." Hagar did. Pulled out of the water, he learned he had driven his cab down Cutting Boulevard's boat ramp into the bay. The passengers sloshed ashore without paying.

Escapes Bedroom Scenes

Rock Hudson continues his escape from the bedroom farces. His next film will be "Seconds," which he describes as a horror picture. But not the Vincent Price variety, it should be added; this one will stress psycholigical horror. It is being directed by John Frankenheimer, the young suspense master who made "The Manchurian Candidates" and "Seven Days in May."

Carroll Baker wasn't too exhausted after finishing "Harlow" to toss a wing-ding party at her house. Between dances she commented that the film was the toughest she has tackled. And not only because of the virus that kept her out of the pciture for two weeks.

"It was the first time I have done a picture that was glamorous and heavily dramatic," she said. "That meant two or three hours of being made up and then going into emotional scenes all day."

Carroll's reward for her labors: Three month's rest on the Riviera. Harlow never had it so good.

There will be a Fonda reunion on the sands of Malibu this summer. Jane has a house at the beach while she's shooting "The Chase." When papa Henry finishes "Battle of the Bulge" in Spain, he'll take a house a few doors away that Jane rented for him. He'll bring his 10-year-old daughter, whom Jane hasn't seen in two years. Also, son Peter and his family will be nearby.

Gene Kelly hopes to direct a new "Beau Geste" as his next film; he has done spectacular musicals but never a real spectacle. The project is not in the hands of the Universal bigwigs, who are deciding whether to make the $6 million outlay.

"I want to do it right or not at all," said Gene. "That means shooting it in the Sahara with thousands of Arabs."

Do you know the secrets of growing beautiful morning glories? There are two. Nick the seeds with a file before you plant them and select a place with poor soil to do the planting. Good, rich soil makes the plants grow vine and leaf rather than produce flowers.

The process of printing is much older than the 15th century European development of Gutenberg's time. Babylonians used seals to print their signatures on wet clay tablets. Chinese printed with wooden blocks and passed the art on to the Japanese, who in 770 A.D. were supposed to have printed 1,000,000 copies of a prayer charm. The oldest block book was printed by Buddhists in China in 868 A.D.

Food Costs Rise

NEW YORK (AP) — It is costing more to fill the family dinner plate with meat, potatoes and fresh vegetables.

An Associated Press survey indicates that the prices will keep rising a while longer.

Beef and pork have risen sharply this spring, after more than a year of bargain levels for housewives.

Good stores generally report markedly higher prices for vegetables, too — as much as 50 per cent higher in Kansas City.

"Highest all-time prices," says Peter Asta of Asta Produce Co. in Kansas City.

"Never saw prices so high and quality so poor," says Steve Hatton, Kansas City manager for George De Paoli Co., another produce wholesaler.

Most food stores surveyed put their increase at about 15 per cent higher than last spring. It varies by region.

The stores report that the biggest increases are for iceberg or head lettuce, tomatoes, cabbage and potatoes — all big-volume vegetables.

Behind the high cost of eating are a number of factors:

Fog Settles Over Dominican Republic

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON -- Fog has settled over the Dominican Republic where the Johnson administration has tried to end the revolution and so far has failed.

First, this brief background on a courtry which lived 31 years under a dictator and now has two "presidents":

From 1930 until his assassination in 1961 Gen. Rafael Trujillo was absolute dictator while those around him got rich in a land of poverty. There were, of course, no real political parties.

After his death the Dominicans struggled through four governments and then, in a free election, chose Juan Bosch president. He lasted seven months until he was thrown out in 1963 by the military which scrapped the constitution and set up a five-man junta.

Although the United States recognized this junta, it lacked mass support and was heaved out in the revolution which began April 24. The military, defying the rebels, quickly set up another junta.

Skipping over the intervening weeks, this is the picture now:

There are two warring factions, the five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera as "president" and the rebels headed by Col. Francisco Caamano Deno as "president."

On April 28 President Johnson sent in Marines. At first he said they were there to save American lives; later he said they were there to prevent a take-over by Communists who, he explained, controlled the revolution.

Then on the weekend of May 15 he sent in his special adviser, McGeorge Bundy, a former Harvard dean, as his trouble-shooter. Bundy returned to Washington Wednesday after 10 days in the Dominican Republic. He hadn't solved anything.

What he tried to do was get both sides to agree to a coalition government. To do this, the United States wanted the two leaders, Imbert and Caamano, to step down. But Imbert refused. This was a blow to Bundy and Johnson.

The United States had not only supported the Imbert junta--some say it was created at U. S. suggestion--but two weeks ago was considering recognizing it as the government.

But Imbert reportedly lacked mass support and a week ago U. S. policy shifted support away from Imbert, urging that he and Caamano both step aside.

Caamano may have undergone a change, too. In the past he had said he would step down but Wednesday he told newsmen no agreement had been reached on forming a coalition although, he said, his talks with Bundy had helped chances for a solution.

When Bundy came home he left the task of working out an agreement with both sides to Dr. Jose Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States.

Meanwhile, the OAS had voted 14 to 4 to send in a Latin-American peacekeeping force with troops from five countries, about 2,000 in all. As they move in the United States will withdraw about 1,700 of its 21,000 troops.

The U. S. ambassador to the OAS, Ellsworth Bunker, seems to see great things in store for the idea of an OAS peacekeeping force. This was the first time Latin-American countries had ever agreed to anything like this.

He called it a "historic action," hoped it would become a precedent for a permanent hemisphere peacekeeping force. But there's a good chance it won't and for several reasons.

Not all Latin-American countries are happy with the U. S. intervention in this case and all of them, along with the United States, 17 years ago agreed in the OAS charter that no state or group of states has a right to intervene in any American state's internal problems for any reason.

When Johnson sent in the Marines he was going contrary to this agreement signed by the United States, but the OAS by sending in the peacekeeping force was also acting contrary to its own charter.

And now the Johnson administration is beginning to soft-pedal the idea that the Communists, as Johnson said May 2, control the revolution and even seems to be making its own doublecheck on its information about the Reds.

The U. S. Central Intelligence Agency has the job of checking on things like Communists in other countries and Johnson presumably relied on CIA information when he talked of Red control in the Dominican Republic.

But now the White House has in effect acknowledged the FBI is in there checking, too.

Movement Of Oversized loads To Be Prohibited

Missouri highways won't be crowded with oversized vehicles during Memorial Day and six other holidays this year, the Missouri State Highway Department announced today.

Chief Engineer M. J. Snider said movement of overdimension and overweight loads under special permits will be prohibited on four weekend holidays and three single holidays this year.

This policy, aimed at making highways safer for the general public on heavy-traffic holidays, is not a new one, Snider pointed out. The dates are announced to permit advance planning for movement of such loads.

The holidays covered this year by the policy are:

Memorial Day--From 12 noon May 28 until the morning of June 1.

Fourth of July--From 12 noon July 2 until the morning of July 6.

Labor Day -- From 12 noon September 3 until the morning of September 7.

Columbus Day--October 12.
Veterans' Day--November 17.

Fog Settles Over Dominican Republic

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON -- Fog has settled over the Dominican Republic where the Johnson administration has tried to end the revolution and so far has failed.

First, this brief background on a courtry which lived 31 years under a dictator and now has two "presidents":

From 1930 until his assassination in 1961 Gen. Rafael Trujillo was absolute dictator while those around him got rich in a land of poverty. There were, of course, no real political parties.

After his death the Dominicans struggled through four governments and then, in a free election, chose Juan Bosch president. He lasted seven months until he was thrown out in 1963 by the military which scrapped the constitution and set up a five-man junta.

Although the United States recognized this junta, it lacked mass support and was heaved out in the revolution which began April 24. The military, defying the rebels, quickly set up another junta.

Skipping over the intervening weeks, this is the picture now:

There are two warring factions, the five-man civilian-military junta headed by Gen. Antonio Imbert Barrera as "president" and the rebels headed by Col. Francisco Caamano Deno as "president."

On April 28 President Johnson sent in Marines. At first he said they were there to save American lives; later he said they were there to prevent a take-over by Communists who, he explained, controlled the revolution.

Then on the weekend of May 15 he sent in his special adviser, McGeorge Bundy, a former Harvard dean, as his trouble-shooter. Bundy returned to Washington Wednesday after 10 days in the Dominican Republic. He hadn't solved anything.

What he tried to do was get both sides to agree to a coalition government. To do this, the United States wanted the two leaders, Imbert and Caamano, to step down. But Imbert refused. This was a blow to Bundy and Johnson.

The United States had not only supported the Imbert junta--some say it was created at U. S. suggestion--but two weeks ago was considering recognizing it as the government.

But Imbert reportedly lacked mass support and a week ago U. S. policy shifted support away from Imbert, urging that he and Caamano both step aside.

Caamano may have undergone a change, too. In the past he had said he would step down but Wednesday he told newsmen no agreement had been reached on forming a coalition although, he said, his talks with Bundy had helped chances for a solution.

When Bundy came home he left the task of working out an agreement with both sides to Dr. Jose Mora, secretary-general of the Organization of American States.

Meanwhile, the OAS had voted 14 to 4 to send in a Latin-American peacekeeping force with troops from five countries, about 2,000 in all. As they move in the United States will withdraw about 1,700 of its 21,000 troops.

The U. S. ambassador to the OAS, Ellsworth Bunker, seems to see great things in store for the idea of an OAS peacekeeping force. This was the first time Latin-American countries had ever agreed to anything like this.

He called it a "historic action," hoped it would become a precedent for a permanent hemisphere peacekeeping force. But there's a good chance it won't and for several reasons.

Not all Latin-American countries are happy with the U. S. intervention in this case and all of them, along with the United States, 17 years ago agreed in the OAS charter that no state or group of states has a right to intervene in any American state's internal problems for any reason.

When Johnson sent in the Marines he was going contrary to this agreement signed by the United States, but the OAS by sending in the peacekeeping force was also acting contrary to its own charter.

And now the Johnson administration is beginning to soft-pedal the idea that the Communists, as Johnson said May 2, control the revolution and even seems to be making its own doublecheck on its information about the Reds.

The U. S. Central Intelligence Agency has the job of checking on things like Communists in other countries and Johnson presumably relied on CIA information when he talked of Red control in the Dominican Republic.

But now the White House has in effect acknowledged the FBI is in there checking, too.

Movement Of Oversized loads To Be Prohibited

Missouri highways won't be crowded with oversized vehicles during Memorial Day and six other holidays this year, the Missouri State Highway Department announced today.

Chief Engineer M. J. Snider said movement of overdimension and overweight loads under special permits will be prohibited on four weekend holidays and three single holidays this year.

This policy, aimed at making highways safer for the general public on heavy-traffic holidays, is not a new one, Snider pointed out. The dates are announced to permit advance planning for movement of such loads.

The holidays covered this year by the policy are:

Memorial Day--From 12 noon May 28 until the morning of June 1.

Fourth of July--From 12 noon July 2 until the morning of July 6.

Labor Day -- From 12 noon September 3 until the morning of September 7.

Columbus Day--October 12.

Veterans' Day--November 17.

Thanksgiving--November 25.

Christmas -- From 12 noon December 24 until the morning of December 27.

The policy does not prohibit moving loads that are only overheight up to 13 1/2 feet.

The Department issues special permits for oversized loads through its Division of Maintenance.

Lightest Mexico

By John Abney

Mexico City--So there we sat exchanging observations and opinions over some free coffee with Mr. Jim Shirley at his Shirley Courts.

Mr. Shirley put his motel in the downtown section where the tourists who came driving into the city almost run through his front gate before they realize it. (He keeps the back gate locked.)

U. S. style food, milk shakes and honest hamburgers in his excellent restaurant which has a combination of modern and African decoration.

And when I walked into the restaurant I almost fainted for there stood a monstrous African lion with a hungry look on his face. Gave me the feeling of being invited to dinner as the main course.

"Don't give him a second thought," Mr. Shirley said. "He is stuffed and has been dead a long time."

Mr. Shirley shot the lion, along with some rhinos and other creatures, in Africa during one of his hunting safaris. There is a rhino head mounted over the door and you can hang your hat on his nose horn if you are around eight feet tall.

So the conversation drifted from Mr. Shirley's stuffed zoo in the restaurant to flying. He being a red-blooded aviation addict who flits about the nation in his own plane.

It has been reported by several reliable bootblacks that Mr. Shirley will leave a board meeting and discuss flying machines with any air-minded gentleman who happens to wander in.

"Do you know Mexico is the greatest country in the world for air travel?" he said. "There are scads of people who fly down to see the country by light plane."

Then he sent for some charts and navigation equipment and said just look at all the landing strips around here. Georgeous, secluded places that can be reached only by air.

And he navigated with a ruler from one chart to another and said here you have beautiful mountain country to fly over and over here are high plateaus. Up here is a lake with marvelous trout fishing and then you have the jungle country and you can fly to all these villages along the coast that you can't get to by car.

And I turned the chair a little so this stuffed lion could not see me very well. Read a book once that said you should never let beasts sense you are nervous about them.

"Tell me about your safaris to Africa," I said.

"Were you nervous when the rhino came charging out of the bush and you popped him?"

And Mr. Shirley said, "Well, I potted several rhinos and they come at you like a jet airplane. You know we have a flying club here."

"Gee, imagine shooting a rhino," Isaid. "Did you see any dragons?"

So Mr. Shirley got a gleam in his eye. "The Executive Aviators Club, right by the Beechcraft Company. You know where that is."

And I said, "I understand some types of antelopes can jump forty feet."

"The club is really good," said Mr. Shirley. "We have a Link Trainer, a good library, maps, bar, hi-fi, dues are only four bucks a month and we have a chess table."

"You mean they play chess there?"

"Certainly," he said, getting out an application form. "And flying is the natural way for a guy like you to get around and cover the whole country. You write about everything."

It ended up that I am now a member of The Executive Aviators Club and Mr. Shirley is talking me into getting a flying machine so I can sail around the skies to exotic, new places.

Turned out to be the most expensive cup of free coffee I ever had.

Designer of the U.S. "Mercury" dime was A. A. Weinman. His design first appeared in 1916 and lasted until 1945.

GAS WARFARE

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) —Lake Country Sheriff Willis McCall has received three complaints of bee hives being gassed.

The sheriff's office suspects a beekeepers' feud. Since the beekeepers' involved have leases or permissions from the owners to use the orange groves, the sheriff's office thinks that other beekeepers may resent bees other than their own using the available pollen.

Those responsible for the bee gassing can be held liable for prosecution for trespass and malicious destruction of private property and possibly even for "entering a grove at night with intent to commit an illegal act," a felony under Florida statutes punishable by imprisonment from two to 10 years.

Lightest Mexico

By John Abney

Mexico City--So there we sat exchanging observations and opinions over some free coffee with Mr. Jim Shirley at his Shirley Courts.

Mr. Shirley put his motel in the downtown section where the tourists who came driving into the city almost run through his front gate before they realize it. (He keeps the back gate locked.)

U. S. style food, milk shakes and honest hamburgers in his excellent restaurant which has a combination of modern and African decoration.

And when I walked into the restaurant I almost fainted for there stood a monstrous African lion with a hungry look on his face. Gave me the feeling of being invited to dinner as the main course.

"Don't give him a second thought," Mr. Shirley said. "He is stuffed and has been dead a long time."

Mr. Shirley shot the lion, along with some rhinos and other creatures, in Africa during one of his hunting safaris. There is a rhino head mounted over the door and you can hang your hat on his nose horn if you are around eight feet tall.

So the conversation drifted from Mr. Shirley's stuffed zoo in the restaurant to flying. He being a red-blooded aviation addict who flits about the nation in his own plane.

It has been reported by several reliable bootblacks that Mr. Shirley will leave a board meeting and discuss flying machines with any air-minded gentleman who happens to wander in.

"Do you know Mexico is the greatest country in the world for air travel?" he said. "There are scads of people who fly down to see the country by light plane."

Then he sent for some charts and navigation equipment and said just look at all the landing strips around here. Georgeous, secluded places that can be reached only by air.

And he navigated with a ruler from one chart to another and said here you have beautiful mountain country to fly over and over here are high plateaus. Up here is a lake with marvelous trout fishing and then you have the jungle country and you can fly to all these villages along the coast that you can't get to by car.

And I turned the chair a little so this stuffed lion could not see me very well. Read a book once that said you should never let beasts sense you are nervous about them.

"Tell me about your safaris to Africa," I said.

"Were you nervous when the rhino came charging out of the bush and you popped him?"

And Mr. Shirley said, "Well, I potted several rhinos and they come at you like a jet airplane. You know we have a flying club here."

"Gee, imagine shooting a rhino," Isaid. "Did you see any dragons?"

So Mr. Shirley got a gleam in his eye. "The Executive Aviators Club, right by the Beechcraft Company. You know where that is."

And I said, "I understand some types of antelopes can jump forty feet."

"The club is really good," said Mr. Shirley. "We have a Link Trainer, a good library, maps, bar, hi-fi, dues are only four bucks a month and we have a chess table."

"You mean they play chess there?"

"Certainly," he said, getting out an application form. "And flying is the natural way for a guy like you to get around and cover the whole country. You write about everything."

It ended up that I am now a member of The Executive Aviators Club and Mr. Shirley is talking me into getting a flying machine so I can sail around the skies to exotic, new places.

Turned out to be the most expensive cup of free coffee I ever had.

GAS WARFARE

TAVARES, Fla. (AP) —Lake Country Sheriff Willis McCall has received three complaints of bee hives being gassed.

The sheriff's office suspects a beekeepers' feud. Since the beekeepers' involved have leases or permissions from the owners to use the orange groves, the sheriff's office thinks that other beekeepers may resent bees other than their own using the available pollen.

Those responsible for the bee gassing can be held liable for prosecution for trespass and malicious destruction of private property and possibly even for "entering a grove at night with intent to commit an illegal act," a felony under Florida statutes punishable by imprisonment from two to 10 years.

Title Without Money Isn't Worth Much

Newlon D'Arcy Wyvill, 69, expressed little surprise when told that Debrett's, Britian's directory of the aristocracy, indicated he is the rightful owner of the country's 10th most senior baronetcy.

"To me it don't mean a thing," the small camera - shy Wyvill said. "We've known the title was over there. If there were a few million dollars attached to it, I'd be very happy. Outside of that, no."

"Naturally I'm very proud," he said. It wouldn't be worth the time and expense to pursue claim to the title because I don't think there's any money over there," he said.

Debrett's, in its latest edition Wednesday, said that Wyvill is a descendant of Sir Richard Wyvill. Sir Richard was slain at the Battle of Towton Field in 1461 during the Wars of the Roses.

Sir Marmaduke Wyvill of Constable Burto, Yorkshire, was the last recognized baronet of the Wyvill Family, Debrett's said. He died in 1774, survived by a cousin whose father emigrated to America during the reign of George II.

Debrett's said its researchers had traced this family to Newlon D'Arcy Wyvill.

Wyvill said his grandfather and his father were interested in the title, but his grandfather died before he could travel to England and his father "was just about like me. He didn't have any money and he couldn't swim.

Wyvill said he hadn't given much thought to how it would feel to be a baronet.

"I don't know," he said. "I never did have anyone wait on me. I've done all my work myself." He could call himself Sir Newlon if he proved his right to the title.

Wyvill said he had conflicting information on whether any property is involved in the baronetcy.

20 Planes Bomb Targets

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Twenty U.S. and Vietnamese war planes rained down 55 tons of bombs on a North Vietnamese army barracks and supply area 220 miles south of Hanoi today, a military spokesman announced.

Pilots reported 65 per cent of their targets destroyed and heavy damage to the remainder of the Ben Quang barracks-supply area.

A U.S. Navy pilot was believed killed when Communist ground fire brought down his F8 Crusader during another strike. Two U.S. Army men were killed the day before in ground clashes. The total of U.S. combat deaths in Viet Nam rose to 389.

Four Navy Skyraiders from the carrier Midway attacked a ferry and destroyed a PT boat on the Song Ca River, 140 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman reported.

Twelve other U.S. planes damaged six wooden bridges 200 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

The spokesman also reported that planes from the carriers Oriskany and Bon Homme Richard dropped 100 tons of bombs and destroyed or damaged more than 100 buildings in strikes Wednesday against Viet Cong targets in South Viet Nam.

Two pay raise measures were passed. One would raise salaries of state Tax Commission members from $8,000 a year to $14,000. Another would increase pay of state Highway Department officials.

The latter bill would result in salary boosts for other employes of the department as well, supporters said.

The House gave first round approval to a proposed constitutional change to let voters decide whether household goods should be exempt from personal property tax.

THAYER'S SWORD—Cadet Thomas D. MacVicar (Euclid, Ohio) and Miss Ann Gerhart (Arlington, Va.) examine a sword belonging to Colonel Sylvanus Thayer when he was Superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, 1817-1833. The sword is part of a collection in the museum at West Point. Primarily through the efforts of Thayer, the Academy became the Nation's first engineering school. Sylvanus Thayer has been nominated to New York University's Hall of Fame for Great Americans as "Father of Technology in the United States."

Title Without Money Isn't Worth Much

Newlon D'Arcy Wyvill, 69, expressed little surprise when told that Debrett's, Britian's directory of the aristocracy, indicated he is the rightful owner of the country's 10th most senior baronetcy.

"To me it don't mean a thing," the small camera - shy Wyvill said. "We've known the title was over there. If there were a few million dollars attached to it, I'd be very happy. Outside of that, no."

"Naturally I'm very proud," he said. It wouldn't be worth the time and expense to pursue claim to the title because I don't think there's any money over there," he said.

Debrett's, in its latest edition Wednesday, said that Wyvill is a descendant of Sir Richard Wyvill. Sir Richard was slain at the Battle of Towton Field in 1461 during the Wars of the Roses.

Sir Marmaduke Wyvill of Constable Burto, Yorkshire, was the last recognized baronet of the Wyvill Family, Debrett's said. He died in 1774, survived by a cousin whose father emigrated to America during the reign of George II.

Debrett's said its researchers had traced this family to Newlon D'Arcy Wyvill.

Wyvill said his grandfather and his father were interested in the title, but his grandfather died before he could travel to England and his father "was just about like me. He didn't have any money and he couldn't swim.

Wyvill said he hadn't given much thought to how it would feel to be a baronet.

"I don't know," he said. "I never did have anyone wait on me. I've done all my work myself." He could call himself Sir Newlon if he proved his right to the title.

Wyvill said he had conflicting information on whether any property is involved in the baronetcy.

164 Junior High Grads At Anniston

ANNISTON -- Charleston R-1 Junior High School, Anniston Division, will graduate 164 students from eighth grade on May 27th, at 8:00 p.m. in the Anniston gymnasium. Rev. H. W. Chaney of First Baptist Church in Charleston will be the main speaker.

Music will be furnished by eighteen graduating eighth-graders accompanied by the Junior High music teacher, Mrs. Ruthe Blackwell.

Earl L. Williams, principal, will give remarks, present the American Legion's eighth grade award and present the class to Mr. William Hodges, the high school principal. Harry Sutherland, president of the school board, will present the diplomas.

20 Planes Bomb Targets

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Twenty U.S. and Vietnamese war planes rained down 55 tons of bombs on a North Vietnamese army barracks and supply area 220 miles south of Hanoi today, a military spokesman announced.

Pilots reported 65 per cent of their targets destroyed and heavy damage to the remainder of the Ben Quang barracks-supply area.

A U.S. Navy pilot was believed killed when Communist ground fire brought down his F8 Crusader during another strike. Two U.S. Army men were killed the day before in ground clashes. The total of U.S. combat deaths in Viet Nam rose to 389.

Four Navy Skyraiders from the carrier Midway attacked a ferry and destroyed a PT boat on the Song Ca River, 140 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman reported.

Twelve other U.S. planes damaged six wooden bridges 200 miles south of Hanoi, the spokesman said.

The spokesman also reported that planes from the carriers Oriskany and Bon Homme Richard dropped 100 tons of bombs and destroyed or damaged more than 100 buildings in strikes Wednesday against Viet Cong targets in South Viet Nam.

Two pay raise measures were passed. One would raise salaries of state Tax Commission members from $8,000 a year to $14,000. Another would increase pay of state Highway Department officials.

The latter bill would result in salary boosts for other employes of the department as well, supporters said.

The House gave first round approval to a proposed constitutional change to let voters decide whether household goods should be exempt from personal property tax.

It was advanced on a 73-57 vote — not enough for final house passage.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1½ inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on 7 inch soil cement base, 24 feet wide on South Ingram Street from Malone Avenue to a point approximately 1350 feet south in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $2.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 21st day of May, 1965. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

"SLIGHT DIFFERENCE"

When a reporter on a small southwestern newspaper filed a story with his editor, telling about a disastrous ranch fire in the area, he reported an incredible loss of 2025 cows. The editor, unable to accept the figure, called the rancher.

"You the rancher who had the fire that wiped out 2025 cows?" inquired the editor.

"Yeth" answered the rancher.

Turning back to the story, the editor changed the copy to read: "two sows and twenty-five cows."

Required by law to inform citizens of matters affecting them or their property.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1½ inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on 7 inch soil cement base, 24 feet wide on South Ingram Street from Malone Avenue to a point approximately 1350 feet south in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: Section 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. Section 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. Section 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $2.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. Section 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. Section 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. Section 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 21st day of May, 1965. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

SHE WENT THAT-A-WAY
That little girl who used to play
With paper dolls and blocks;
Put rose petals in sugar bowls
Who gave me chicken-pox,
Has slipped quietly away.
Oh, where did she vanish?
Could she be the lady in our Den memorizing Spanish?

"SLIGHT DIFFERENCE"

When a reporter on a small southwestern newspaper filed a story with his editor, telling about a disastrous ranch fire in the area, he reported an incredible loss of 2025 cows. The editor, unable to accept the figure, called the rancher.

"You the rancher who had the fire that wiped out 2025 cows?" inquired the editor.

"Yeth" answered the rancher.

Turning back to the story, the editor changed the copy to read: "two sows and twenty-five cows."

EAST PRAIRIE -- Graduation exercises for 92 high school seniors will be held Friday at 7:45 p.m., with the address, "Years of Tomorrow" to be given by Ray Roberts, Jefferson City, director of curriculum, state department of education.

The processional, "Pomp and Circumstance," will be played by Marilyn Royal, followed by the invocation by Pam Schneider, valedictorian. Musical numbers will include, "The Hall of Ivy" by the senior music ensemble, with Raylene Menton as accompanist. A piano duet, "You'll Never Walk Alone" by Raylene Melton and Connie Royal.

Introduction of the speaker will be made by Ray Melton, superintendent.

Principal Robert Grassle will make a presentation of the class, following by the awarding of the diplomas by James E. Blackman, president of the school board.

The benediction will be given by Nickie Ashlock, class salutatorian, followed by the recessional.

Chickens are the most widely distributed of domestic fowl and probably the most popular of all animals kept as food producers. They were known in China as early as 1400 B.C. The Romans found them well established in Gaul and among the Germans. Most likely, they did not reach the western hemisphere until Christopher Columbus brought them to the New World on his second voyage in 1493.

Highway Maintenance Budget Up

$235,000 Due To Heavy Snows

Temperatures may be in the mid-summer range now, but do you remember those howling snowstorms that blew into Missouri during February and March?

Well, they were so costly in terms of keeping state highways open to traffic that the Missouri State Highway Commission has had to add an additional $235,000 to the Division of Maintenance budget to have enough money on hand to take care of any snow and ice storms that may develop early next winter.

The Division of Maintenance started the calendar year with $3,000,000 budgeted for snow and ice control for 1965. However, about $1,983,000 was spent in only the first three months, due mainly to the heavy snows of last winter.

With the additional $235,000 appropriated by the Commission, the Division of Maintenance now has a balance of $1,252,000 in snow and ice control funds for the remainder of 1965. This is the minimum believed needed to prepare for and combat any storms that may hit in November and December.

A sizable shore of the remaining funds will be used to purchase abrasives and chemicals for stockpiling and to buy new equipment long before next winter begins.

Snow and ice control expenditures during January, February and March by state highway districts were:

District 1. St. Jospeh, $324,485; District 2, Macon, $168,876; District 3, Hannibal, $189,903; District 4, Kansas City, $384,790; District 5, Jefferson City, $208,200; District 6, Kirkwood, $308,934; District 7, Joplin, $117,098; District 8, Springfield, $123,738; District 9, Willow Springs, $69,721; and District 10, Sikeston, $87,363.

The cost of snow and ice control operations on Missouri's state highways has mounted steadily in recent years even when considering that some winters are more severe than others. For example, only $1,390,000 was spent in all of 1957.

The increased costs are credited mainly to the opening of Interstate highways with their dual lane divided pavements and numerous ramps, the oil surfacing of former gravel roads which then require more winter maintenance because of the hard surface and the fact that the public wants more extensive snow and ice control due to heavier dependence on motor vehicle travel.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 27, the 147th day of 1965. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1668, three men—William Turner, Thomas Gold and John Farnum—were exiled into the wilderness by the Massachusetts General Assembly because they were Baptists. Religious intolerance was common in Colonial America until the adoption of the Constitution with its Bill of Rights.

On this date

In 1819, Julia Ward Howe, the author of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," poet and reformer, was born in New York City.

In 1929, Charles Lindbergh and Anne Morrow were married in Englewood, N.J.

The 1935, the Supreme Court ruled the National Industrial Recovery Act unconstitutional, ending the effort to regulate industry by codes.

Ten years ago—An Indonesian commission returned a verdict of sabotage in the crash of a Constellation plane in the South China Sea. Of 15 persons aboard, 12 were killed.

Five years ago—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened secret hearings on events causing the collapse of the Paris summit conference.

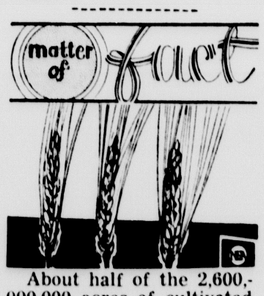
Squire Election Process Begins

JEFFERSON CITY -- The process of electing five new members of the Missouri Academy of Squires began today with the appointment of the nominating committee for 1965. Governor Warren E. Hearnes, automatically a member of the academy by virtue of his office, and former Governor John M. Dalton are ex-officio members of the committee, with Governor Hearnes as chairman. The other two members appointed by Dalton, are Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and Tilghman R. Cloud, deputy secretary of state.

Any Missourian can suggest a candidate for squiredoom to the committee. A summary of the candidate's qualifications, not to exceed 100 words, must accompany each nomination.

The nominating committee will narrow the field to 15 names and the final five will be elected by vote of the academy, whose membership now totals 50, with the ceiling set at an eventual 100.

The late Gov. James T. Blair, Jr., founded the academy in 1960 to "recognize and honor Missourians for lasting contributions to community, state or nation."



About half of the 2,600,000,000 acres of cultivated land in the world is used in the production of cereals which provide 80 per cent of the food calories produced. Two-fifths of this cereal acreage is used for wheat production. There are more pounds of wheat produced than of rice, but more people use rice as their chief food. Wheat has been grown before or at least since recorded history.

"And Cap'n Kidd says we also get a hot gold watch after 25 years of faithful service!"

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Thursday, May 27, the 147th day of 1965. There are 218 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1668, three men—William Turner, Thomas Gold and John Farnum—were exiled into the wilderness by the Massachusetts General Assembly because they were Baptists. Religious intolerance was common in Colonial America until the adoption of the Constitution with its Bill of Rights.

On this date

In 1819, Julia Ward Howe, the author of "Battle Hymn of the Republic," poet and reformer, was born in New York City.

In 1929, Charles Lindbergh and Anne Morrow were married in Englewood, N.J.

The 1935, the Supreme Court ruled the National Industrial Recovery Act unconstitutional, ending the effort to regulate industry by codes.

Ten years ago—An Indonesian commission returned a verdict of sabotage in the crash of a Constellation plane in the South China Sea. Of 15 persons aboard, 12 were killed.

Five years ago—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee opened secret hearings on events causing the collapse of the Paris summit conference.

Squire Election Process Begins

JEFFERSON CITY -- The process of electing five new members of the Missouri Academy of Squires began today with the appointment of the nominating committee for 1965. Governor Warren E. Hearnes, automatically a member of the academy by virtue of his office, and former Governor John M. Dalton are ex-officio members of the committee, with Governor Hearnes as chairman. The other two members appointed by Dalton, are Richard H. Amberg, publisher of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and Tilghman R. Cloud, deputy secretary of state.

Any Missourian can suggest a candidate for squiredoom to the committee. A summary of the candidate's qualifications, not to exceed 100 words, must accompany each nomination.

The nominating committee will narrow the field to 15 names and the final five will be elected by vote of the academy, whose membership now totals 50, with the ceiling set at an eventual 100.

The late Gov. James T. Blair, Jr., founded the academy in 1960 to "recognize and honor Missourians for lasting contributions to community, state or nation."

About half of the 2,600,000,000 acres of cultivated land in the world is used in the production of cereals which provide 80 per cent of the food calories produced. Two-fifths of this cereal acreage is used for wheat production. There are more pounds of wheat produced than of rice, but more people use rice as their chief food. Wheat has been grown before or at least since recorded history.
